AIRSHIP MACON SALUTES CROWD AT WORLD FAIR

Cruises Over City for More than Hour.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The United States navy's new dirigible, the Macon, carrying 90 persons on her third trial trip out of Akron, O., gave visitors to A Century of Progress and incidentally all Chicago a thrill last night by sailing over the Exposition grounds and the city for more than an hour.

The Fair visitors, crowding to roofs, towers and bridges, at one time saw the Macon, two other smaller dirigibles, and two airplanes maneuvering in the sunset sky at the same time. This was a spectacle that seemed to merge with the marvels of science about them, such as the voices coming through the broadcasting system telling them, between musical numbers, the progress of the giant airship.

Comes in Sight of Grounds.

The Macon, sister of the Akron, which sank at sea early in April with the loss of 73 lives, appeared out of the north, where she had been cruising all day, and came in sight of the Exposition grounds at 6:45 o'clock. A Goodyear blimp, flying out of Pal-Waukee airport, went out to meet the Macon, which sailed slowly, majestically into closer view, the sun shining on her silver sides.

Flying at a height of about 1,000 feet, without appearing to move swiftly yet every minute coming closer, the airship headed directly over the lagoon. The roar of the eight engines drowned out the voices of the barkers for the submarine, popcorn and hot dogs.

Motors in Working Order.

Seen through the telescope, every motor seemed in working order. The sunlight hitting the propellers made each one look like a spark of electronic activity. Reports from Frankfort, Mich., that the Macon had been damaged slightly in one rudder apparently were without foundation, for the rudders looked all right and the ship turned as its pilot willed. It skimmed lightly over the cables of the sky ride and at 7:30 had disappeared in the south.

A little later the airship turned and came back, and at a point opposite the federal building turned west directly over the Fair grounds and sailed into the face of the setting sun. Shortly before 8 o'clock it appeared again from the loop, circled the Navy pier and headed south.

Cruising Over Illinois.

At midnight the Macon was reported cruising leisurely over the midwest. The dirigible still had some 18 hours remaining of its 48 hour test flight which is to end tonight at Akron. Headed northwest, the ship was sighted at Rockford about 10:30 p. m. [Chicago time]. Rockford is 80 miles northwest of Chicago. Earlier in the evening the Macon started east, but turned westward after meeting headwinds at Michigan City.

The Macon, which left Akron Monday night, passed over Detroit at 10:50 o'clock Monday night and then made its first appearance over Chicago at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Her great silver hull, 785 feet in length, was reflected in sunrise colors, making a memorable sight to those fortunate enough to be awake at this hour.

Passes Over Milwaukee.

At 7:15 a. m. the Macon passed over Milwaukee and then went on to Sheboygan, where, in response to a radio plea, the ship veered in and flew over the business section. The state G. A. R. was holding an encampment there.

Following this the Macon turned east and disappeared over the lake. During the afternoon she was reported over Sturgeon Bay, Manitowoc, and in the vicinity of Frankfort, later cruising around Beaver island and north into the upper peninsula district, where she was reported sighted at Escanaba and Manistique, where she turned south again.

Dressel in Command.

The Macon is commanded by Capt. Alger H. Dressel. Among those on board are Commander S. L. Kraus and Lieut. W. E. Zimmerman of the naval board of inspection. Several engineers of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation are in the ship. The test flights are to determine acceptance of the ship by the navy.

The Macon is powered by eight motors and has compartments for five scout planes. The skeleton is of aluminum alloy, and the ship is kept afloat by 6½ million cubic feet of helium. She is identical in size and shape with the Akron and cost $2,450,000.

VACATION TIME

SENATE WORKS FAST; HERE'S SUMMARY OF DAY'S LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—In sharp contrast with yesterday's lack of activity, the senate pushed forward rapidly today toward completing its work in preparation of adjournment. In the cooler atmosphere the senators worked swiftly on the important bills that still awaited passage. In quick succession this legislation was enacted:

Conference report on the industrial recovery bill adopted.

Conference report on the Glass-Steagall banking bill adopted. Bill makes provision for limited deposit guarantee Jan. 1, 1934, unless in an emergency ordered earlier by President.

Fourth deficiency bill, carrying largest peace time appropriations, passed.

Following these the independent offices bill, which contains the much contested veteran legislation, was taken up as the last barrier to adjournment.

Reorganization order, sent to the capitol at the last minute Saturday by the President, almost ignored today. [This was generally credited with having prevented adjournment Saturday.]

Senate sent back to committee the veterans' bill increasing benefits over bill passed by house as compromise with President.

The house remained largely inactive today, having little of importance before it. It did adopt without a record vote the conference report on the Glass-Steagall banking bill, now before the President.

ALFONSO'S SON RENOUNCES HIS RIGHTS TO THRONE

PARIS, June 13.—(AP)—The prince of the Asturias, son of former King Alfonso of Spain, who is soon to marry a commoner, today signed a renunciation of his royal rights in favor of his brother, Don Jaime, it was learned from a high Spanish source.

The former king, who opposes his son's marriage to Edelmira Sampedro, daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, delegated the duke of Miranda to go to Lausanne and make a final effort to induce the prince to abandon the marriage, it was stated. The duke failed to change the mind of the prince who, it was reported, said his decision to marry Senorita Sampedro was irrevocable.

The emissary then had the prince sign a document drawn up by attorneys whereby he formally renounced all rights to the throne for himself and his descendants. Don Jaime now officially receives the title of prince of the Asturias, and the rights thereof. The ten days following the legal posting of banns of marriage by the prince and Senorita Sampedro have elapsed, but complications regarding the prince's exact status as a Spanish citizen have held up the wedding in Lausanne.

New Methods Revive Dead, Doctors Assert

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—[Special.]—The story of an old man who begged his physicians to keep him alive until his son arrived from San Francisco, who was then brought back to life and kept alive and conscious until he had spent several hours with his son, was told here today before the American Medical association.

The story of this modern miracle was told by Dr. S. Albert S. Hyman and E. Fritze of the Witkin Foundation for the study and prevention of heart disease of the Beth David hospital.

Make Heart Start Again.

Dr. Hyman and his co-workers have developed the artificial pace maker for the heart, by means of which hearts that have completely stopped beating can be made to start again, and people who have actually died, biologically, medically, physically, and legally, can be brought back to life again.

The old man, Dr. Fritze said, realized he was about to die of a chronic heart disease. He told his doctors he was ready to face death cheerfully if only he could live long enough to see his son, who was on the Pacific coast, to whom he had an important secret to impart. Soon afterward he died.

Brought Back to Life.

Whereupon the pace maker was immediately applied and the old man was kept alive for twenty-four hours after his son had arrived by racing airplane.

It was not feasible, Dr. Fritze explained, to keep him alive for a longer period, for the heart had deteriorated too far. However, when death is the result of shock and the heart is sound the patient can be brought back to life permanently.

In this manner well over a hundred persons who actually had died, two doctors stated, have been brought back from "that bourne from which no traveler in the past history of time has ever returned." Not one of these patients, Dr. Hyman replied to queries, had anything to tell of experiences beyond the threshold of life.

What Is It Like to Be Dead?

The first to ask these questions, Dr. Hyman said, were clergymen of the various faiths who were attending the patients at what was believed to be their last moments, Catholics, Protestants, and Jews were included among the patients. From this Dr. Hyman was led to question all the other patients who had been "brought back."

"What is it like to be dead?" the person who had died was asked in each instance on regaining life and consciousness.

The answer invariably is "I did not know I was dead. I was completely unconscious."

Then follows the next question: "Did you get a glimpse, a hint, of any other life different from this life?"

Among those who died and are now alive and well Dr. Fritze told is a dog who holds the record for voyages to the other side of life. This dog had actually died thirteen times. Thirteen times he was brought back to life. He is now hale and hearty, normal in every respect.

This does not mean that every person who dies can be brought back to life indefinitely, Dr. Hyman explains. The action of the heart depends on electrochemical forces. When the heart is diseased the fluids in the heart upon which these forces depend no longer function. In such cases it is possible to stimulate the heart artificially for several hours or longer, but life under such conditions would hardly be worth the living..

LONG, LONG TRAIL AUTHOR DIES AT SPOKANE HOME

Spokane, Wash., June 13.—(AP)—Stoddard King, 43, whose song "There's a Long, Long Trail" is known by millions in many parts of the world, died at his home today with sleeping sickness.

King, a newspaper columnist and author of several books of humorous verse, was stricken late in February soon after he returned from a lecture tour through the east.

King originated the column, "Facetious Fragments," in the Spokesman-Review here and conducted it about 16 years. He joined the editorial staff of the Spokesman-Review in 1907 as a reporter and except for lapses during the war and while he attended college he was a member almost continuously until his death.

While in Yale he wrote the lyric for "There's a Long, Long Trail."

His widow, Henrietta L., and two daughters, Penelope Jane and Barbara Ann, survive him here.

LONDON CRISIS AND VETS' BILL HOLD CONGRESS

May Not Quit Until End of Week.

Swift Action

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet at midnight completed plans to put into immediate effect the industrial control program which received final approval at the hands of congress today. The President will sign the bill tomorrow.

It was decided to create a supervisory council of cabinet members to pass on the industrial and trades codes required under the new legislation. The council is to be composed of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of Commerce Roper, and Secretary of Labor Perkins. These four will be expected to approve all codes and agreements [and how far the anti-trust act may be disregarded] before they are put in effect by the final approval of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the act.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—War veterans and war debts once again sent congress to bed tonight without an adjournment.

Back to a wrangle in a conference committee of the two houses went the independent offices appropriations bill with its veterans' benefit provisions.

It went there impelled by a senate roll call, whose tally of 48 votes against the administration and only 31 in favor of a quick settlement and speedy adjournment spelled trouble ahead in more than one direction.

The major issue concerning veterans' benefits did not even come up for discussion. It was a minor point concerning the hospitalization of veterans with nonservice connected disabilities that sent the administration forces down to defeat.

May Upset Program.

Behind that vote, however, lay more than a threat of a decisive downfall when the main veterans' provisions come to a vote as they are expected to in the senate tomorrow.

The news from London and the economic conference expressed itself in the one sided roll call. Many of the 48 votes, especially on the Republican side, were significant of a growing determination to keep congress in session at least through Thursday. At that time the war debt payments are due.

Perhaps congress may be held until the end of the week.

Senate leaders called it a day as soon as the result of the vote was announced. The senate took a recess until tomorrow. After waiting about hopefully all evening the house quickly followed suit.

First Big Setback.

The defeat of the administration leaders in the senate was all the more decisive because up until the time the veterans' controversy came upon the floor the legislative machine today had ground away with efficient dispatch.

In quick succession the senate gave its approval to the industrial control public works bill, to the Glass banking bill, and to the 3 billion 380 million dollar deficiency bill. The first two, having already been acted upon by the house, now require only the President's signature to make them law. The deficiency bill was sent to conference with an easy agreement expected.

Twenty Democrats Desert.

The vote that sent the independent offices bill and its veterans' provisions back to conference saw 20 Democrats deserting the administration. Even more significant, however, was the fact that 27 Republicans voted to recommit the bill, while only one—a member of the conference committee—cast his ballot in support of the leaders' action.

The Republican vote, it later was explained by Republicans themselves, was not so much a vote on the minor veterans' amendment under debate as an announcement that they intend to stay in Washington until the delegates to the London conference have expressed themselves and it is seen how radically President Roosevelt has amended the traditional war debt and foreign policies of the United States.

Reads Chamberlain Statement.

The talk that has been going on in capital corridors and cloakrooms overflowed into the open when Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] read on the senate floor cabled dispatches say-

Wets Win All 45 Delegates in Bay State

Boston, Mass., June 13.—(AP)—Massachusetts wets swept dry resistance aside today and elected every one of 45 delegates to a constitutional convention which will act on repeal of prohibition.

The wet victory made Massachusetts the 11th state to register approval of the repeal amendment and placed it in company with Wyoming, Illinois, Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wisconsin, and Nevada.

More Than 4 to 1.

The margin of success for the wets ran more than 4 to 1 throughout the state, but in Boston it was near 10 to 1—84,230 for repeal, 8,246 against.

Taking the delegates polling the highest vote in each of the 15 congressional districts, the state wet vote was 441,195 against 98,844 for the drys. Three pledged delegates were chosen from each congressional district; none from the state at large.

Riding high on the wave of wet success was James Roosevelt, a son of President Roosevelt, chosen from the 9th district, including parts of Cambridge and Boston as well as smaller communities. Roosevelt and his colleagues defeated their anti-repeal opponents by more than 4 to 1.

More Gains for Wets.

Besides voting on the repeal ratification delegates most all of the communities passed on the question of local license. The results showed a big overturn in favor of the wets, with only a few scattered towns standing firm against license, as most of the communities had in 1924, when the last vote on this subject was taken. Typical of the trend in rural sections was the vote in New Ashford, a small Berkshire county town known the nation over for its prompt returns on presidential elections, which voted 100 per cent wet. Not one of its votes went to retention of the 18th amendment and all 16 going in favor of license.

The large cities throughout the state turned in huge majorities for the wet delegates. Some of the high totals were: Cambridge, 12,598 to 1,892; Brockton, 9,157 to 1,506; Lawrence, 8,036 to 611; New Bedford, 8,279 to 1,024; and Springfield, 14,537 to 2,707. Melrose was the only city to refuse license, although it gave a majority to the wet delegates.

Both Parties Wet.

Repeal had the support of both the Democratic and Republican state committees, with Chairman Joseph Maynard of the Democratic committee the active leader among the Democrats.

David F. Sibley, secretary of the allied repeal forces, issued a statement characterizing the election as "funeral services, without tears and without flowers," for the 18th amendment, and called upon "the drys to support us in our state-wide crusade for sobriety and true temperance, which have ever been our objective."

MILDRED FINDS HENRY IS NOT A BIG BEER MAN

The romance of Henry J. Austin, 26 years old, who described himself as a big executive in the brewery business, and Miss Mildred Johnson, 25 years old, 2425 Aubert avenue, began in a dance hall.

Apparently it was a case of love at first sight on both sides. There was a whirlwind courtship that took up all of five or six hours and the next morning, which was May 25, they were married in the city hall.

The following morning Austin kissed his bride good-by and told her he had to run down to New York on a beer deal. He never came back. The bride, wondering what had become of him, wandered around in a haze of rosy dreams. Henry, she believed, was coming back with riches made in the beer business.

But yesterday, as she passed a basement barber shop at 1025 Leland avenue, she awoke from the dream. In the first chair was a customer, and shaving him was a barber in a white coat. The man in the coat was Henry J. Austin. Later, when he went to his home at 3247 Broadway, the bride followed and found that a previous Mrs. Austin and a 3 months old baby were there with her own bridegroom.

Last night Detectives Leabeater and Curtin arrested Austin as a bigamist. At the detective bureau he said he had been drinking on the night of May 24 and didn't recall marriage No. 2.

24 Italian Planes Poised for Long Hop to Chicago

ROME, June 14 [Wednesday].—(AP)—The air ministry announced early today that rainy weather in Italy would not permit the takeoff today of 24 Italian seaplanes for Chicago. Everything is in readiness for the departure of the armada, the announcement said, and the planes will leave as soon as the weather clears.

PRESIDENT PENS DEMAND EUROPE SHOW GOOD WILL

Outlines U. S. Stand on British Offer.

The World Parley

DEBTS to the United States again dominated the discussions in the second session of the world economic conference in London yesterday. The chief delegates of Italy and South Africa made vigorous pleas for reduction or cancellation.

FRENCH delegates claimed America's scheme for a world wide tariff truce had already been practically beaten and stabilization of currency must be agreed upon before there can be any tariff truce.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—President Roosevelt, answering European bids for revision of the war debts, will demand that Europe first show its good will by entering wholeheartedly into the aims of the world economic conference at London.

This was announced tonight by a high official of the government after he had conferred with the President.

The President tomorrow will issue a reply to the offer of England, formally delivered to the White House this afternoon, in which the British government made a tender of a partial payment on the $75,950,000 installment which falls due on Thursday.

U. S. Surrenders No Claims.

It is understood that the President will accept the British offer, which is said to be only 10 per cent of the amount due, but that he will make it plain in his acknowledgment that the payment is being received "on account" and that the United States by accepting it is not surrendering any of its claims to the full amount.

While the manner in which Mr. Roosevelt will lay down his ultimatum to the European nations, insisting that they put aside the debts temporarily while the greater purposes of the London conferences are attained, was not clearly disclosed. It was reported tonight that Secretary of State Hull may declare the President's stand when he addresses the delegates at the London meeting tomorrow morning.

The President has decided, it was reported, that he will meet the statements made by Prime Minister MacDonald of England, bringing the debt issue before the London conference, with a declaration that the debts really are of lighter weight, measured by the greater problems before the conference.

Holds Tariff Cuts Urgent.

The task of breaking down trade barriers, of revising tariffs and stabilizing world currencies, are of vastly greater importance at this time than settling the debts, in the view credited to the President. It is expected that Mr. Hull's speech, and perhaps President Roosevelt's reply to England as well, will set forth rather broadly that when Europe shows an inclination to coöperate in reëstablishing world trade then the United States will be more disposed to consider the debt question.

It was declared tonight from one source that the President's reply to England, which has been fully prepared for 48 hours in anticipation of the type of offer which the British would present, would have an element of "surprise" in it.

The President has not overlooked the manner in which Mr. MacDonald injected the debts into the opening session of the London conference, and he and his advisers noted with interest the follow up delivered today by Gen. Jan Christian Smuts of the Union of South Africa, who bitterly assailed America's "lack of coöperation" on the debts issue.

Plans Boomerang at Europe.

It is understood that the delay in the delivery of Secretary Hull's address was caused chiefly by the desire of President Roosevelt to have the debts issue clearly defined, so that when Mr. Hull gets up before the assembled delegates tomorrow he will be able to answer it squarely.

At the same time the attitude encountered by the American delegation, one of stony faced opposition to tariff and monetary agreements until the debt issue is settled, may be dropped back in the lap of Europe.

After the President had discussed the reply to England tonight with Acting Secretary of State William Phillips it was learned that the reply will be made public tomorrow along with the British note, simultaneously in the United States and in London.

The President indicated also that he would discuss the question informally with leaders of congress, and he is expected to do this tomorrow morning.

Italy Makes Offer.

Shortly after the latest British offer was delivered to the state department by Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay Ambassador Rosso of Italy called with a memorandum suggesting that his country also make only a partial payment on its war debt installment of $13,545,000.

Government officials refused to discuss the terms of the English offer, but it was reported to set a definite sum in dollars which is exactly or approximately 10 per cent of the amount due on Thursday.

The attitude of the President as disclosed by his advisers is that the United States should accept the partial payment provided it is offered unconditionally without any strings tied to it, and without any implication in the offer that the United States is surrendering any claim to the eventual payment of the full amount due.

The President, it was learned, informed the British ambassador yesterday that the United States would not accept a partial payment if it was offered upon condition that it would be reckoned into any future revision or lowering of England's debt to this country.

The President was also opposed, he told Sir Ronald, to describing the tendered payment as a "token" and his attitude as reported from close sources was that if England was unable to pay the full amount her offer should make such a declaration.

The President was also opposed to having the offer stated in terms of 10 per cent of the payment due, because he is definitely opposed to having the payment presented in the light of the Lausanne agreement, under which Germany's reparations payments were scaled down upon condition that the United States would accept payment of the debts owed this country on a 10 per cent basis.

The United States has declined to join in the Lausanne agreement, which has been roundly condemned during debt discussions in congress.

Therefore it is declared that the British offer is stated in dollars rather than as 10 per cent of the amount due.

LONDON IS SECRETIVE

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 13.—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, after many delays made his long awaited announcement on the war debt situation in the house of commons tonight.

As a revelation of the British policy it was disappointing. The chancellor spoke only three minutes and he merely announced that the British ambassador at Washington had handed the state department a note setting forth the British proposals. What these proposals are he did not say.

Chamberlain made his statement after numerous delays. He had promised to make it when the house of commons met at 2:45 today after the Whitsuntide recess. At that time Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, pleaded for patience, saying that the chancellor would speak at 5 o'clock.

Two More Delays.

Five o'clock came and Baldwin again intervened, saying there was a "very good reason" for delay and that the statement would be made at 10 o'clock. Ten o'clock came with the debate on disarmament, which had been staged to kill time, dragging wearily on and no sign of Chamberlain. At 10:30, however, he entered the chamber amid a storm of cheering, for word had gone around that he had obtained, an agreement with the United States to accept a small "token" payment and a promise to get to work at once on a discussion to revise the debt agreement.

The house was doomed to disappointment again, for Chamberlain merely said that it was still impossible to make a complete statement. He said there had been a long interchange of views between the British and American governments, but since the United States' reply to the last communication had not yet been received, he was not in a position to state its terms.

The reply, he said, probably would reach London tomorrow and he had no reason to think it "would be other than satisfactory to Great Britain." He promised a complete statement tomorrow.

LONDON, June 13.—Despite all efforts to keep it out, the war debt cancellation issue again got into the world economic conference today and dominated the proceedings.

While Secretary of State Hull, chairman of the American delegation, continued to asseverate that the war debts did not cause the depression and that their cancellation would not cure it, and continued to insist upon a settlement of economic questions without reference to the war debts, the American delegation found itself up against a combine of debtor nations proceeding on a totally different theory.

U. S. Policy Is Denounced.

Following Prime Minister MacDonald's action in demanding an immediate settlement of the debts question at the opening session of the conference yesterday, other speakers today ignored the agreement that the debts would not be brought up at the conference.

One of these speakers was Guido Jung, Italian finance minister, who caused a sensation by demanding an immediate review of the war debts as the first essential to recovery.

"We firmly believe," Jung said, "that there is a preliminary problem —intergovernmental debts arising from the war. An armistice was signed for them at Lausanne. A final settlement now is imperative.

Smuts Assails U. S.

Jung also joined the French and Polish demand for stabilization of the dollar and pound before the conference can proceed to deal with any other question. He declared that no prosperity can be based on a restoration of prices founded on illusive values.

The heaviest brick of the day in the fight for cancellation of the war debts was thrown by Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, philosopher-statesman of South Africa. He began by saying that he intended to speak his mind frankly, and he proceeded to do so about the United States. After describing the plight of the world and the necessity for immediate action to restore it to health, he said:

"The reparations and war debt question was settled at Lausanne a year ago and this agreement will stand. There is no going back on it. The Lausanne conference placed the blame where it belonged, on the shoulders of the United States. The United States failed to fall in line."

Await Word from Roosevelt.

The powers maneuvering to force the United States into a 90 per cent reduction of the 11 billion dollars in debts due Uncle Sam had ears for nothing today except news from Washington of what President Roosevelt is going to do about the British government's pressure for only a nominal payment on the $75,950,000 installment due June 15.

The debtors were marking time in shaping the policies they will pursue in the conference until they learned whether President Roosevelt would or would not consent to a reopening of the debt settlements. They waited all day in vain for any definite word from Washington and went to bed tonight with nothing more satisfying than an unconfirmed report that President Roosevelt is merely waiting to get rid of congress before stating his position on the debt question.

Inasmuch as congress is understood to be overwhelmingly opposed to reduction of the war debts, the inference sustaining the hopes of the debtors is that any statement President Roosevelt might find expedient to withhold until congress is out of the way must be favorable to the debtors' cause.

Even Mr. Hull's program for the day was upset by the invasion of the scene by the debt repudiation issue. The American secretary of state was to have opened the deliberations of the conference this morning with a presentation of the American proposals for a solution of the economic ills of the world. The conference met, but Mr. Hull was absent. Then came a message from the American headquarters saying that Mr. Hull was not ready to proceed and would not be until tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Hull's sudden change of schedule was reported to have been caused by a telephone conversation with Washington, in which the secretary was instructed to withhold his speech pending action on the debt question by the President. At that time it was expected in Washington that congress would adjourn before night and that President Roosevelt would then announce his position.

Now, in view of the new delay in Washington, Mr. Hull's appearance before the conference tomorrow to make his speech is far from certain.

U. S. Delegation "Explains."

The official explanation at the American headquarters of the postponement of Mr. Hull's speech was that it has been impossible to mimeograph an eleventh hour revision of the address in time for release to the press concurrently with its delivery. This was at least partly true, for Mr. Hull had found it necessary to revise some parts of his speech after his consultation with Washington.

Premier Daladier of France, who made the first speech of the day when Mr. Hull failed to appear at the conference, made no reference to the war debts. He concentrated upon the French theory that monetary stabilization is the first essential to world recovery. He spoke scornfully of managed currency, comparing it with a rubber foot rule, and plumped for gold as the international measure of value. He also declared for a big program of public works to relieve unemployment and a 40 hour working week.

Movement of Gold Vital.

"The maintenance or reëstablishment of liberty of gold movements appears indispensable to us," Daladier declared. "How are you going to reëstablish the circulation of goods and conclude economic accords if the measure of values remains dependent on caprice or hazard? What would you say of the engineer or architect who used an elastic yardstick?"

Other speakers of the day were Viscount Kikujiro Ishii of Japan, Cosio of Uruguay, Baron Konstantin von Neurath of Germany, Adam of Poland, Marino of Cuba, and Malinoff of Bulgaria. They each spoke fifteen minutes, the limit set for speeches, but said little of consequence.

All assured the conference of their nations' desire to cöoperate in the work of restoring world prosperity. Von Neurath stressed the need of political appeasement as well as of economic appeasement, and emphasized that international debts can be paid only in goods and services. In Germany's present economic situation, he said, this principle must be the starting point.

The first speaker tomorrow is scheduled to be Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, who will leave by air at once for Vienna after his speech, in which he will deal with the Nazi menace to his country. Other speakers tentatively on the list for tomorrow besides Mr. Hull include Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, who is scheduled to make an important pronouncement on British policy, and Maxim Litvinov, soviet Russian foreign minister.

MacDonald announced today that all speaking must be finished by Thursday night in order to allow the committees to get to work on the real task of the conference.

U. S. Being "Squeezed Out."

LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—White haired Hendryk Colijn, Dutch prime minister, was being pushed forward by an important bloc of European delegations at the world economic conference tonight to crowd out an American as chairman of the important monetary committee.

The gold standard countries, seeking to force stabilization of the dollar at a high rate, thwarted American efforts to name the committee chairman at a meeting of the conference bureau after the plenary session this afternoon. James M. Cox, vice chairman of the American delegation, was the choice of the Americans.

It was predicted in authoritative continental delegation quarters that a strenuous effort would be made to name Prime Minister Colijn tomorrow. Prime Minister Macdonald of Great Britain, conference president, was reported to have sounded out the Dutch candidate.

The French are demanding a conservative gold standard man for this chairmanship, which is one of the most important posts of the conclave. French, Dutch, Belgians and Italians all are insistent that the United States, Great Britain and Japan quickly return to the gold standard, although none is anxious to take such a step in the near future.

The British also object to an American head of the committee. They have a community of interest with gold standard countries, since their ability to stay on gold is regarded as dependent on a check in the decline of the dollar.

Americans are anxious to name a committee chairman from their own delegation in view of the tremendous pressure being brought to stabilize the dollar at a high rate and a desire to promote their own monetary and central banking program, involving an advantageous rate for the dollar as well as reduction of central bank currency cover from 40 to 25 per cent gold, with the option that a fifth of the reserve be kept in silver. The Americans are determined that there will be no dollar stabilization at a rate deflationary to American markets.

YOUNG BONAR LAW CLAIMS DEBT PACT HURT HIS FATHER

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 13.—Young Richard Bonar Law rose in the house of commons tonight and told how Stanley Baldwin's acceptance of the terms of the United States for a debt settlement in 1923 "almost broke my father's heart." Andrew Bonar Law was then prime minister and Baldwin conducted the negotiations for the government as chancellor of the exchequer.

"I have no wish to attack Mr. Baldwin for the settlement nor do I wish to acquit my father of responsibility because his responsibility as the prime minister was final and in some ways graver than was Mr. Baldwin's," said the speaker. "Mr. Baldwin was fighting, as he was entitled to do, for a settlement which he believed to be honorable, just, and prudent, and my father accepted a settlement which he believed to be monstrously unjust and knew to be fraught with the greatest possibilities of disaster."

Because of his failing health, however, Bonar Law was forced to resign on May 19, 1923. He was succeeded three days later by Baldwin. Bonar Law died only a few months later, on Oct. 30, 1923.

LITTLE NATIONS OF EUROPE PLAN TRADE BLOC UNDER MUSSOLINI

LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—The small nations of Europe tonight turned longing eyes toward Rome and a possible economic bloc under Premier Mussolini's strong arm dictatorship as the big powers, squabbling over war debts and stabilization of currencies, threatened to impede the progress of the world economic conference.

"Should the United States, Great Britain, and France fail to point the way out of the economic morass," Emile Francqui, veteran Belgian diplomat, said tonight, "The small nations of Europe will cluster about one sole statesman capable of leadership—Mussolini.

"Il Duce is fostering sensible ideas for united action, while the great powers are talking about civilization's dropping over the abyss, but doing nothing. The small nations, crying for leadership, will follow Mussolini."

The northwestern European states—Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, and Luxembourg—took the first step ten days ago towards formation of the bloc at Stockholm, when it was decided to seek a powerful leader around whom they could gather should a stalemate develop at the economic conference.

FRANCE TO SIGN $20,000,000 TRADE PACT WITH RUSSIA

LONDON, June 13.—[(AP)—A 400,000,000 franc [$20,000,000] trade agreement between France and soviet Russia is on the verge of being concluded.

Negotiations started recently in Paris are continuing between the French and Russian delegations to the world economic conference, it was understood on high authority, and only a few minor details remain to be ironed out.

The French are offering a credit scheme by which the government will insure French producers payment of 70 per cent for all purchases made in France. The French hope in return to obtain something on the pre-revolutionary Russian debt to France, but this, it was stated, is a secondary consideration.

FRENCH PREMIER MAY SEE HITLER AND MUSSOLINI

PARIS, June 14.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Meetings between Premier Daladier and Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy were reported today as likely to be arranged in the near future.

The newspaper Echo De Paris said the French premier plans soon to see the other government chiefs separately, perhaps before the French parliament ratifies the four power peace pact.

HERRIOT'S PAPER ATTACKS U. S. ON DEBT QUESTION

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, June 13.—L'Ere Nouvelle, a newspaper with which former Premier Edouard Herriot is closely associated, today delivered a sharp attack against the United States on the debt question. The article indicates that Herriot has changed his mind about the desirability of making the payment due last Dec. 15. It is reported that Herriot will soon write an article setting forth such a change in his views.

Another former premier, Pierre Laval, reiterated last night his opposition to any further debt payments. This morning the chamber of deputies met and adjourned at noon until Thursday without a word about debts being spoken. This afternoon the same thing happened in the senate.

In official quarters it was stated that no decision had been taken regarding Thursday's installment. The press unanimously opposes making a payment. From every direction it is indicated that France will default again.

Red Paper Assails Parley; Calls It 'Thieves' Kitchen'

LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—Newsboys selling the Daily Worker, a communist organ, appeared outside the world economic conference building today bearing big headlines which read: "King Opens Thieves' Kitchen." In the paper's account of the conference Prime Minister MacDonald was scored because he had taken the stand that only "capitalist" solutions of the crisis were possible.

FRENCH CLAIM U. S. LOSES FIGHT FOR TARIFF TRUCE

Say Money Stabilization Will Come Up First.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 13.—Secretary of State Hull, chairman of the American delegation to the world economic conference, has abandoned his project of submitting to the conference at the first opportunity a resolution for an effective tariff truce by all nations of the world. This was asserted by the French delegation tonight. The principal American hopes for success of the conference had been built on a world tariff truce.

The Americans will content themselves, it was said, with allowing Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain to read an official recommendation to all nations represented at the conference to observe the terms of the present temporary truce, which has been accepted by only a few of the nations, as long as the London discussions continue. No one, however, will be bound by the chairman's recommendation.

Bitter Pill for Americans.

In French circles it is realized that this is an extremely bitter pill for the Americans to swallow. It is hinted that a tough fight was put up before the Americans agreed to forget about the resolution which they announced last week they were going to introduce.

It is suggested that later on in the conference the question of embodying the truce recommendation in a formal resolution will come up and it may then be possible to do something.

Assuming that the French information is correct, this means that the United States has been forced to abandon its original position and to accept the French thesis that currencies should be stabilized before tariffs are discussed. The French have been threatening to quit the conference cold unless immediate action was taken for currency stabilization.

French Find Several Faults.

The French have a number of technical faults to find with the resolution for a tariff truce proposed by Mr. Hull, but their biggest objection is that such a truce would not mean anything as long as currencies are fluctuating. Consequently, it is considered likely that they are willing to concede a point and negotiate for a truce later after they have been given satisfaction in regard to currencies.

Thanks to the innocuous recommendation which MacDonald will offer, the question will remain on the agenda of the conference, but discussion of it can be effectively blocked until an agreement on stabilization of the dollar has been effected.

The Americans were forced to give in on the tariff truce or will be forced to if they have not already given up the fight, as the French think they have—due to the fact that only 15 of the 66 nations at the conference adhered to the one now in existence, and one of the original signatories, France, is now flatly refusing to renew its pledge under the circumstances.

Under such circumstances, bodily rejection of the American proposal is inevitable, and this would virtually preclude a possibility of an eventual agreement.

See U. S. Envoys Blocked.

In the opinion of French observers, the American delegation is blocked at every point either by political restrictions at home or by the concerted opposition of European powers. Some French newspaper men tonight were even inquiring if Mr. Hull was not going to resign.

The French are following the evolution of the war debt question with keen interest, but apparently they do not intend to take any initiative in this regard. Nothing has happened to change their decision to maintain their repudiation of this debt.

If the United States weakens before the concerted European drive to force a discussion of the war debts on the margin of the conference, the whole French position will be changed. The French appear, however, to be willing to let the British take the lead in the debt question.

20 COLLEGE STUDENT PACIFISTS EXPELLED FOR R. O. T. C. DISORDER

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Twenty students were expelled from the College of the City of New York today as a result of the disorder on May 28 when Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, the president, armed with an umbrella, fought his way through a crowd of militantly pacifistic collegians attempting to bar him from the Lewisohn stadium, where a review of the reserve officers' training corps was being held.

The faculty, in ordering the expulsions, acted on the recommendation of a special committee appointed to investigate the affair.

In addition to the expulsions, the faculty suspended eight other students until January, 1934, and suspended three more indefinitely pending further investigation.

THREE CAPTIVES IDENTIFIED IN 53 STORE HOLDUPS

Managers and clerks of dozens of chain grocery stores which have been robbed in recent weeks attended the police showup of prisoners at the detective bureau last night. Before them were paraded 168 men. From the lot the managers and clerks picked out three, but this trio was identified as having been involved in 53 holdups.

The accused are Martin Newton, 31 years old, 1337 Crilly court; Walter Smith, 39 years old, 1000 West Madison street, and Alex Podgorny, 25 years old. Newton was pointed out as the holdup man who shot and wounded Miss Marie Dazillique, manager of a National Tea company store at 3624 West North avenue, on May 18.

Sergt. Timothy O'Connell and his detective bureau squad arrested the three men while they were riding in the automobile they used in fleeing from their robberies. Their total loot in the 53 holdups was $2,500.

Steals $25,000 in Valuable Pipes and Fine Tobacco

New York, June 13.—(AP)—A discriminating burglar stole $25,000 worth of valuable pipes, fine cigars and tobacco and jewelry from a Fifth avenue tobacco shop before dawn today. The theft was discovered when the store was opened this morning, but the amount of the loss was not ascertained until employés completed taking inventory hours later. The burglar took only straight grain briar pipes ranging in price from $35 to $65 apiece and the best in stock of the other articles.

23 Are Graduated at Mundelein College.

The University of Chicago awarded 825 diplomas at the 173d convocation held yesterday in the university chapel. Advanced and professional degrees were conferred on 321 students in the morning, and 504 students received bachelor's degrees in the afternoon.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the United States Supreme court. Prof. Harry A. Bigelow of the law school, who presented Justice Cardozo, said that the honor was given in "recognition of his achievements as judge, as a legal scholar, and as a leader in the adaption of the law to social needs."

Mrs. Mabel Cox Vanderlip, wife of Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker, received a bachelor's degree for the completion of studies started in 1899. Mrs. Vanderlip qualified for the degree by correspondence work. Mrs. Vanderlip is a former Chicago girl.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of Chicago, conferred degrees on 23 young woman graduates of Mundelein college, 6363 Sheridan road.

The Catholic Girls' band of Chicago met Bishop Sheil at Sheridan road and Devon avenue and escorted the procession of faculty, students, and alumnae to the auditorium.

After a short program by the college orchestra and the glee club the candidates were presented by the Very Rev. Robert M. Kelley, president of Loyola university.

Graduated at Law College.

Eighty-eight students of the Kent College of Law were graduated on Monday evening at exercises held in the Goodman theater. Dean Webster H. Burke presented diplomas to 81 students who received the degree of bachelor of law. Seven other students received masters' degrees.

Dallman to Be Named for Internal Revenue Post

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Senator Dieterich [Dem., Ill.] said today W. Y. Dallman, editor of the Illinois Register, would be recommended for collector of internal revenue at Springfield. He was named by President Roosevelt last week to the board of mediation, but has declined that position and indicated a preference for the revenue collector's post.

HUTCHINS ADVISORY CHAIRMAN FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT BOARD

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins today announced the appointment of President Robert Hutchins of the University of Chicago as chairman of the advisory committee to be set up in connection with the new federal employment service.

Senator R. F. Wagner of New York and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and President Henry I. Harriman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States also have been invited.

Miss Perkins described the new service being set up in conformance with the Wagner bill passed recently as "aiming at the complete organization of the labor market so that we will know where the idle people are and where the jobs are."

The secretary said twenty states already had made known their intention to coöperate. The federal agency will first endeavor to establish coördination between the twenty-four states that now have employment services and later turn to setting up organizations in those states where there is none now.

JUSTICE CARDOZO COMMENDS RISE OF PROFESSORIAT

Philosophers Are Coming Into Own, He Says.

The professoriat at Washington found an advocate last night in Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the Supreme court of the United States, who spoke some of his views on the philosophy of law and politics at the annual banquet of alumni of the University of Chicago Law school in the Congress hotel.

In an address embellished with quotations from ancient and modern literature Justice Cardozo advanced the theory that the courts should not hold too close to tradition, but should follow the trend of the times. Without mentioning the professoriat directly, he indicated that in his opinion the members of President Roosevelt's brain trust were pursuing such a course and that "the professors had come into their own."

Grateful to University.

In his opening remarks, Justice Cardozo expressed appreciation for the degree of doctor of laws, which President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago conferred upon him yesterday. Members of the university's law school faculty were prominent among those who urged appointment of Mr. Cardozo to the Supreme court by former President Hoover upon the retirement of the great liberal jurist, Justice Oliver Wendell Homes, sixteen months ago.

"Before coming here this evening, I spent a good many moments trying to think of a theme for my address," Justice Cardozo said. "It was a difficult decision, for almost everything interesting is barred as indiscreet if one is a judge. I was minded, however, of a scholarly address in which your president a few weeks ago defended the thesis that professors are sometimes right.

"Professors Coming Into Own."

"In these troubled times, the professors are coming into their own. Professors are philosophers. The trouble with the law and the judges is they are lacking in any coherent and articulate philosophy. What is true in jurisprudence is true also in government.

"We have put our faith in practical men, and see where they have brought us. I am not espousing the theory that all professors are supermen. I can say this: 'They have lived in the world of ideas. If any power can help us, it is the power of the mind, the power of constructive thought.'

"Quoting from one of the philosophical writers: 'I prefer to put my faith in men who have looked further than a pace ahead; I prefer to trust those who have lifted their eyes to the stars.'"

Getting back, as he expressed it, "from the stars to earth," Justice Cardozo asked his audience of lawyers what opinion they had of the judges. It was, he explained, a mere rhetorical question, and he would not pause to hear their answers. In practice before the bar in his younger days, he said, he had entertained the view that the judges were a "cocksure" class, and was often provoked to wonder how they could be so certain he was wrong in cases where he was certain he was right.

"But a brief experience on the bench enabled me to supply the answer," he said. "The answer is that they were not so sure. It was only that they had established a rule that their predecessors should decide their cases for them, thus relieving them of responsibility for using their own minds."

Justice Cardozo compared such procedure to the meaningless, profitless, and purely instinctive tolling of a hill of ants who, according to a biologist he quoted, were laboring from birth to death merely to preserve "the smell of ancestry." The wiser and more courageous course, he thought, would be to keep abreast of the changing times and hold to a forward view.

Changes in Washington.

"There have been such changes in environment in the last four months at Washington," he pointed out. "You lawyers might think that in a given case you have your rules pinned down in the books like a butterfly in a glass case, but you discover that the pins don't hold and the butterfly flits away."

"Our quest is the good life," Justice Cardozo concluded. "Only insofar as we can be hopeful in that quest is there any reason for our existence as men, or as lawyers."

The justice was introduced by Prof. Harry A. Bigelow, dean of the law school. Attorney Dwight P. Green, member of the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, and president of the alumni, presided as toastmaster. Attorney Charles McElroy was nominated and elected president to succeed Mr. Green.

ROOSEVELT HAS SET SOUVENIR PEN MARK IN SIGNING BILLS

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—In the special session, President Roosevelt has set a souvenir pen record.

Many Presidents have followed the custom of signing important bills with a pen to be preserved by some one or other because of its historic significance. Some have used two or three.

Mr. Roosevelt sometimes has used six or eight, signing the first name, with one, the middle initial with another, the last name with a third. When he manages to use eight pens in a single signature, the last one is used just to cross the "T."

He has thus passed out three or four dozen historic pens already.

Senate Clashes with the President.

ing that Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, was waiting for congress to adjourn before announcing that his country would pay only 10 per cent of the June 15 installment on the British war debt to America.

The discussion also included pointed references to the fact that Secretary of State Hull, head of the American delegation, had delayed making his opening statement explaining this country's attitude.

As far as the strictly legislative situation is concerned, the disagreement over the modification of the President's program of veterans' cuts is the only obstacle to a conclusion of the special session.

Three resolutions seeking to amend the reorganization order which the President sent to congress last Saturday still were pending. But senate leaders were ready to cut in ahead of them with a motion to adjourn as soon as the veterans question is settled.

President Threatens Veto.

Throughout the day, negotiations proceeded between President Roosevelt and senate leaders. The President stated flatly to them that he would veto the whole measure, rather than concede any further curtailment of his economy program.

Following an all day wait, while the senate disposed of the industrial, banking, and deficiency bills, the veterans' dispute came to the floor. On behalf of the conferees, Senator Byrnes presented a report recommending concurrence on all but the one main disputed point.

House Backs Roosevelt.

That point represented, on the one hand, the house conferees, standing firmly with President Roosevelt behind them, for the compromise program agreed upon last Saturday between the President and themselves. This compromise would amend veterans' cuts in the economy act by decreasing the original 460 millions of savings by approximately 100 millions.

On the other hand, stood the veterans' advocates in the senate, insisting that the compromise program be abandoned in favor of an amendment proposed by Senators Bronson Cutting [Rad., N. M.] and Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.]. The Steiwer-Cutting amendment, by placing the burden of proof on the government in cases of presumptive service connected disabilities and by other changes, would decrease the savings in veterans' benefits by 135 instead of 100 millions.

What President Concedes.

The most that President Roosevelt would concede, according to word brought back by the visitors to the White House was to incorporate in the compromise amendment the promise sent in a letter to congress last Saturday, to deal more liberally with Spanish-American veterans. The compromise amendment omitted mention of Spanish-American war pensions.

As a result of the omission lobbyists for the Spanish-American veterans have outdone even the American Legion lobbyists in demanding that they be taken care of.

Days ago, when the measure was in the senate for passage, Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.] succeeded in having written into it a provision for the use of 1 million dollars to give hospitalization to the nonservice cases which were denied free government treatment by the President's economy orders. The conference report recommended that the amendment be eliminated.

The Alabama senator seized upon the recommendation to demand that the report be rejected.

Senator Byrnes said the authorization for care of nonservice cases would go beyond the appropriation. To care for such cases, he pointed out, would require from 30 to 40 million dollars and restore the former evil system. The majority refused to listen.

HOW SENATE VOTED DOWN COMPROMISE ON VETERANS' BILL

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Party lines were broken when the senate today voted on the veterans' benefit bill. The issue was on one section of the independent offices bill. The house had accepted President Roosevelt's compromise proposal and the senate made great increases over the compromise, adding millions to the cost. House and senate conferees disagreed and the bill went back to the senate. In the vote today those voting to recommit stood for higher payments. Those against the motion were upholding Mr. Roosevelt.

INDUSTRIAL BILL GETS FINAL O. K. BY SENATE VOTE

Wins by Narrow Margin of 46 to 39.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—The senate late this afternoon gave its final approval to the administration's industry control public works bill by the narrow margin of 46 to 39. It now requires only the President's signature to make it law.

There was bitter debate before the senate by the narrow margin of seven votes, approved the conference report on the bill with its radical plan for federal supervision of American industry, its huge public works program, and its 220 million dollar schedule of new taxes.

No less than 15 Democrats, representing the radical wing of the majority party, voted against the measure. They were joined by 23 Republicans, who found themselves—conservatives and radicals — for once united.

Five Republican Votes.

It was five Republican votes—those of Senators Barbour of New Jersey, Capper of Kansas, Davis of Pennsylvania, and McNary and Steiwer of Oregon — that put the measure through.

The union of conservative and radical strength against agreeing to the conference report was a strong one. On the part of the conservatives it represented a protest at the regimentation of American industry under a Washington dictator.

On the part of the radicals it was a protest at the cancellation of the anti-trust laws for the two year period in which the act is to be in effect in all cases where the statutes against monopolies and restraint of trade conflict with the trade and industrial codes to tbe drawn up under the new law.

Protest Fate of Amendments.

On the part of the radicals it was also a protest at the treatment received in conference committee by the Borah amendment restricting the interference with the anti-trust laws, the La Follette amendment for income tax publicity, and the Clark amendment for the taxation of federal, state, and municipal securities now tax exempt.

Loud and bitterly Senator William E. Borah [rad., Idaho], Robert M. La Follette [rad., Wis.], and Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] complained over what the senate conferees had done to their amendments.

Senator Borah was protesting the bill's abrogation of the anti-trust laws, but did not confine himself to the amendment. Aggressively he attacked the program for federal regulation of American industries.

"Shades of Stalin!" he exclaimed as he told his colleagues that the program contemplated in the bill meant that every industry in the country would be inspected and audited to ascertain its cost of production, every industry censored to see that it did not sell below cost of production.

The Idaho senator's amendment sought to preserve the anti-trust laws and originally specified that trade codes should not permit restraint of trade and price fixing. But in conference these specifications were stricken out and the amendment made merely to prohibit "monopolies or monopolistic practices," leaving the interpretation of these terms to be determined by the administrator of the act.

Attacks Production Cost Features.

He attacked the requirement that no industry be allowed to sell below a cost of production to be ascertained and fixed by the administrator.

"The cost of production fixed in these codes will be fixed by the great producers organized for efficiency," he said. "It means that the smaller producers will be unable to meet the price and if they continue to produce they will be violating the code and will go to jail."

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., New York], one of the authors and chief sponsors of the bill, protested that Senator Borah had misunderstood. A general cost of production was not to be fixed for a whole industrial group, he explained; the bill meant, he said, that each industry was to be required not to sell below its own cost of production.

The answer suited Senator Borah's purpose even better. He pictured the impossible task of sending accountants into every firm in the United States so that the administrator in Washington might know individual production costs

Attacks Principle of Measure.

Then he continued his attack on the whole principle of the measure, pointing out the power to be given to Brig. Gen. Hugh Johnson, who is to be the administrator.

"Do the senators realize the power to be given one individual over all the industries, all the energies, all the brain power of the people of the United States in every activity of life?" he demanded.

The proponents of the measure have never been able to explain satisfactorily how the cost of production provisions would work, asserted Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.]. As a member of the finance committee which passed on the bill, he said, he had asked for an explanation and had first been told one thing and then another.

Roll Call on Motion.

Provisions of Industries Bill

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—The industrial recovery bill upon which congressional action was completed today is intended to provide jobs for thousands of idle men and inject new life into sluggish industry.

These are the main features of the measure:

Gives President Roosevelt and his administrators wide power to promote self-regulation of industry under federal supervision as a means of curtailing overproduction, improving wages, shortening hours and thus increasing prices and employment;

Authorize a $3,300,000,000 bond issue to finance construction of federal, state, local and public benefiting private projects to create new employment;

Invests the President with authority to work out codes of fair competition to be accepted by industry voluntarily, with additional power for the chief executive to compel adoption of the codes and subject violators to a $500 fine;

Provides the President with power to license an industry so as to force unwilling minorities into line;

Provides New Taxes.

The bond issue will require $220,000,000 annually for financing. To meet this cost the following new taxes are provided:

A tax of one-tenths of one per cent on corporation net worth, with a 5 per cent additional assessment on earnings above 12½ per cent; a 5 per cent tax on corporation dividends to be deducted at the source; an increase of ⅛ cent in the present gasoline tax; three year extension of corporation consolidation return authority with increase of 1 per cent in income tax rate on consolidated returns, instead of the present ¾ of one per cent.

Extends for one year, also, all special excise taxes voted by last congress and makes administrative changes in the tax law to prevent carrying over into subsequent years stock and bond losses which exceeded the gains in the year in which they occur. These apply to both corporations and individuals.

Provides for publicity for income tax returns under regulations to be drawn by the President.

Not less than $400,000,000 of the total public works money will be granted outright to the states for roads with no strings attached, seven-eighths to be allotted on the basis of existing law calling for apportionment on the basis of one-third each for road mileage now existing, area and population, and the remaining eighth on the basis of population.

Public Works Program.

The public works program, as finally agreed upon, stipulates no special project, but includes, among other general work, the following:

Construction repair and improvement of public highways and parkways, public buildings, conservation and development of natural resources, prevention of soil or coastal erosion, development of water power and transmission of electrical energy, river and harbors improvements and flood control.

Low cost housing and slum clearance projects, dry docks, naval vessels permitted under the London treaty, heavier than aircraft and technical construction for the army air corps.

The public works administrator—the senate amendment for a board of three having been eliminated—would be empowered to make grants to states and municipalities for construction and improvement projects up to 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials.

The president is authorized to institute proceedings before the tariff commission and to embargo or limit imports where they interfere with the purposes of the act in raising wages and prices.

It also authorizes $100,000,000 for distribution by the farm relief administrators.

APOLOGIZES FOR SPEECH BEFORE THE SENATE

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Senator Reynolds of North Carolina made public apology in the senate today for inserting in the Congressional Record a speech which he said he had not read and found out later reflected on Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, and Mr. Reynolds' colleague, Senator Bailey.

Mr. Reynolds said he had been "humiliated and embarrassed" by the incident and had the speech expunged from the Record.

He said the address was made by Morris Beale of this city and formerly of his state, at the convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars at High Point, N. C., and was handed to him for insertion in the Record. He had it inserted.

GLASS BANK BILL PASSES; PUT UP TO PRESIDENT

Carries Deposit Insurance and Other Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—The Glass-Steagall bank reform bill, with its deposit insurance plan and other far reaching innovations in the national banking structure, swept through both houses of congress today and tonight needed only the signature of President Roosevelt to become a law.

Tonight President Roosevelt called up Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] by telephone and congratulated him on the approval of his bill, calling it "the best piece of banking legislation since the reserve board act."

The bill's passage came with surprising swiftness and without a roll call in either the house or senate. On a division vote in the lower body the count was 191 to 6. In the senate the bill was approved unanimously.

Filibuster Threat Dropped.

The threatened filibuster by Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] and Huey Long [Rad., La.] failed to materialize. Both senators announced that their objections to the bill had been met by the inclusion of ten words in the conference committee's report.

These words, Senator Vandenberg explained, give President Roosevelt discretionary authority to invoke the temporary guarantee provisions of the Vandenberg amendment immediately if the situation requiring it should arise.

Insured After Jan. 1, 1934.

Although the conference committee altered his amendment to provide that the temporary plan for deposit insurance should not become operative until Jan. 1, 1934, he pointed out, in reality the date remained unimportant in view of the power given to the President.

But it was Senator Glass who viewed the passage of the measure with most satisfaction, representing as it did the victorious end of his two year fight to enact permanent bank reform legislation. Of him and his efforts Senator Frederick C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.] said, following the senate action on the bill:

"I have never in my life seen a man with as much wisdom, tact, courage, resourcefulness, and fighting spirit to carry out a task to which he had set himself."

Must Be Supervised.

In addition to providing for the divorcement of commercial banks and their securities affiliates within one year, the bill prohibits private banking houses from accepting deposits unless they are supervised under state or federal law and will submit to examination by federal banking authorities.

The bill provides likewise that no officer of an institution engaged in the handling of securities may be an officer of a member bank and that no member bank may act as correspondent for such an institution. Since the measure aims at the unification of state and national banking systems by 1936, this provision will then exclude any person affiliated with the securities business from holding office in a commercial bank.

Guarantee Provisions.

A 500 million dollar federal corporation, governed by a board of three members, is to be set up by subscription by the federal reserve banks, the government, and banks participating in the guarantee fund. On Jan. 1, 1934, unless ordered sooner by presidential proclamation, the corporation will insure the deposits of its member banks up to $2,500. On July 1, 1934, a permanent schedule for bank deposit insurance will go into effect, under which deposits up to $10,000 will be guaranteed 100 per cent; the amount between $10,000 and $50,000 will be guaranteed 75 per cent, and the amount in excess of $50,000 will be guaranteed 50 per cent. State nonmember banks, under the compromise version of the bill, may participate in the fund upon certification of their state banking authorities, examination by federal authorities and the payment of the same fees as will be levied on member banks. But after Jan. 1, 1936, they will be dropped unless they have made application for membership in the reserve system.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS 2 BILLION HOME LOAN MEASURE

Urges Mortgage Holders to Halt Foreclosures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt today signed the home owners loan act setting up a 2 billion 200 million dollar corporation for home mortgage relief.

"The act extends the same principle of relief to home owners as we have already extended to farm owners," the President explained after signing the act. The administration already has set up a farm credit administration to care for farm mortgages and to aid the financing of crops.

The President coupled with the signing of the act an appeal to mortgage holders to desist from foreclosures until the new credit relief agency can begin functioning.

Text of Appeal.

"I appeal to mortgage creditors and all others who have claims against home owners and ask them, until full opportunity has been given to make effective the refinancing provisions of the home mortgage act, that they abstain from bringing foreclosure proceedings and that they abstain from seeking to dispossess the home owners who are in debt to them," the President said. "Coöperation between the officials of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, the mortgagor, and the mortgagees during the next few months," the President affirmed, "will make many foreclosures unnecessary and will do substantial justice to all concerned."

Under a new act a three fold attack on the home mortgage problem will be possible, according to William F. Stevens, chairman of the home loan bank board. Exchange of mortgages for Home Loan corporation bonds, cash refinancing or new cash loans may be worked out under the act.

Explain Measure.

The first of these plans involves the trading of a mortgage by the person who hold it for a Home Loan corporation bond, the interest on which is guaranteed by the government. When the refinanced mortgage is turned over to the Home Loan corporation, the mortgagee may have a three year extension on principal repayments. His interest rate will be 5 per cent.

"In addition to this refunding of mortgages up to 80 per cent of their value," Chairman Stevenson explains, "the law provides for making loans in cash on homes not otherwise encumbered for the payment of accrued taxes, assessments, necessary repairs, and maintenance, but not exceeding 50 per cent of value.

Loans Up to 40 Per Cent.

"Moreover, loans are authorized to take up mortgages in cash when the owner of the mortgage will not accept bonds, and the owner can not obtain funds elsewhere in ordinary lending channels, and such loans shall be carried at a 6 per cent interest rate and paid off, principal and interest, over a 15 year period. Loans can not exceed 40 per cent of the value of the property."

Regional agencies of the Refinancing corporation have not yet been set up, but preliminary dealings may be handled through the home loan banks. Application blanks and regulations are being prepared.

The corporation will obtain its funds through a grant of 200 million dollars out of the treasury in the form of a capital stock purchase and the floating of 2 billion dollars' worth of securities.

TWO ENGINEERS ARE BEING CONSIDERED TO HEAD PUBLIC WORKS

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Two prominent engineers, L. W. Roberts Jr., assistant secretary of the treasury, and Col. George R. Spalding, director of federal projects on the Illinois, Mississippi, and Missouri rivers, are being considered to take charge of President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program.

Col. Spalding is already at work on the preliminary organization for the public works program, and Assistant Secretary Roberts, who directs the public building work of the treasury, has launched the treasury's share of the work.

Selection of one of these two men to take over the whole public works outlay was considered certain tonight. The task consists mainly of coördinating the construction already going on in various government departments including naval construction, public buildings and roads.

URGES BUILDING OF WATERWORKS WITH U. S. FUNDS

A recommendation that a large part of the $3,300,000,000 public works construction fund authorized by congress should go for the building of municipal waterworks was made yesterday by Willard T. Chevalier, publishing director of the Engineering News-Record. Mr. Chevalier spoke before the American Waterworks association at the Hotel Sherman.

Such works, he said, usually are productive of income and should be eligible to substantial loans from the government.

"A public pay roll is needed to place business on its feet again," said Mr. Chevalier. "We cannot expect private industry to reemploy all the men who have been laid off. Buying power must be furnished at the start, and with public funds."

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK U. S. POWER CHIEF TO QUIT

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Congressional leaders have been informed that President Roosevelt plans to ask George Otis Smith for his resignation as chairman of the federal power commission.

EXPENDITURES UP $300,000 A DAY UNDER PRESIDENT

1½ Billion Spent Since March 4.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—The government's daily average of expenditures has jumped from $13,900,000 to $14,200,000 since the Roosevelt administration took office, treasury department records revealed today.

During the 102 days that it has been in control, the new administration has spent 1 billion 446 million dollars, according to the treasury figures, increasing by $300,000 a day the average rate of government spending.

Adopt Mills' Device.

President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Woodin have used a device set up by Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, to sidetrack most of their expenditures around the ordinary budget and thus of preventing sharp rises in the deficit. They have chalked up 484 million dollars of their spending up to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which is carried in a separate account.

The Democratic administration has poured out an average of $4,700,000 each day through the R. F. C., compared with a daily average of $3,100,000 established by their Republican predecessors. These expenditures are not added to ordinary outlays on the theory that they are self-liquidating and, consequently, they do not cause the deficit to rise.

Doesn't Appear in Budget.

Using this back door route for spending money without further unbalancing the budget, the administration has provided that most of its new disbursing agencies shall draw their money through the R. F. C. Thus the new relief administration has doled out about 36 millions without having a cent of it show up in the ordinary budget.

This rerouting of expenditures has enabled the new administration to decrease the average of ordinary expenditures. They have spent 962 millions through the ordinary budget in 102 days, compared with 2 billion 618 millions spent by the Republicans in the preceding 243 days. This decrease has been more than offset, however, by the heavier activities of the R. F. C.

MATTERN HOPS BACK TO SIBERIA; FIGHTS STORMS

World Flyer's Attempt to Reach Alaska Fails.

MOSCOW, June 13.—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern backtracked on his globe girdling flight and unexpectedly landed at Khabarovsk today eight hours and five minutes after he had left that Siberian town for Nome, Alaska.

The Texan returned to Khabarovsk at 6:20 a. m. Moscow time [10:20 p. m. Monday Chicago daylight saving time]. No reason was given as to why he suddenly reversed his direction. But it was generally supposed he had bucked into stiff headwinds and heavy weather and found it impossible to make Nome safely.

Weather Reports Bad.

He had left Khabarovsk at 10:15 p. m. Moscow time [2:15 p. m. Chicago time] Monday. Weather reports at the time warned of heavy weather ahead, particularly in the region of Kamchatka peninsula, northeast of his starting point.

The Khabarovsk to Nome leg of Mattern's projected around the world solo flight is 2,500 miles long, largely over water.

Mattern's return to the Siberian town marked the third forced landing he has made on his solo adventure. He first was brought down at Byelaya, in central Siberia, by a faulty gas line. Next he lost his way while trying to reach Khabarovsk and came down at Sofisk for directions.

Await Favorable Weather.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 13.—Gen. Italo Balbo's 96 eaglets—as the prospective trans-Atlantic flyers are now being called by Orbetello fishermen—stood by today waiting for a favorable flash on ice conditions in Sandwich bay, Labrador. Today being the 13th, no airman could have been induced to leave on such a date, but on the first favorable weather signal after today the 24 flying boats will be off for A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

A heavy rain drenched the whole section of this coast this morning, but when that ceased around noon feverish activities were started around the airport. All afternoon the 1,600 horsepower motors on the planes roared and spluttered.

Balbo Returns from Rome.

Eight seaplanes were afloat tonight at 6 o'clock all set to go and all were charged with a full quota of gas and oil and iron rations. Others were parked out in the piazza of the airport or inside their hangars. Mechanics were climbing all over them testing every wire and screw and adding final touches of grease and oil.

"When do we go?" was the question on every one's mind this evening as Gen. Balbo returned from Rome. His pilot, Col. Stefano Cagna, took off this afternoon in a trimotor plane and picked up the minister of aviation at Ostia, returning at 6 o'clock tonight. Gen. Balbo had two small suit cases, all the baggage apparently he will take with him on the hop to Lake Michigan.

U. S. Flyers Reach Goal.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, June 13.—(AP)—Dirty, tired and sleepless, Capt. J. Errol Boyd and two companions arrived here today from St. Marc, Haiti, where they were forced down last night by motor trouble, on their long oversea hop from New York.

Port Au Prince was their goal in a scheduled nonstop flight of 2,471 miles. With Boyd were Robert G. Lyon, his co-pilot and H. P. Davis, author-observer.

Boyd said they had had a hard trip with much bad weather and headwinds which reached a velocity of about 50 miles an hour over Cuba. They were buffeted by tropical rains part of the way, he said. Davis said Boyd made a perfect landing at St. Marc after the engine of their plane died near St. Marc.

LAIRD GETS HIS ENTRY IN FOR TRIBUNE RACES

BY HUGH SEXTON.

E. M. [Matty] Laird, the Chicago bank teller who became Chicago's outstanding airplane designer and built two of the fastest racing planes in the United States, got under the wire yesterday as the first entrant in the American air races, to be staged at Chicago airport July 1, 2, 3, and 4, under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Several other entries were received by mail.

Laird already has a place on the program of the air races as the pilot of the Solution racing plane, in which he will attempt to set a new world's land plane speed record over a one mile course. The record attempts will be made each day of the races. If the record is broken the first day Laird hopes to better his mark on the succeeding days. He is confident the plane will fly more than 300 miles an hour.

Enters Stock Model Event.

Yesterday Laird entered one of his biplanes, powered by a Wasp motor, in the race for stock model airplanes with motors of unlimited cubic inch displacement. This race is scheduled for July 4 and is expected to be one of the fastest events of the four day spectacle. The race is for a purse of $1,300.

Laird built the Solution racer which won the Thompson trophy race here in 1930, and the Super Solution racer which won the Bendix transcontinental race in 1931. He will fly the former racer, which has been rebuilt with 100 miles an hour added to its top speed, in his assaults on the world record.

Builds His First Plane.

While an assistant paying teller in the First National bank, Laird became interested in flying. He bought some castoff airplane parts and built his first plane in 1918, flying it for the first time two years later. He was a pioneer of the fuselage type of design.

In 1925 he quit his bank job and barnstormed the middle west with Katherine Stinson and Art Smith. During the war he was a civilian instructor in the air corps and was injured in a crash at San Antonio, Tex., while flying an experimental type plane. After the war he began to design commercial planes, producing the Swallow, which was the forerunner of modern open biplanes.

FINED FOR SHORT WEIGHT.

Rudolph Harsch, 811 Bradley place, was fined $25 yesterday by Judge J. Dunne on a charge of giving short weights. He was formerly a manager for a chain store concern, but was discharged by the company.

OCEAN FLYERS EAGER TO VISIT CHICAGO FAIR

Seek Permission to Hop to United States.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, June 13.—The two Spanish army flyers, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, who landed in Cuba Sunday on their record breaking Atlantic flight, today expressed their appreciation of an invitation extended them by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago to visit A Century of Progress Exposition.

The flyers said, however, that acceptance would depend upon permission from the Spanish army chief of staff. The two airmen will fly to Mexico City later in the week.

Anxious to See Chicago.

"We accept in principle Chicago's invitation," the flyers said in a statement tonight. "Mayor Kelly's invitation makes us feel still more enthusiastic about a proposed flight to the United States.

"When we left Seville the army set Mexico City as the terminus of our flight, but we planned to ask the government, if we succeeded in reaching the western hemisphere, for permission to visit the leading middle western and eastern cities of the United States. We are anxious to see Chicago and her World's Fair.

"As good will emissaries we cannot conceive of returning home without personally having the honor of carrying a good will message to the United States. We have every confidence that the army will grant our request.

Plan Return Flight.

"We wish to send Mayor Kelly through the columns of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE our thanks and appreciation for his invitation. If permission is granted we will fly from Mexico to Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and thence nonstop to Seville.

"Ambassador Luciano Ferrer has already forwarded to Madrid the Chicago invitation and our plans for extending the flight to the United States. Chicago was the first city to invite us to the United States and we greatly appreciate it."

Flying Forecast

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 11 p. m., June 13, to noon, June 14 [C. S. T.]:

Chicago-Twin Cities—Generally clear.

Chicago-Omaha and Kansas City—Generally clear.

Route forecasts for 12 hours ending at noon:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 13.—Maurice Rogel and Paul Codos, famous French flyers, will sail for the United States tomorrow with their plane to prepare for an attempt to break the world's record for a nonstop, straight line flight. They plan to take off at Floyd Bennett field, New York, but may change their starting point to Chicago or Detroit.

The flight route will depend largely on weather conditions, Rossi said today. They may take the northern route over the Atlantic followed by Jimmie Mattern on his 'round the world flight, or they may strike for central Europe or the Persian gulf.

The flyers will arrive in New York on June 21. Their plane is the 500 horsepower monoplane in which Rossi and Lucien Bossoutrot established the world's closed circuit distance record at Oran in 1931 by remaining in the air 75 hours 23 minutes. They covered a distance of 5,470 miles.

Oregon Mayor Sends Roses by Plane to Mayor Kelly

A bouquet of roses from the Portland, Ore., Festival of Roses yesterday was presented to Mayor Kelly with a message of felicitation from Mayor G. J. Baker of Portland. The roses were delivered to Mayor Kelly by Miss Agnes Hurt, stewardess on a United Air Lines passenger plane which arrived in Chicago from Portland shortly before noon.

MRS. ROOSEVELT REACHES HOME AFTER AIR TRIP

First Lady Explains That Ferguson Incident.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, home today from her famous fast airplane trip to California, was immediately asked about the two incidents of that trip that had made news—her son Elliott's forthcoming divorce and "Ma" Ferguson's wounded feelings.

The divorce she regards as a purely personal matter between her son and his wife and so she would not discuss its details. But she did say that Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt and baby Sara would carry out their original plan, announced long before the divorce story broke, of spending part of the summer at the Roosevelt home at Campo Bello. Some of the time young Mrs. Roosevelt will be visiting the parents of the husband she soon is to divorce; some of the time she will be guest of friends at a nearby cottage.

"No Political Significance."

A newspaper dispatch that her daughter-in-law was on her way from her father's Philadelphia home to the White House was news to her, but she said, with emphasis, "I shall be delighted to see her if she can come."

As to the "Ma" Ferguson incident, it had "absolutely no political significance," she declared.

Referring to the scene at the Dallas airport when Mrs. James Ferguson, the turbulent Texas governor, and her husband were all set to pose for cameras with the President's wife, and, so goes the story, stamped away in anger when the lady from Washington declined to get in the picture with them, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"I certainly did not mean to be discourteous, and I am surprised if Mrs. Ferguson felt that I was."

It wasn't politics but hunger that caused the incident, Mrs. Roosevelt maintained.

How It Happened.

She had posed for "hundreds of pictures" and had finally rushed upstairs to the office of the airport for a hurried breakfast with friends when the Fergusons appeared. They declined a breakfast invitation and stopped to chat. Somebody suggested "one more picture," and Mrs. Roosevelt, she says, declined "for the time being," but said she would be willing to have the cameras click after breakfast.

But after breakfast the Fergusons had gone. The next Mrs. Roosevelt knew of the incident was when the newspapers' headlines met her at the next stop of the plane.

Will See Son Graduate.

Why did she, then, pose with Gov. White of Ohio on the way home? Because Gov. White was at the plane when it landed and it was all very easy and simple. There was no political discrimination, she repeated, between the governor of Texas and the governor of Ohio.

If congress is in session Thursday the President will abandon his plan to leave that night for Groton to see the graduation of his son, Franklin Jr., but in any event Mrs. Roosevelt will go to the Massachusetts town for it.

SOVIET GROUP ASKS R. F. C. MILLIONS TO BUY U. S. GOODS

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—Soviet Russia will be glad to buy American farm products, it was made known today, provided America will lend soviet Russia the money to buy them with.

Smith Wildman Brookhart, the department of agriculture's special "ambassador" to the otherwise unrecognized soviet, was disclosed today as the impresario who is trying to induce the Reconstruction Finance corporation to grant the soviet a $5,000,000 loan with which to buy American products.

In addition to Brookhart's efforts, a personal request for a loan was made to the R. F. C. by an official of the Amtorg corporation, the soviet trading corporation in New York City.

Mr. Brookhart, the former senator from Iowa, who has campaigned loudly and often for official recognition of Russia, was selected by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his farm act administrator, George N. Peek, to attempt the disposition of American farm surpluses, such as wheat and cotton, in Russia.

After conferring with soviet representatives here in Washington and with the Amtorg official in New York Brookhart was understood to have received polite assurances that the soviet would be most happy to buy American products.

The problem of financing such purchases, however, was a trying one, Brookhart was informed. It has not been revealed whether it was Mr. Brookhart or the soviet officials who first stumbled upon the idea of having the United States put up the money through the R. F. C.

The thought followed naturally after the R. F. C. had announced a $50,000,000 loan to China, for the purpose of buying American cotton and wheat. If China could borrow American money to buy American farm surpluses, why should not Russia do the same, it was argued by Brookhart.

So he went to see Jesse Jones, chairman of the R. F. C. who seemingly gave him enough encouragement so that he felt it worth while to have the Amtorg officials come down to Washington for a personal discussion of the $5,000,000 loan, probably for cotton or farm machinery.

Iowa State College Worker Found Slain in Automobile

Ames, Ia., June 13. — (AP) — Fred M. Hollingsworth, 38, storeroom assistant in the chemistry department at Iowa State college, was found slain in his automobile in the Lincoln highway four miles east of here early today.

HERE'S SENATOR WHO ESCHEWS USELESS SPEECH

Bulow Not Heard in His 2 Years in Congress.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—[Special.]—A man listening to a hound dog bay the moon will shrug his shoulders and mutter scornfully, "What a chump that dog is! Baying won't get him anywhere. But send that same gentleman to the United States senate and he'll stand up on the floor of the senate and orate for hours and never see the parallel."

And that's the reason he hasn't made a single speech during the two years he is just finishing in the halls of congress.

That's only one reason. The other is that he hates to talk to empty seats, and it's been his observation that most of the words spilled out by loquacious statesmen are wasted on desert air. The boys may do their talking on the floor of the senate, he admits. But they do their listening in the cloak room.

Can Talk if Worth While.

It isn't that Senator Bulow is a silent man. Mercy no. Back home in South Dakota they point with pride to his quips and epigrams; they beg him to speak at dinners; they hover about him for his anecdotes.

"Nope," the westerner said today, "I haven't made a speech in the senate yet. There's no sense in doing useless things. Tell me, honest now, did you ever know of a single vote that was changed by oratory? Nope, neither did I."

Then he offered this parable.

"When I was a lad I had a hound dog. Why, that cussed dog spent the best hours of his life baying the moon. Moon never paid attention, but I guess the dog thought he was doin' a lot of good."

As for talking to empty seats, Mr. Bulow doesn't think he'd find that very interesting. Some of his colleagues do, though, he believes, and he has been watching them. He watches Huey Long the most.

May Practice at Home.

"I've got a plan," he explained. "When I get back home I'm gonna go to a little schoolhouse I know. It's an abandoned schoolhouse, but it's got a lot of fine, empty seats. I can go in there and make a lot of high powered speeches, and kinda get the feel of speaking when nobody is payin' any attention."

When Mr. Bulow was inaugurated governor of his state he stepped to the platform with a lengthy document in his hand. He read two sentences; then stopped.

"I gave a copy of this address to the reporters," he drawled. "If any of you folks really want to, you can read it in the newspapers," and sat down.

SNAIL WINS DEATH BATTLE WITH SNAKE AFTER HARD STRUGGLE

Davenport, Ia., June 13.—[Special.]—A snail emerged victorious last evening after a nine hour battle with a 20 inch garter snake in a garden pool at the home of H. H. Schneckloth in Walcott.

The duel attracted a large crowd of spectators to the Schneckloth home and many were on hand when the snail fastened itself behind the snake's head and slowly killed its more powerful opponent. The snail held the upper hand throughout the fight, but was forced to engage in a terrific struggle. The snake squirmed and lashed, but was unable to escape.

After killing its victim, the snail retreated to the deeper water of the pool. The head of the reptile was inside the shell of the snail, which was about the size of a half dollar and was bleeding near the head. The shell of the snail was damaged to some extent.

AIRPLANE BRINGS $500,000 ROYAL GEMS TO CHICAGO

The famous Hammer collection of Russian imperial jewels and art objects, valued at more than $500,000, arrived at the Chicago airport from Newark, N. J., shortly before 10 o'clock last night. They were carried by an American Airways plane. As the ship landed it was met by a score of uniformed policemen.

The gems were immediately taken downtown. They will be displayed at the Marshall Field & Co. gallery during the World Fair. Miss Alva Lowry, secretary to Dr. Armand Hammer of New York, the owner of the collection, was in charge of the jewels on the trip to Chicago.

Among the objects in the collection are a gold pen, valued at $20,000; an 18th century singing bird snuff box of gold, worth $5,000; a lapis lazuli, set with emeralds and diamonds, valued at $50,000; a gold easter egg, valued at $50,000; a jade Easter egg containing miniatures of the Russian royal family, adorned with diamonds, valued at $75,000, and a green Easter egg containing a screen of military miniatures, worth $100,000. The $20,000 pen was a gift of the late Czar Nicholas to the Grand Duke George.

WITNESS TELLS OF $32,000,000 DEAL IN STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Hugh B. Baker, former president of the National City company, who authorized the purchase of 70,000 shares of National City bank stock on Oct. 29, 1929—the day of crashing prices that marked the end of the bull market era—described in the federal court today how Charles E. Mitchell, who was then his superior, received that news.

Mitchell is on trial before Judge Henry W. Goddard, charged with evading payment of $850,000 taxes on an estimated net income of $4,000,000 for 1929 and 1930. Mitchell formerly was chairman of the bank and of the National City company.

Shortly before the crash, negotiations had been carried on for the merger of the National City and the Corn Exchange banks. Baker said Mitchell was up to his ears in work when the market began to break on Oct. 23 and he was even busier the next day.

Meanwhile, Baker himself considered it advisable to "peg" National City bank stock by purchasing it in large blocks. Accordingly, he authorized the purchase of 70,000 shares, committing the company to a payment of $32,000,000.

Banker Greatly Disturbed.

When Mitchell learned of this he was "tremendously disturbed," Baker testified a bit ruefully today. Baker could not recall just what Mitchell said then, except calling the deal "unbelievable."

Under the law a bank may not borrow from another bank by putting up its own stock as collateral.

Conferences were held that afternoon and night, and again early the next day. Mitchell issued orders, according to Baker, that the National City company should purchase no more National City Bank stock for its portfolio under any circumstance.

Baker said Mitchell had decided to use his own credit in order to prevent a crash when the market opened on Oct. 30.

Seeks Loan from Morgan.

That day, after issuing orders for the purchase of several blocks of the bank's stock to protect the price at the opening, he left for a conference at J. P. Morgan's to arrange for a loan.

Later that day 28,300 shares of the bank's stock were purchased in Mitchell's name and were sent to Morgan's as security for the loan. This action, the defense contends, saved the bank and helped to stave off a disaster, possibly national in scope. Baker said he was to sell when he could without harming his company.

Mitchell Relative Taken Ill.

As the trial was resumed today, Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mitchell, announced that the defendant's brother-in-law, Joseph P. Rend of Chicago, cocnsidered an important witness for Mitchell, had suffered a heart attack and would be unable to resume the witness stand. He testified yesterday.

One of the charges against Mitchell is that he sought to defraud the government by means of a "sham" sale of 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife, Elizabeth Rend Mitchell, in December, 1929, to establish a tax loss of $2,800,000.

Through Rend's testimony by deposition Steuer hopes to prove that Mrs. Mitchell was financially able, with the resources at her disposal, to finance the purchase of the 18,300 shares.

IN SHEBOYGAN HUMAN FAITH IS UNDEFILED

Bartzen and Knaack Don't Agree on It Either.

Gustave Knaack, a mechanical engineer of Sheboygan, Wis., called on Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul and Lieut. Thomas McFarland at the detective bureau last evening and unfolded a sad tale. Although the details occurred a month back, they were very clear to him. They involved $34,000.

Early in May Mr. Knaack and a friend, Clement Bartzen, also of Sheboygan, met a gentleman by the name of H. O. Becker in a Chicago hotel following a previous meeting in Sheboygan. They had dinner with him. During the dinner Mr. Bartzen, looking under the table because Mr. Becker was kicking his foot, found a purse. It contained $70 and a card bearing the name of a Mr. Wakelin, whom the card described as a member of the New York stock exchange.

"Ah, we must return this money," said Mr. Becker. "Mr. Wakelin's a broker and may need it."

This seemed fair enough to Messrs. Bartzen and Knaack. With Mr. Becker they returned the money to the New York broker, who happened to be in the same hotel. Mr. Wakelin was grateful. He was so grateful that he gave the finders tips on the market, and by night time informed them that they were $360,000 ahead.

Then appeared one Horace Hill, white haired and dignified. He represented, he said, the Chicago market. To get their $360,000 winnings, the gentlemen must first cover with $120,000 margin, Mr. Hill explained.

They Produce $34,000.

The Sheboygan citizens, willing to do their part, went home and reappeared the next day, Mr. Bartzen with $28,000 and Mr. Knaack with $6,000, all in cash. Mr. Becker put up what looked like $40,000 and Mr. Wakelin covered the balance with a check. Then he instructed Mr. Becker to take the $120,000 margin and sell. But Mr. Becker bought. The margin was wiped out.

Mr. Wakelin was heartbroken. He swore he'd see that his Sheboygan friends wouldn't lose.

"My rich uncle in Baltimore will make this up," he promised. "You two go to Cincinnati and I'll send you a wire."

Messrs. Knaack and Bartzen went to Cincinnati. The next day they received a telegram advising them to go to Kansas City. They went to Kansas City, and received another telegram urging them to go back to Sheboygan.

Back Home to Sheboygan.

They went home to Sheboygan and got a third wire telling them that Mr. Wakelin's New York Stock exchange license had been revoked. The message was unsigned.

By this time Mr. Knaack had become suspicious. He waited until yesterday, however, to see about it.

When he finished his story, Deputy Chief Blaul and Lieut. McFarland informed him that he and Mr. Bartzen had been victims of the ancient payoff game. Then they inquired about Mr. Bartzen, the loser of $28,000.

"Why isn't he here?" asked Deputy Chief Blaul.

"He wouldn't come," explained Mr. Bartzen. "He still thinks the men are honest."

Notes of a Century of Progress

Friday will be Children's day at the Fair, when a nickel will admit children under 12 years old to the grounds. Prices at most of the concessions will be reduced to 5 cents for children. A special program is planned, including a parade in the morning. In the afternoon a "goofy" track and field meet will be staged.

The largest exhibit of miniature paintings in America is now open in the General Exhibits group.

The Ukrainian pavilion at the south end of the grounds will be dedicated Sunday, June 25. The Chicago Ukrainian chorus will sing.

The California Flower Festival special train arrived yesterday morning at the North Western depot with 125 passengers and hundreds of California flowers for the California Flower Festival at the Horticultural building, June 16 to June 20. The train was met by officials of the Garden and Flower Show.

The Mississippi, 100 year old locomotive, will be brought to A Century of Progress from Brookhaven, Mass., it was announced yesterday. The wood burning engine was built in London in 1833 and arrived in Natchez, Miss., for service on the Mississippi railroad, now a part of the Illinois Central system, in April, 1837. After the Exposition closes the engine will remain permanently in the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

The Jugo-Slavs of Chicago, who will celebrate their national day at the Fair on July 2, will have as their guest Capt. Louis Cukela of the United States navy. Capt. Cukela is a Croatian from Dalmatia in Jugo-Slavia, who enlisted in the United States navy at the outbreak of the world war and is one of the five men to have received both the army and navy congressional medals of honor.

Nina D. Scalf, 4 years old, of 1421 Balmoral avenue, will dance at 2:15 this afternoon in the Enchanted Island theater. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Swain Scalf.

The first theft from an exhibit at A Century of Progress was reported yesterday to Chief Edward Redd of the Exposition police. B. G. Davis, in charge of the Popular Aviation magazine exhibit in the General Exhibits building, announced that some one had carried off a model of a Sikorsky airplane valued at $300.

A party of 24 Moroccans arrived yesterday afternoon on the Wolverine of the Michigan Central railroad to visit A Century of Progress.

The National Editorial association's thousand mile tour of Indiana ended last night. The members will visit the Fair today and tomorrow. The board of directors will meet to determine next year's convention city and to draft the association's policy regarding the federal industrial bill. Most of yesterday was spent at Winona Lake, Culver Military academy, and Michigan City.

Nellie Kinzie Day Observed in Fort Dearborn at Fair

Nellie Kinzie day was observed yesterday at Fort Dearborn in the Fair grounds. Nellie Kinzie was the first white child born in Chicago. Her birth occurred in 1804. Under the auspices of the Nellie Kinzie club of Chicago, a special program was presented yesterday with Capt. John Manson, historian of the Fort Dearborn exhibit, giving a brief talk on the early days of Chicago. He is a grand-nephew of Nellie Kinzie and a direct descendant of Capt. William Whistler, who built the original Fort Dearborn.

BODY RECOVERED FROM LAKE.

The body of Frank Kospecki, 19 years old, 2713 South Troy street, was recovered yesterday from Maple lake in the forest preserve at Archer avenue and 95th street, where he was drowned Sunday afternoon.

JEWISH PAGEANT CAST HEARD IN FULL REHEARSAL

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Virtually the entire cast of "The Romance of a People," a mighty pageant depicting the struggles and triumphs of the Jewish race over 4,000 years, was heard in rehearsal last night in the Auditorium theater. Isaac Van Grove, maestro of the production, which will be presented in Soldiers' field on July 3, directed the rehearsal. Thirty-five hundred people will take part in the pageant.

The grand chorus, which supported the singing of the ancient chants, filled to overflowing the galleries of the Auditorium. These ancient hymns, arranged by Mr. Van Grove, are typical of oriental music.

Before last night the rehearsals had been conducted twice weekly in sections. Neighborhood theaters, hotels, and other larger assembly halls, not only throughout Chicago but also in Milwaukee, Madison, Champaign, Whiting, Indiana Harbor and other points have aided by lending themselves to the rehearsals.

Tells of Obstacles Overcome.

Mr. Van Grove and his technical adviser, Harry Beatty, told last night of the obstacles overcome in preparing for the pageant.

The first problem is that the spectacle will be presented in the open air. This requires the construction of a gigantic stage, 200 feet in depth and 200 feet wide, at the north end of the great field. The stage demands vast scenic effects sufficient to give background for 3,500 actors, dancers, and singers.

There are no "wings" in this great theater, and no back stage. All the technical arrangements which must be hidden from the audience must be woven into the structure of the temples, columns, and turrets, or else be kept literally underground in specially constructed cellars. The soloists and the special double octette, for instance, will sing from beneath the stage. Their voices will be carried to remote parts of the field by an amplification system.

Stage in Three Levels.

The stage is to be constructed in three levels. More than 100 yards in front of the stage, in the center of the field, a huge altar will hold an immense Bible, the leaves of which will turn as the drama proceeds. The synchronizing of the turning of the leaves with the movement of the pageant presented a problem, inasmuch as the movements on a stage containing nearly 40,000 square feet cannot be controlled by one director. Therefore three directors will be stationed within three of the towers of the temple. Ear phones will keep these directors and more than 50 assistants in touch with Mr. Van Grove, who will be hidden behind the temple gate.

NORWAY TRAINING SHIP TO ARRIVE AT FAIR TUESDAY

The full rigged training ship Sorlandet will arrive in Chicago next Tuesday as Norway's official exhibit at the World's Fair. The sailing vessel, carrying officers, crew and ninety merchant marine cadets, comes under patronage of King Haakon VII. of Norway. It is coming by way of St. Lawrence river and the lakes.

Elaborate preparations have been made to welcome the Sorlandet. The U. S. S. Wilmette will steam out into the lake at 9:30 in the morning to meet her, and will fire a national salute of twenty-one guns.

Col. Tryggve A. Siqueland has been appointed chairman of the Illinois state reception committee by Gov. Horner. Among the others on this committee will be Mayor Kelly, Norwegian Consul Olaf Bernts, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Capt. Edward A. Evers, Melvin A. Traylor, Ira Nelson Morris, Commander Eugene McDonald, Leon Mandel, Bert Massee, and Gen. R. E. Wood.

White clothes come out whiter —woolens look always as soft as new

THOUSANDS of women who are stretching dimes to quarters have learned that it's not the size of a package but what's inside the package that really counts! That's why they're returning to the soap flakes used exclusively by the most prominent women in the Middle West—Kirk's American Family.

"When I picture to myself the utter ruin that the harsh suds of 'bargain' flakes can bring to dainty chiffons, laces and imported linens, I am glad," says Mrs. Howard Linn, "that I have always used American Family Flakes.

"It's so easy, the laundress tells me, to wash everything with this pure soap—for it makes twice the suds of ordinary flakes and cleanses so much faster. White clothes come out whiter—woolens look always as soft as new."

"Really," says Mrs. Leonard D. Verdier, "we've noticed that our silk lingerie and chiffon hosiery—and for that matter all our sturdy washables—wear months longer when we dip them only in these rich suds. Do you wonder we never use anything but American Family Flakes?"

Buy these pure flakes—and try them. For laundering, dishwashing, all household cleaning. You, too, will never use any other—because you'll find they do more work and better work...with less soap and in less time. And you'll quickly discover how much wiser and cheaper it is to buy good soap than new clothes!

Matrix

"your footprint in leather"

If it needed anything to increase the fame of Matrix shoes—"the Fair" will do it. Women will put them on in the morning, walk the "miles with a smile," and—we predict—be devoted to Matrix shoes forever!

However, Matrix shoes can tell you more in one wearing than we could tell you in a page. Their divine comfort is due to that moulded inner sole. They're so perfectly styled that they're as easy to look at as they are to wear. Many thrilling styles to choose—straps, ties, and stepin pumps. Newest "1933" trimmings — cut-outs, interlacings, buttons, contrasting trimmings, perforations. The group includes Matrix shoes in black, brown, or white kid, white buck with brown. # REPORTER LOOKS AT ELECTRICITY AS TAMED BY MAN

Visit to Fair Shows New Magic of Science.

There is more romance in modern industry than in all history.

The Palace of Electricity at the World's Fair!

But you see I employ the grandiose old nomenclature of our '93 Fair because it alone is adequate to the splendors, the marvels and the educational clarion of A Century of Progress structure which has 140,000 square feet of exhibits and 100,000 square feet of lofty stairways, broad corridors and little theaters.

It is not a "building." A barn is a building. This structure is a palace. Those haughty and towering cylindrical murals that command one of its exhibition halls would alone give it a palatial majesty. They have the weird power of frescoes you behold in the tombs of the Pharaohs.

All Is Excitement.

Most exciting peace-time place you ever saw in your life.

You step on a section of steel rail so heavy that you could not lift it and instantly that rail shouts back to you—via an electrical dial—"Now, blunderheels, see what you've done! You've bent me." For that solemn dial before your eyes is registering the appalling fact that your weight—just you—has bent that section of steel rail five one millionths of an inch. I never felt so weighty in my life as when the dial told me of the fleeting mischief I had done when I stepped on the ponderous mass of steel.

You see a one-fourth horse power motor started by a short wave length radio apparatus fifteen feet distant: In other words you have seen the transmission of power through the air. "A historical event," said quiet, intent Edward H. Sniffin, now a nationally recognized electrical magnate who at our Fair of forty years ago was a young electrical groper who nevertheless could win the ever attentive ear of great George Westinghouse.

Heaven for the Cook.

You see an electrically equipped kitchen from oven to cooling apparatus that will make every aching housewife and house servant in the land sing "Hallelujah, Heaven is Here!" It is as dainty as a Watteau shepherdess and as practical as printer's ink; and it cost about $2,000 to build. I cal that tiny kitchen a great civilizing exhibit.

You can blow out with one brief puff of your breath an electric lamp in the Palace of Electricity, which will be good news to ancient Reuben who used to speculate as to the propriety of blowing out the gas when first he visited the big city.

You sniff electrically grown petunias, thrifty and happy 42 days after their planting and now, still under electric light, blooming ten days earlier and producing 50 per cent more blossoms than do the nearby petunias grown under natural light.

Worthy of Better Fate.

You learn in most minute detail "How a Radio Set Works" and as you follow the unfolding of the miracle you muse, "What a pity that such a marvel should be the prey of such trivial muckers as some of the clowns and crooners that too often make the day a bore and the night hideous."

You see a foolproof electrical oven roasting the beef, and a trim but formidable model—running full tilt—of one of the Pennsylvania railroad's new electrical motors that draw twelve Pullman cars 90 miles an hour.

You see an electrical Singer sewing machine that in the twinkling of an eye—just that—stitches and double stitches a buttonhole strong as steel wire.

"May I have one?" said I to the man who operated the twinkler.

"A hundred if you like—while you wait," said he, handsomely, but acquisitive though I may be, I could not for the life of me see what use I would make of a hundred detached buttonholes.

You see lamps straight down the centuries—50, 25, 19, 10, 3 centuries—from the Babylonian stone lamp of 5,000 years ago to the smallest commercial electric lamp of today. It is called "the grain of wheat," from the size of its bulb, and is used by surgeons to explore your insides.

You approach what I call "the ghost safe" in the A. D. T.'s exhibit. Does not look like a safe at all; more like a mirror set in a wall. But when you are within two feet of it it barks at you with electric light. Not a mechanism has been touched. The electricity in your body made it bark. I will tell you more as to how it works when these introductory high spots in the Palace have been hit off.

Night Letter to Singapore.

You learn that you now can send a 25 word night letter to London for $1.50 and the same to Singapore for $8.09. My goodness, I recall the time, only 16 years ago, when I cabled THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE 20,000 words from Stockholm on the Russian situation after Kerensky fell, and those dispatches cost in one week nearly 20,000 francs at a time when the franc still meant substantial money. And the $1.50 rate to London provoked a still more dramatic contrast, for one of the lecturers in the Western Union's exhibit told me that in the days of 67 years ago, when the Atlantic cable was new, a cablegram to London cost $100.

Reporter a Mental Wreck.

Well, the upshot of it is that I was so mentally flustered after all the wonders and contrasts I had seen in six hours and ten minutes that I had hardly wits enough left to dial a message that I would be late to dinner, and if you had asked me to recite the multiplication table I guess I would have cried. Six hours and ten minutes of steady looking and listening—not even a stop for luncheon, although Mr. Webster, a panting, peripatetic lecturer, yearningly suggested it.

"No," said I, "I might die tonight and not have another chance to view these astounding exhibits." So we plodded on.

All the time we plodded it was to subtle music—the whirr, whirr, whirr, soft and low—of the miraculous mechanisms in the Palace—the song of the new century; such a century as never was.

Alive! All Alive!

For this is a dynamic show. Almost everything that was built to move is moving. You see electricity tamed and trained and serving—that servant that used only to kill man and now toils—whirr, whirr, whirr—for man his master. The sight will bring back to you those prophetic lines in Emerson's noble "Adirondacks" written when gallant Cyrus Field, best industrial sport that ever dreamed visions into actualities, was trying to lay the Atlantic cable——

The lightning has run masterless too long;
He must to school and learn his verb and noun

The structure is all glamour in its pictorial quality yet all practicality in its applications. People watch its disclosures with glowing eyes, and sometimes with eyes a little dim with poignant emotion. They feel in the depths of their souls that they are coming close to Nature's heart. For, Nature, once so aloof and austere, so dreaded and defied, seems here intimately talking to her children, chanting, close and fond, her wonders once so unfathomable to mortal man.

Free Calls to Home Folks.

Sometimes in the Palace things occur that make the visitors choke up, and the operating telephone girls choke up, too. That happened in the American Telegraph and Telephone company's great rotunda exhibit where the company very lavishly gives to visitors what it describes as "Souvenir Calls from A Century of Progress Exposition"—a call, worth $3, to a lady from Hartford, Conn., and another worth $6.50, to a grandpa from Seattle, and so on to visitors from the length and breadth of the republic. All free! Handsomest souvenir gifts I ever heard of, and very courteously bestowed—as if the recipients were doing the company a favor in using its transcontinental lines.

A Little Heart Drama.

Well, a boy came into the rotunda and shyly asked whether he could talk to his mother in Boston—hadn't talked to her in two years, he added.

"Certainly," said Mr. Hanna, and in 65 seconds the long distance operators had that homesick lad talking to his mother, and she was "my boying" and "my dearing" him and he was saying, "yes, mother, I'm all right . . . Yes, I sure am. Don't you worry."

Well, sir, when he laid down the receiver he had to wipe his eyes, and two of the telephone girls at the Chicago end of the line were sniffling and saying, "Isn't he the sweetest kid!"

For us laymen its marvels would be only bewilderments without the opportunities given us to learn the reasons behind and within them. Reasons—reasons—reasons all the way through the halls. There they are! Calling to you from placards and by word of mouth. And there are vivid working models until you can't rest for your eagerness to see and study them.

The lecturers are mostly keen, devoted specialists who radiate electricity and are all wrapped up in it. They talk of it and its victories like lovers. Theirs is no vulgar ballyhoo, but weighty, stimulating, epigrammatic discourse. In General Electric's little theater called "The House of Magic" I heard one of the lecturers say:

"Even as the pure science of days ago is the applied science of today, so the pure science of today will be the applied science of tomorrow."

You can't bludgeon free people into doing what it will do them good to do.

Nevertheless I will risk saying that anybody who fails to spend at least a day in the Palace of Electricity "for his own good" is so dumb and lethargic that he ought to go back to the Middle Ages and die there.

I am going back to it this morning to get you some more items about it—"for your own good."

EDUCATOR'S WIDOW, AT 92, STARTS HER 63D OCEAN VOYAGE

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Frau Amalia Schlegel is 92 years old, but believes she doesn't look a day over 80. She insists she feels no older than a mere 60 or so, for she sails back to Germany tomorrow on the Hamburg-American liner New York. That's her sixty-third ocean voyage, her way of escaping loneliness and obtaining diversion.

Frau Schlegel is the widow of a professor of French and German at Hunter college and first came to this country in 1859, before her marriage. On a subsequent trip she met her future husband. He joined the faculty of the Normal College of New York, now Hunter, as its first professor of French and German.

Dr. Schlegel died in 1894, but there are many alumnae of the college, most of them now grandmothers, who still remember him. It is Frau Schlegel's great delight to meet these women.

COOL WEATHER IS DRAWING CROWDS TO FAIR GROUNDS

Expect Steady Increase in Attendance.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Normal June weather is back and World's Fair officials are confident that from now on attendance at the Exposition will show a steady increase until it reaches a peak on Chicago day, Oct. 9, when 1,000,000 visitors are expected.

Another record breaking crowd was attracted to the exposition grounds yesterday. At midnight 81,666 persons had passed through the gates to set a new mark for weekday attendance. The old record was made Monday when the attendance was 75,682. A total attendance of 30,000,000 is needed to make the Fair a financial success and officials expressed confidence yesterday that this figure would be reached.

Boat Races in Lagoon.

Tuesday is considered the lightest average attendance day, and only two major special events were on yesterday's program. They were the outboard motor races on the lagoon and the concert of the 800 piece southern Iowa farm bureau band. Musicians in the band range from 10 to 60 years in age. Last night's concert, presented at 8 p. m. in the court of the Hall of States, will be repeated today at 5 p. m.

A majority of the public and private schools have now closed, and the vacation season for employés is now on. Officials point to this as major reasons for the increasing attendance figures. Arrangements are now being made for the visits of special groups to the Fair, with delegations beginning to arrive this week.

The Indiana Historical society and the Society of Indiana Pioneers, making their annual pilgrimage to what the associations consider the most important place of interest of the year, formed one of the first major delegations. There were 75 visitors in the delegation.

The Press Association of North and South Carolina will arrive June 20, bringing 150 delegates.

Officials of A Century of Progress Tours company yesterday completed arrangements for the handling of a delegation of five hundred the last week in June. The delegation will include the Mormon choir of 300 voices from Salt Lake City, Utah, and 200 other visitors from that state.

Open New Pedestrian Bridge.

Anticipating an increase in attendance during the latter half of June, officials are rushing preparations to handle the crowds. Yesterday the new 35th street pedestrian bridge into the Fair grounds was caring for thousands of visitors, following its official opening Monday night. The bridge spans the Illinois Central railroad tracks.

Flag day will be celebrated today with a flag raising and patriotic speeches at 2 p. m. in the court of the Hall of States, Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, making the principal address. Five hundred members of the D. A. R. will lunch at the Blue Ribbon casino, after which they will parade to the Hall of States for the ceremonies.

City Sealer Grein Tests Scales at Fair Grounds

City Sealer Joe Grein doesn't even trust the man who guesses your weight at the the World's Fair. Yesterday while attending the Fair the sealer made a test of these scales and found them to be accurate. While there he also tested 35 penny-in-the-slot machines and found only one slightly off.

NEW TRAFFIC SYSTEM AT FAIR GOES INTO EFFECT THIS MORNING

The traffic system at the Fair will be changed at 6 o'clock this morning. Visitors who were forced to walk a quarter of a mile yesterday to get to the entrance gates will walk approximately 250 feet today.

The old system of detouring north bound automobiles east at Roosevelt road will change under the new plan so that traffic in the inner drive will flow as it did before the Fair opened. It is expected that this will do much to avoid the traffic congestion near the entrance to the Fair.

Buses will be routed east on 7th street, down the outer drive, and swing around in front of Field museum. Private automobiles and taxicabs will follow the same route, but will unload south of the Aquarium. The new system is expected to eliminate traffic congestion.

COUNTY REFUSES MORE FUNDS FOR HIGHWAY POLICE

The county commissioners yesterday rejected Sheriff Meyering's plea for an appropriation of $105,799 to pay his highway police force of 100 men from July 1 to Dec. 1. The county's 1933 budget contemplates the abolition of the highway force after the month of June in accordance with the order of the Circuit judges, who have statutory power to fix the number of employés in each county fee office.

The decision to do away with the force was made when the judges were informed that Gov. Horner would provide a metropolitan police force by sending 70 state highway policemen to Cook county. A month ago the judges voted to rescind their original order because the metropolitan force was not created. The county budget, meanwhile, had been adopted.

During yesterday's meeting of the county board, sitting as a finance committee, State's Attorney Courtney asked the commissioners to authorize the sale of $112,000 worth of 1932 tax warrants to pay salaries of his employés for three months. County employés have been paid only to Nov. 15, 1932. The motion was deferred, after brief discussion. So, too, was a motion to appropriate $250,000 for the work of revising the 1931 assessment rolls to conform with the 15 per cent reduction granted small flat buildings and homes by the board of tax appeals.

3 SCORE AND 10 CLUB HAS LIVELY DAY AT THE FAIR

The 16 members of the Three Score and Ten club who went to A Century of Progress exposition yesterday admitted at the Hotel Sherman last night that it was a right lively place, but not overwhelming for people who refuse to grow old simply because they have passed the Biblical span of years.

The club is composed of men and women from 70 to 100 years old. T. S. Meek of Miami, Fla., the president, explained that it was formed as a protest against knitting and rocking chairs.

"We don't gather to talk about our aches and pains," he declared. "We dance and go to the races, we play bridge and checkers and golf. We eat meat and the men smoke cigars. It doesn't mean anything when a member walks 30 or 40 blocks in a day, except that he's keeping up the club traditions. There's even a lot of romance left to us. Would you believe it if I told you I went to the weddings of five members last year?"

The club schedule here calls for sightseeing from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Today the members will honor their dean, C. J. Coyle, at a reception in the Florida exhibit building at the Fair. Mr. Coyle, a Chicagoan, is 100 years old and is known to his friends as "The Century Plant."

BEGIN DRAFTING TAXI ORDINANCE FRIDAY IN SECRET

Cut Rate Brings Living Wage, Says Lawyer.

Lee Daniels, attorney for the Public Taxi Service company, declared yesterday at a joint session of the council committees on traffic and transportation that the 15 and 5 rate charged by his company and other independents is ample to cover all corporate charges and still give a living wage to cab drivers. The rate is 15 cents for the first third mile and 5 cents for each adidtional third mile.

After hearing representatives of other cut rate cab companies and from those who favor the corporately-related Yellow and Checker Cab companies, which charge 20 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each additional half-mile, the aldermen decided to hold executive sessions beginning Friday. At these closed sessions the councilmen propose to draft a new taxicab regulatory ordinance.

Provides Fair Return.

"Our rate," said Mr. Daniels, "provides a fair return on our capital investment and a living wage for our chauffeurs. Our drivers are netting over $22 a week." He cited the record of one driver whose earnings for three consecutive weeks were $41, $22.75 and $53 respectively.

Attorney Daniels asserted that the present cab monopoly, held by the Yellow and Checker companies, is sustained by restrictions placed on the issuance of new licenses by the public vehicle license commission.

The Yellow and Checker rates were defended indirectly by Hawley S. Simpson, research engineer sent here by the American Transit company of New York. Simpson testified that the cut rate company officials are interested only in renting cabs and selling gasoline, oil, tires, repairs, and insurance to drivers.

Calls Long Hauls Unprofitable.

"The cut rate companies," said Mr. Hawley, "want to skim the cream of the business, taking the short hauls and letting the street car companies handle the long hauls that are unprofitable. If you were to permit too many cabs on the streets the street car companies would have to go out of business."

After the session, Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] proposed that the committees inquire why the cab companies have a flag pull charge of 15 or 20 cents.

"The street car companies charge a flat rate of 7 cents regardless of the mileage traveled," said Ald. Rowan. "Why should one pay 15 or 20 cents for sitting in a cab and riding one-third or one-quarter of a mile and then have to pay an additional charge for mileage? I believe that there should be a flat charge for fractions of a mile, eliminating the flag pull charge."

Denies Writ to Restrain Fair from Profit Taking

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday denied a petition for an injunction to restrain the World's Fair officials and the south park commissioners from making the Fair a profit taking enterprise. The plaintiff was Miss Lillian Koehler, who identified herself in her suit as a Chicago and south park district taxpayer. The petition was based upon an act of the general assembly in 1929 which, according to the bill, made it illegal for the Fair to operate for profit.

RAIL TRAVEL TO CHICAGO BOOSTED 32 TO 50% BY FAIR

Travel into Chicago on Pullman and regular railroad coach cars has increased 32 to 50 per cent since the opening of A Century of Progress exposition, according to a statement made yesterday by Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair.

"The heaviest movement is from the southwest," Maj. Lohr said. "Two trains from Texas last week brought 847 visitors to the exposition. Most of the noted trains from the southwest are running in two to four sections. There is also an excellent patronage from the Pacific coast and from the east. So far there is little from the northwest, but that will come a little later. Thousands of passengers on coast to coast trips are stopping over."

Maj. Lohr added that reduced railroad fares last Sunday brought more than 200 extra Pullman cars, well loaded, into the city and that prospects for next Sunday are excellent.

COURTNEY GOES ON WEST PARKS LOOTERS' TRAIL

Tax Warrant Cash Found to Be Diverted.

Criminal action and civil suits against W. R. James, former president of the west parks board, and his colleagues were reported in the formative stages yesterday as the result of revelations of the board's orgy of tax wasting from 1928 to 1932.

An outline of the charges against the former Republican board, which left the park system in sad condition physically and a wreck financially, was submitted to Gov. Horner Monday by Harry Joseph, president of the Democratic board which took over the park administration early this year. Yesterday Mr. Joseph and other members of the board were in Springfield urging the legislature to pass a $23,000,000 referendum bond issue to clear up the financial chaos which they found on taking office.

Prosecutor at Work.

The publication of the charges against the old park administration brought the statement from State's Attorney Courtney that a staff of prosecutors and auditors, headed by Assistant State's Attorney Henry Seyfarth, has been conducting a quiet investigation of the James regime for several weeks. The investigators are to report to him within the next week or ten days, Mr. Courtney said, and would have done so already, he added, but for the fact that the deeper they went into park affairs the farther it became necessary for them to extend their investigations.

The criminal investigation has given particular attention to the alleged looting of various trust and tax funds by the James board to support its army of political pay rollers and to pay favored contractors for jobs which, it is charged, they got illegally.

These same interfund transactions by the James organization have caused the preparation of at least one civil suit to recover on the bonds of the former trustees, and are expected to lead to other suits of the same nature. The prospective plaintiff in this suit is the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company, with the Reconstruction Finance corporation as an interested party in the claim.

Oversale of Tax Warrants.

The action grows out of the James board's handling of its 1929 tax levy and the tax anticipation warrants which it sold against that levy. It is said that by overestimating the assessed valuations in the park district, the board made huge overappropriations against that levy. It then proceeded to sell tax warrants based on the appropriation to such an extent that eventually it had warrants outstanding amounting to 113 per cent of the taxes actually extended. The law places a 75 per cent limit on warrant sales.

The law provides also that all collections on a tax levy must be used to redeem warrants issued in anticipation of the levy, until the warrants have been retired. According to the records, however, the park board took $540,794 out of its 1929 tax collections and diverted them in 1931 to its political contracts and pay rollers. At the same time the board still had $1,266,036 in outstanding 1929 tax warants and accrued interest, more than it could hope to retire had it applied all the tax collections to their proper purpose.

Paper Bought By Bank.

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company bought $150,000 worth of these 1929 west park warrants, which were pledged last summer by the bank as collateral for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan. The bank organization is liquidating its collateral, and has informed President Joseph that a suit is being prepared to collect from the sureties of the preceding board the funds which it illegally diverted to corporate fund expenses when they should have been used to redeem the tax warrants.

Other funds, it is charged, were taken by the James board to maintain its payrollers from the park employés and park police pension funds. The civil service employés of the west, south and Lincoln park boards all participate in the benefits of these funds, and each of the park districts levies taxes for the maintenance. The west park board, according to the records, kept $667,679 which it collected for the pension funds on the 1929 and 1930 levies, and applied it to its own expenses instead of turning it over to the pension fund trustees.

"The position of the present board of commissioners," stated President Joseph in his report to the governor, "with respect to these amounts owing to the pension funds is that they were received by the previous board purely as a collection agency for the respective boards of trustees of these funds, and the use of these moneys for corporate purposes is without warrant in law."

No public protest has been made on behalf of the pension funds. Daniel A. Roberts, attorney for the park board, is also president of the pension boards.

The line which possible criminal action against the park board would take is still a matter of speculation, but authorities on criminal law yesterday pointed out several sections of the criminal code on which State's Attorney Courtney's staff may elect to proceed.

One is the charge of conspiracy on which Timothy J. Crowe and Frank J. Link, former sanitary district trustees, were convicted. The withholding of the tax collections from the pension funds might be construed as embezzlement, they said.

Another section of the criminal code provides imprisonment of from one to ten years for failure to turn over public funds. Another section which might be invoked, lawyers said, in view of the missing records which have hampered the investigators, provides imprisonment of from one to five years for any official who withholds records from his successor in office, or who destroys or mutilates such records.

The $28,000,000 bond issue which President Joseph has recommended to the governor and legislature as necessary to put the park system back on a firm financial basis was advanced to second reading yesterday in the house at Springfield.

Of the bond issue, $12,450,000 would be offered as refunding bonds to holders of outstanding park bonds, which because of the defaults made by the previous board, are now badly depreciated. If the refunding arrangements can be made, this portion of the bond issue would increase the park's funded debt.

The remaining bonds would be used to pay outstanding bills, back salaries amounting to $2,414,812 when the present board took office, the amounts withheld from the pension fund, other interfund borrowings from bond and special assessment funds which were used for the park payrollers, defaulted bond interest payments, and 1929 tax warrants, which cannot be retired by tax collections.

The bond bill provides that the bonds shall be callable by lot, and that whenever the park board receives any tax funds which would have been applied on the obligations met by the bonds, that these collections shall be used to retire part of the bond issue.

RACKHAM, BACKER OF FORD, DIES; MAKES HIM MANY MILLIONS

Detroit, Mich., June 13.—(AP)—Horace W. Rackham, 73, Detroit multimillionaire who invested $5,000 in the Ford Motor company thirty years ago, died tonight following a long illness.

Rackham was an attorney and neighbor of the Fords in 1903. Henry Ford called upon Rackham and his partner to draw up corporation papers for the Ford Motor company. Against the advice of friends, Rackham and his partner, John W. Anderson, each invested $5,000 in the company. In 1919 Rackham sold his Ford stock for $12,500,000.

The original fifty shares he purchased had been increased to 1,000 by stock dividends.

BANKS REFUSE CASH FOR WEST PARK PAY DAY

Mayor Kelly and executives of the loop banks conferred yesterday in a vain effort to finance a pay day for west park employés by the sale of tax anticipation warrants. The meeting was held in the office of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank.

The bankers told representatives of the park employés that since the Illinois Supreme court had upheld the 15 per cent reduction of 1931 assessments on homes and small flat buildings in Cook county warrants and bonds of local governments were not good investments.

UTILITY RATES AGREEMENT IS BELIEVED NEAR

Size of Cut May Depend on Future Business.

A moderate reduction in Chicago utility prices to become effective immediately and a further cut later in the year if the business of the companies continues its current expansion was viewed yesterday as the probable basis for settlement of the gas and electricity rate question. Utility officials will meet Chairman B. F. Lindheimer of the Illinois commerce commission in a second conference tomorrow morning.

Chairman Lindheimer has taken the position that the rate reductions should be based on the future volume of business, which he believes will steadily increase.

The companies are opposed to this as a basis for rate fixing. They claim that they cannot afford to gamble on a continuation of current business expansion.

Way Open for Settlement.

The way is left open for settlement of the disagreement by an immediate reduction on the basis of present business with future adjustments to depend on the trend of business in the next few months.

The commerce commission and the company officials remain far apart on the subject of valuations of the utility properties. It is regarded as unlikely that rate reductions will be made on the basis of valuations advocated by the commission. If such reductions are ordered by the commission it is believed that a court fight to set aside the commission's decision will result.

The commission's valuations amount in some instances to less than the invested capital of the three companies, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke; Commonwealth Edison, and Public Service of Northern Illinois. Utility men are confident that no court would uphold such values as a basis for rate making.

May Cut Depreciation Charges.

If the companies proffered reduction of around $4,000,000 in aggregate gross revenues is accepted, it is believed that the utilities will make moderate reductions in their depreciation charges.

The commission has held the opinion that the companies are putting away too much each year for depreciation. The companies answer this by pointing out that depreciation reserves must protect them against absolescense as well as deterioration.

This is said to be particularly true with Commonwealth Edison which constantly faces the necessity of replacing comparatively new equipment which has become uneconomical to operate. The argument does not apply with same force to the Peoples Gas company, which distributes only gas. Public Service Company of Northern Illinois furnishes both gas and electrical service in the suburban territory.

Appliance Question Raised.

The point raised by Chairman Lindheimer that customers should not be called upon to bear the losses sustained by the companies in selling utility appliances does not constitute a matter of serious disagreement between the commission and the companies. The companies regard this loss as a promotional expense but seem willing to reduce the cost setup on this type of business in accordance with the commission's wishes.

The appliance business is held to be an important feature of the Commonwealth Edison business and is not likely to be abandoned as in the case of some utility companies. Last year's loss by the company on this type of business is placed at $710,000.

CHARGES LATHAM IS ON BOTH SIDES IN RECEIVER CASE

Charges that Carl R. Latham, former president of the Chicago Bar association and present chairman of the association's receivership and foreclosure committee, is counsel for both the receiver and the bondholders' committees of four properties involving values amounting to more than $3,000,000, were made before Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday.

The charges were made by Joseph Rosenberg, attorney for minority groups of bondholders in each of the cases. Rosenberg said the Illinois Supreme court has held that a lawyer may not represent both the receiver and the bondholders at the same time, since the interests of the two parties may conflict.

Rosenberg appeared to protest against fees of $7,250 which Latham asked, and fees of $11,700 asked by Joseph F. Connery, receiver for the properties.

"I am generous when I say that any reasonably intelligent lawyer could do in one day what Mr. Latham has said took him 100 hours," said Rosenberg. He said the receiver has collected $160,000, spent $130,000 for running expenses, and $20,000 in taxes are unpaid.

Judge Sullivan took the case under advisement. The properties involved are the Canterbury apartments, 52d street and Blackstone avenue; the Bedford Villa apartments, 7130 Cyril avenue; the Edgewater apartments, 5737 Kenmore avenue; and the Fairhaven and Hathaway apartments, 7536 Phillips avenue.

Fireman Killed, 3 Others Hurt in Kalamazoo Fire

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 13.—[Special.]—Charles Lines, city fireman, was killed and three others badly injured today when fire wrecked the tank department of the Kalamazoo Tank and Silo company, causing $50,000 damages. Lines and three other firemen were caught when a wall collapsed. Lines was working an extra shift for a friend at the time.

ILLINOIS UTILITY CONTROL BILL IS SENT TO HOUSE

Backed by Governor, but Faces Hard Fight.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—Carrying no recommendation for its passage and certain of hostility upon the floor of the house, the Sinnett public utilities dictatorship bill backed by Gov. Horner and Chairman Lindheimer of the Illinois commerce commission, was sent to the house today.

Just what will happen to it tomorrow is problematical. Although no test vote has been taken, the bill is already one of the most talked about in the current session, and the sentiment noted toward it has not been exceedingly favorable.

Because there was no recommendation attached to the committee report, the bill goes automatically to the speaker's table, whence it can be lifted only by a majority vote.

Schnackenberg Fights It.

Minority Leader Schnackenberg of Chicago said tonight that he would oppose any motion to place the bill upon the calendar unless proposed amendments suggested by the commerce commission are explained. It is believed to be the thought of Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island], the Horner floor leader, that better strategy lies in proposing the amendments on second reading.

"One reason for my opposition," Schnackenberg said tonight, "is because of the provision in the bill allowing the commission to cut rates which would be in effect one year while investigation is carried on.

"Of course, I have not seen the new amendments. Perhaps they change that. But until I do see them, I shall stand against advancing the bill."

Gov. Horner is pushing the bill ardently. But this fact did not have much effect either upon the full utilities committee or upon the subcommittee headed by John R. McSweeny [Dem., Chicago], which held three hearings upon them.

Committee Accepts Report.

A report was read to the full committee this afternoon by McSweeny. Not bearing any signature, it was described by the chairman as "an oral report."

The document stated that the subcommittee recommended holding the bill in the whole committee until the commission amendments were presented. It also held that the commission now has sufficient power to reduce rates and recommended that the provisions placing the burden of proof upon utilities in rate cases and giving the commission the right to cut rates without a hearing be stricken.

The report was accepted by the full committee, headed by Frank Ryan [Dem., Chicago], but it was not adopted. Then, on motion of George Garry Noonan [Dem., Chicago], the bill was sent to the house by a vote of 18 to 4 without recommendation. Those voting against this action were Chairman Ryan, John M. Peffers [Rep., Aurora], David I. Swanson [Rep., Chicago], and R. V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago].

LAWYER SUES J. F. GUFFEY AND J. P. TUMULTY

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Charles H. Fay, attorney and district Republican leader, filed suit in the Supreme court asking $25,000 for legal services from Joseph F. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman for Pennsylvania; Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to Woodrow Wilson, and William E. Leahy, a Washington attorney.

Fay contends he was retained several years ago by Tumulty and Leahy to act for them in New York in connection with an indictment brought against Guffey on a charge of embezzling about $400,000 from the government. Guffey was director of the bureau of sales for the alien property custodian.

Ghost Accordion Player Gives Motorists a Scare

Lorain, O., June 13.—[Special.]—A "ghost accordion," the mournful strains of which are wafted on midnight breezes from the middle of Elmwood cemetery, has been reported to police by 11 motorists during the last three nights. One motorist reported that he saw an accordion resting apparently in air above a branch of a tree in the cemetery, but opening and closing between invisible hands. All left hastily lest a ghost bagpiper started skirling.

New York Society Woman Sued for Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., June 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Emelie K. Bishop, New York society matron who resides in Greenwich, Conn., was sued for divorce here today by Julian T. Bishop on grounds of cruelty. They married in Philadelphia Dec. 4, 1920.

BOARD TO START CUTTING SCHOOL BUDGET TODAY

The board of education at its meeting today will embark on a program of reducing the 1933 school budget from its present total of $71,000,000. James B. McCahey, president of the board, estimated that on the basis of a $71,000,000 budget the deficit is approximately $8,000,000. He declared that immediate steps should be taken to straighten out the financial difficulty.

Four members of the board will be appointed today as a special committee to serve with the president in reducing expenditures. A hint of what action the board may take was dropped when Mr. McCahey asserted that "a lot of jobs now existing in this system won't be there when the schools open in the fall."

Plan to Delay School Opening.

The trustees are planning to delay the opening of school in the fall by two weeks to save $2,000,000 in salaries and operating expenses. If this measure is adopted the deficit will be cut down to $6,000,000. The deficit was $10,000,000 until recently when the board closed the schools two weeks early.

Besides economy the board will also discuss today the legal action of the teachers, led by attorneys of their organizations, to get their salaries for the two weeks in which they are not teaching.

Although the schools were closed last Friday for the summer, teachers have been reporting for duty as usual to furnish the basis for a breach of contract suit against the board. It was said that some attorneys have informed the teachers that all who wish to benefit from such a suit must become parties to it. The charge for each teacher to enter the suit is $6.

Advised Not to Enter Suit.

The Federation of Women High School Teachers, of which Dorothy Weil is president, advised its members not to enter the suit on the grounds that any benefit therefrom would go to all school employés. The members were also told that it was not necessary to report to the schools.

Miss Weil's group pointed out that if the two weeks' salaries are obtained this year in all probability it will mean a corresponding cut in salaries for 1934. Such action in the making of the 1934 budget has already been threatened by school trustees in the event the teachers win.

"We could not pay salaries to the 6,000 teachers who, I understand, are in the suit and not to the other 8,000 teachers," Mr. McCahey said.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

This week Friday the Ford Motor Company completes 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit——which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share——everyone must get it for himself——and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive——their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

BLAMES DOCTORS FOR MISUSE OF HEALTH CLINICS

Door Being Opened to Those Able to Pay.

Responsibility for the misuse of public health agencies, clinics and the like in giving free service to persons able to pay for it lies with the medical profession, Dr. Samuel M. Hamill of Philadelphia declared yesterday.

As retiring president he addressed the third annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics, which adjourned after a two day session in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Dr. Hamill headed the medical service committee of the White House conference on child health and protection.

"Our preventive clinics," said Dr. Hamill, "our health centers, our state and municipal health departments and to a less extent our hospitals, all of whose free services should be entirely restricted to the care of the indigent, are daily opening their doors wider to those who can afford to pay.

Fault of Profession.

"This is the fault of the medical profession, especially the pediatricians, for not providing the protective health services demanded. For years these people have heard prevention preached, so you cannot blame them for getting it where they can."

Dr. Hamill suggested that the academy's committee on school health and school health education make a survey of health supervision in the public school systems. "We also know this service is under severe criticism by the rank and file of the medical profession on the ground that it infringes on the prerogatives of the physician," said Dr. Hamill.

Calls System Inadequate.

"We all have the impression that education in health as given in our schools is inadequate, inaccurate and often destructive, especially in the field of mental health."

DOCTORS FIND BEAUTY TWICE AS INTERESTING TO PUBLIC AS DISEASE

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—(AP)—Beauty was twice as interesting to the public as diabetes, fat or "home remedies" for disease in 1932, judging from inquiries received by the American Medical association.

KESNER BUILDING TARGET IN TAX RECEIVER ACTION

20 More Properties Put in County's Hands.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

| | 1928. | 1929. |
| June 13 | $ 34,778 | $ 140,575 |
| Uncollected | 19,399,570 | 51,150,650 |
| | 1930. | 1931. |

Twenty properties were thrown into tax receivership yesterday by County Judge Jarecki. A number of other property owners saved their buildings and land from receivership by paying delinquent taxes, the total of such payments in court aggregating $75,000.

The war against tax dodgers was also waged on another front with Assistant Corporation Counsel William L. Sullivan filing additional petitions for receivership. One suit was directed at Jacob L. Kesner, one of the leading tax strikers of last year, who owes $107,152 back taxes upon the Kesner building at 1 North Wabash avenue.

A gasoline filling station, a hotel, and office and apartment buildings were among the properties ordered into the hands of County Treasurer McDonough through the tax receiverships granted by County Judge Jarecki. The treasurer will collect all income from the properties until delinquent taxes for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930 have been paid in full, plus penalties.

Hotel Put in Receivership.

The Sutherland hotel, 4647 Drexel boulevard, upon which back taxes total $33,363, was ordered into receivership when no offer to pay the taxes was made. The Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee of the property at 1223 South Michigan avenue owing $7,560 in taxes was the target in another receivership order.

The protests of "tax attorneys" against the receivership orders as formerly availed them nothing when the cases were called.

"I have heard every argument advanced for the nonpayment of taxes at least ten thousand times in this court," Judge Jarecki told the lawyers. "I haven't heard a new or original plea for months. Words will get you nowhere in this court. The only assurance of good faith that an attorney can show me is a substantial check to payment of the delinquent taxes."

Among other properties ordered into receivership were the 400 East Ohio Street building, owing $12,714; the 1338 South Michigan avenue property owing $9,029; the Blackstone hotel servants' quarters, 635 South Wabash avenue, owing $13,375; the 1240 North Dearborn street property owing $19,143; the seven story building at 59 East Wacker drive owing $9,415; the 747 South State street property, owing $4,542; the 422 South Wabash avenue property, owing $8,058; the Cole Manufacturing company, 3250 South Western avenue, owing $16,816, and a filling station at 118 Armstrong street, owing $9,090.

Receiverships were also ordered for 1231 South Michigan avenue, owing $11,899; 305 South Wabash avenue, owing $10,929; 9 West Kinzie street, owing $11,922; 1 West Kinzie street, owing $8,278; 400 East Ohio street, owing $12,714, and 114 Illinois street, owing $45,846.

Albert I. Appleton, another leader in the tax strike, was also affected by a receivership ordered for his property at 747 North Michigan avenue upon which the delinquent taxes total $57,307.

A total of $1,330,000 in 1931 tax collections was distributed yesterday to the state and the major local governments by County Treasurer McDonough. To the city was sent $640,000, to the state $250,000, to the sanitary district $285,000, and amounts ranging from $5,000 to $60,000 to other taxing bodies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—[Special.]—Dr. Dean Lewis, Baltimore, Md., installed tonight as president of the American Medical association reviewed the development and place of the clinic in medical practice from the evolution from a "medicine that fought disease with magic and superstition to the clinic and schools of medicine today." He concluded with a review of the committee report on costs of medical care and a warning against abandoning of the present American system of medical treatment for a new and untried theory of handling of the ill.

"The clinic and hospitalization have reached their present development and efficiency," Dr. Lewis said, "through successive efforts, technical skill of many generations of physicians. The same idealism and ability will settle problems as they arise."

A BILL TO PROMOTE THE FEE RACKET.

The house at Springfield has passed and the senate has under consideration a measure which would permit judges in their discretion to invoke a two year moratorium on mortgage foreclosures. Perhaps all that needs be said of the bill is that if it is not unconstitutional nothing is. Similar laws have been declared invalid in many states. The bill is a gold brick. It is scarcely thinkable that it will be sustained by the courts, if enacted, and it can only raise false hopes in the minds of those home owners and farm owners in whose supposed interest it has been presented.

The real beneficiaries of this measure are the foreclosure racketeers. Their takings have been fattened by the present provisions of our mortgage code which permit a delay of fifteen months in acquiring title after a foreclosure sale. It is now proposed, in effect, to increase the period of redemption by another two years. If that is done, the present difficulty of obtaining the credit needed for reorganizing a property will be immensely greater, with the result that the fee boys will have just that much longer at the trough and the bondholders will suffer in proportion.

The injury which this bill would work, if enacted and sustained by the courts, would be appalling. The mere threat of enactment has been sufficient to discourage mortgage loans in this state. It is even probable that if the bill were passed the federal government itself could not allocate to Illinois any of the billions of dollars just voted by congress for farm and home loans.

The bill was presented in the supposed interest of the farmer or small home owner who has been unable to meet his interest or refinance his mortgage at maturity. Assume for the moment that the bill would actually be of benefit to these unfortunate people; the measure, it should be obvious, will impose an immense hardship on a far larger number of people. After four years of depression the number of mortgages foreclosed has been much less than 10 per cent of all the mortgages on Illinois property, and this proportion holds true whether rural or urban properties are under examination. The vast majority of present borrowers will seek at some time in the future to renew their loans in whole or in part. They cannot do so if the law of Illinois is loaded more heavily even than it is at present in favor of the man who borrows and against the lender. The bill, far from preventing foreclosures, will immensely increase their number as present loans fall due. Because little money will be available for mortgage loans in Illinois commissions and interest rates will be forced upward to panic levels and beyond. For every friend which this legislation will win it will make fifty enemies among future borrowers and present mortgage bondholders.

A legislature which could give a moment's consideration to such a bill displays a total lack of both financial and political intelligence. The citizens of a state which makes it needlessly difficult for creditors to collect what is due them will obtain little credit. No one is obliged to lend money and no one does lend money at moderate terms where the risks are abnormally great. Now that business is improving the need for capital in this state will increase, but no considerable capital will be available for mortgage loans until the moratorium bill is killed.

THE SILENT STREET CAR.

The announcement that a street car has been perfected which is as quiet as an automobile is important news to every one who lives or works in Chicago. A car of the new type is to be placed in service experimentally in Chicago this year. If it lives up to expectations every effort should be made to have the new type adopted generally in the shortest possible time. As much as possible of the obsolescence fund of the car companies should be spent on acquiring the new cars and, if necessary, some of the traction fund might be used for the same purpose. There is no nuisance in Chicago greater than that of the clatter of the street cars. It could be tolerated only as long as a less noisy type of equipment was not available.

TEMPERANCE AND THE MACHINE.

One of the arguments on behalf of prohibition was that driving an automobile demands sobriety and that a country in which one out of every six inhabitants possesses an automobile of some kind must impose universal teetotalism by law as a measure of public safety. This argument persisted in spite of the fact that the prohibition regime did not reduce motor accidents. The trouble with it was that prohibition did not prevent the abuses of alcohol which are especially dangerous from the viewpoint of traffic safety. It put a premium on irresponsible drinking. It is not surprising, therefore, that Dr. Wynne, health commissioner of New York City, reports that deaths from alcoholism and automobile and other accidents have been lower during the two months since the legalization of beer than at any other time in the recent history of the department." In January deaths from motor accidents were 100, in February 69, in March 91, in April 78, and in May 70. The logical conclusion, says Dr. Wynne, is that the people of New York have been drinking less of strong liquors and that the legalization of beer has saved a life a day in that city since April 7.

WHAT MACDONALD SHOULD HAVE SAID.

"It is proper I preside over you because my country is most responsible and I am the most responsible of my countrymen for the fiscal policy that bled my country white and reduced it to a second class power.

"We are also largely responsible for the trouble in America, for the Americans imitated us. We realize that the self-styled intellectuals, the professoriate, and the proletariat are even more snobbish than the plutocrats. They never would have adopted the ruinous tax laws that have thrown millions out of work but for our example and precept.

"With our two countries thrown out of gear there is not much for the rest of you to do unless you follow Japan's example and take advantage of our self-created helplessness to extend your empires by conquest.

"With this confession of the wrongs I have done I resign my office and advise you all to do likewise."

WASHINGTON, MOSCOW, AND BERLIN.

News from Washington should be read parallel with news from Berlin, Rome, and Moscow. These are four conspicuous fountains of news in days when news is popping all over the world and comparative values are hard to appraise with any certainty in any one day, but in nearly any one Washington, Berlin, Rome, and Moscow retain their preëminence and maintain their position.

As background for the reading of Washington dispatches the American reader may observe that Chancellor Hitler has sent his troopers to seize free trade union premises and labor banks and arrest all union leaders. Hitler will reorganize German labor by rules of his own. The workers will do what they are told to do. They may like their new consolidations and their new form of coöperation or they may not. In either case the decision will not be theirs.

Comment has been made upon the new soviet dictate proscribing all but a minority class of Russians and stipulating where the privileged class may live and where the proscribed classes must.

In Rome Mussolini has at last ordered the incorporation of all industry and trade into thirteen syndicates under the control of the government. The government is the management for capital and labor. In Russia, Germany, and Italy the individual has been thoroughly suppressed. Censorship and secret police prevent the expression of opinion. Nonconformity is dangerous. Russia never had a real parliamentary system, only the beginning of one which the Red revolution stopped in its first stages. In Germany and Italy the system existed, but has been virtually abolished. It is under the hand of the super state.

The American professoriate is using the American system as a guinea pig. In consequence the American reader must watch his date lines carefully. One which he thinks is Moscow may be Washington.

AWESOME MEASURE IN CONGRESS.

[Lansing State Journal.]

"Awesome" is the word used by one outstanding commentator concerning that piece of national legislation now pending, known as the industrial recovery bill, or industrial control bill, as some call it.

The term "awesome" is used because it is felt that no recent measure, or any measure whatsoever, ever before congress ever held in its provisions such possibilities for completely changing the American scheme of activity as the measure described as "awesome."

The measure provides for the expenditure of $3,300,000,000 for the purpose of making work. Some of the work may give a return on the investment. But the matter of the expenditure of billions, even though it entails taking money from those places where it can ill be spared, is not the central significance of the measure.

The real significance of the measure resides in the possibility that this nation is to be plunged from the industrial and commercial system it now has into either socialism or Fascism. As we pause on the brink of such a change, a momentous change from which we may never return, it is little wonder such measure is described as "awesome."

Whether the $3,300,000,000 proposed for expenditures is turned to some good or whether wholly wasted will not make so much difference. Even if some three billions of wealth were burned for the fun of it, we should recover from that; but how will we manage, hereafter, when we find that some little contemplated enterprise will first have to be licensed from Washington? And should the enterprise be permitted, it would have to be subjected to Washington-made rules for its conduct. How will we like such an arrangement?

Here in Lansing, in recent weeks, we have all been highly interested in the new "shiftless drive" invented and applied at the Reo Motor Car company. So many have said either to themselves or to their neighbor, "That will be a good thing for Lansing. It will encourage the sale of a Lansing-made car." But why, under the new legislative scheme in the making, should any one say anything like that? If the automobile business is to be apportioned among the various plants, what difference will merit make? What difference will advertising make, what difference will salesmanship make? American enterprise will be a thing of the past.

The big leaders in the electrical business have recently said they would be glad to come under the controlled system. So have the steel leaders. But suppose some small electrical concern, having some new device, should wish to start up. Suppose a group of enterprising young men should wish to pool their skill and their little resources and pledge among themselves to get along for a few years on meager pay until they could "get going." And what will be the attitude of those adventurers when they hear from Washington that their permit to begin business is not allowed because it does not conform to the scale of operations of the General Electric company?

No wonder an able commentator on the industrial control bill regards it as "awesome!"

MASSACHUSETTS went wet yesterday. And we wrote this several hours before the polls closed in the Old Bay state. It isn't necessary to count the returns to know whether Massachusetts will go wet or dry. But when it comes to Tennessee, Arkansaw, and Mississippi and the rest of the states down that way it will be slower; no matter what they're voting on, it always takes time to separate the ballots into two piles, those that are cast on the proposition before the sovereign voters and those cast for Andy Jackson for President.

AND IT'S NOW PROPOSED that we fill in the southern end of Lake Michigan between Chicago and Benton Harbor, Mich. We probably will some day. And if all of what is now Lake Michigan was land dotted with farms and forest, of course, what we would do would be to dam the river flowing through it and turn it into a lake. Humans are funny, mighty funny!

But one of the things which has much to do with the terrible loss of life in automobile driving hasn't been mentioned. It's expressed, however, by so many jolly drivers who say: "Oh, I just love to drive at night. There's so much less traffic on the road and you can just step on the gas and go a-whizzing." ### DIZZINESS.

DIZZINESS ranks high numerically in the list of complaints. It is not only frequently encountered but it is a rich source of complaint, since the rule is that those who have it come to bat more than once. When a person first experiences it he asks his physician for some medicine for it. The physician prescribes a cathartic, advises that the patient eat less heartily, or perhaps that he take a considerable quiet rest. This prescription will cure a moderate number of cases, but the group we are discussing will soon find that they want more advice.

When they see the doctor this second time they are likely to be examined for Ménière's disease, for other disease of the ears, for lack of balance of the eye muscles, for other disease of the eye causing some kind of eye strain, for evidence of arteriosclerosis, especially of the brain, for brain tumor, and, if all these are negative, the search goes further afield.

Ménière's disease is a disorder of the semicircular canals. These canals are located in the bones of the head close by the internal ear, and are supposed to have something to do with hearing as well as with the maintenance of the equilibrium of the body. The symptoms of Ménière's disease are great dizziness and ringing in the ears. It is supposed to be a very serious disease, so much so that when a patient lives long or recovers after a diagnosis of this disease we physicians are apt to say that the diagnosis must have been erroneous.

Dizziness due to brain tumor may also eventuate in fatality, not because of this symptom but by reason of the tumor of which it was a symptom.

In the main, though dizziness is very unpleasant and inconvenient, it is seldom as serious as it is feared to be. It happens often that a man who suffers from the symptom will make a few contacts with physicians in an effort to find a cure, but will end up by adjusting himself to his difficulty. He will succeed in a measure in doing so, but he will abandon all hope of kissing the blarney stone.

Many cases are the result of poor eye muscle balance. Such cases will notice that they have trouble when they try to look in some particular direction, usually either up or down. Physicians often advise such sufferers not to go to the movies, but if they do to sit in the balcony. If the main floor is slanted the advice is given to sit far enough back that it will not be necessary to look up to see the picture. They are especially advised to avoid the front rows, in which location they are exposed to eye muscle strain to the maximum degree.

A visitor subject to dizziness caused by eye strain asked for an ordinance compelling planetariums to have seats that tilt backwards, and that had backtilting head rests, all somewhat like a barber's chair. This visitor had to keep away from the planetarium because looking upward continuously combined with moving bright objects made him unbearably dizzy. It hypnotizes some.

SCIATICA.

M. L. writes: 1. Tell me the cause of sciatica?

2. Treatment?

3. Is diet beneficial?

REPLY.

1. Any pain along the course of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica. Among the causes are disease in the lower spinal cord, pressure in the pelvis, and hip joint disease. These cause pain to be reflected down the sciatic. Among the other causes are neuritis and rheumatism.

2. Simple cases are treated locally with heat and light. Massage helps. Some cases require splinting of the leg. The salicylates give temporary ease in some cases. Sometimes the treatment must take account of something higher up.

3. Probably not. At best it can accomplish but little.

REPLY.

The probability is that your trouble is due to a ductless gland disorder. It may be that you can be reduced. You would need to diet and also to take thyroid and pituitary under a physician's observation.

UNFINISHED BUILDING.

Chicago, June 8.—[Friend of the People.]—Can anything be done about the abandoned building on the north side of Morse avenue opposite where I live? In the last few days the boys of the neighborhood have started clambering over it and literally taking it to pieces. A part of the roof is down and holes are started in the brick side wall. It is becoming an increasingly hazardous playground. D. M. S.

Our inspector reports that the building in question was left in an unfinished condition. It, however, is not dangerous. Notice has been sent to the receiver to board up all door and window openings. This order will be enforced. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Commissioner of Buildings.

WAGE CLAIM.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man and wife are in business as partners. The wife gives an employé an acknowledgment of indebtedness for salary owed the employé, mentioning the firm's name and signing her own name. The firm goes into bankruptcy and the employé does not file a claim, knowing there is nothing left for creditors. Later the man receives large commissions for sales work for another firm. Can the employé realize on those commissions? E. R. S.

If the wages owing to the employé were scheduled as a debt in the bankruptcy proceedings, then the liability on them has presumably been barred. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 14, 1917.

LONDON.—Three of the fifteen German airplanes which yesterday raided England succeeded in penetrating the air defenses until they passed directly above the "city" proper and from a great height rained bombs down on the financial and business center. They were attacked by British aviators and shelled by anti-aircraft cannon, and thousands of business men and employés watched the battle staged at least two miles above the city. The main damage was done, not in the city proper, but in the east end of the congested tenement section, where in some places whole blocks of houses were shattered. All fifteen of the raiders apparently reached this section of the city. At a late hour last night the casualties as officially announced numbered 534, including 97 killed and 437 wounded.

LONDON.—The losses of shipping due to the submarines are again on the increase. In its weekly report the British admiralty shows that twenty-two vessels of 1,600 tons and over were sunk during the week—more than in any week since the middle of May. A grand total of 552 British ships has been sunk since the unrestricted warfare opened.

MONTEVIDEO.—In connection with the revocation of Brazilian neutrality in the war between the United States and Germany, the Uruguayan government expresses its approval and its sympathy with the cause of the allies. It recommends a league of nations with the object of defending international law.

WAR SUMMARY.—Charges are made that there is a plan to oust Gen. Goethals from ship board as the army and navy bill is approved. The Russian commission, on its way to Washington, arrived at a Pacific coast port. The slacker drive continued throughout the nation. Three were given prison sentences for failure to register; wholesale arrests were made. Paris reports that French cavalry entered the Grecian city of Larissa. Maj. Gen. Pershing arrived in Paris yesterday and was given a royal welcome.

NEW YORK.—Late reports last night from the twelve federal reserve districts of the country indicated that at the close of business last night total subscriptions to the Liberty loan exceeded $1,900,000,000.

CHICAGO.—Chicago's total purchase of Liberty bonds up to 5 o'clock last night as officially reported, was $218,000,000—of which $34,000,000 was yesterday's sale. This is $42,000,000 short of the original allotment of $360,000,000 to this district which will be—must be—met before noon tomorrow.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Is there an employment office on the grounds? What are the fees that one must pay at the gate to get to the employment office?

ANSWER—There is an employment office in the Administration building, but no employés are being hired at the present time. No fee is charged but the entrance fee at the gate must be paid. It will be two or three months before general employment starts in again.

QUESTION—Could you tell me if it is too late to enter paintings or pictures in the World's Fair general exhibition? With whom do I communicate in regard to this?

ANSWER—Such an exhibition is being planned. For full details communicate with the Congress Construction company, 506 South Wabash avenue, or Paul Von Klieven, 1008 North Dearborn street.

QUESTION—Is there to be any contest or demonstration of old flags at the Flag day celebration at the Fair? Where can I get information about making an exhibit of an old flag I have?

ANSWER—No such contest is being planned. For information as to exhibiting your flag write the Exhibits department of A Century of Progress Exposition.

RIOTOUS TEACHERS.

Chicago, June 10.—I happen to be one of the many citizens of Chicago who have been and are being victimized by Chicago school teachers.

During the teacher raids on the First National bank in April I was imprisoned for almost two hours by that howling mob, merely because I happened to be in an office in that building at the time.

Two days later, while eating in a restaurant across from that same bank, these Chicago teachers stormed into the restaurant, upsetting the tables of other customers, and ruining my clothes.

On June 8, while trying to cross State street with the green light, I was smashed in the nose, my glasses broken (I wear them because of war injuries), kicked, clubbed, and stabbed with sharp sticks until the police had to rescue me. At the time of this occurrence these teachers should have been at work, for they were demanding pay for that very hour.

When I was admitted to the bar seven years ago I solemnly promised myself to help no client evade a cent of taxes. I have always kept that vow. I have in my hands thousands of dollars' worth of claims against Chicago school teachers, for medical and dental services rendered, and goods sold and delivered. Not one of these items was contracted after the school board fell behind with teacher pay, yet not a cent has been paid on a single one of these claims in over two years. If these school teachers pay these bills my clients can pay me, I can pay my landlord my past due rent, he can pay his taxes, and the school board can pay the teachers.

One point which galls every professional man is the fact that school teachers, with the minimum educational requirement of any profession, should be demanding more pay than any other profession actually receives these days; and that these teachers should so forget their professional dignity as to indulge in riots, mobbings, and similar public disorders.

I have met one of our World Fair visitors, who was beaten up in the same manner as myself. He said he expected to find gangsters in Chicago, but hardly expected to be attacked by school teachers on State street.

ROBERT E. BARCLAY.

THE HARRISON STATUE.

Chicago, June 10.—It's a fine thing to see Chicago all dressed up for A Century of Progress: old buildings repainted, statues cleaned, even the telegraph poles painted in gala colors. But as I drove through Union park today on my way back from the Fair I couldn't help but feel bad when I noticed the statue of Carter Harrison, grimy with soot, neglected. Carter Harrison was mayor of Chicago during the Fair of '93. And he was one of the finest mayors this city ever had. We who knew the old Fair, too, remember. MRS. A. M. C.

KEEPING CLEAN AND NEAT.

Chicago, June 9.—We grocery owners have strict orders to give people that are on relief only what is on the statement sent to us. I think that it is not very fair to them. How can these persons keep clean if we cannot supply them with brooms, brushes, mopsticks, and mops? Also how can they hang their clothes if they have no clothes lines nor clothes pins? Can they keep their clothes neat if they have no sewing thread? I do not blame these people for complaining. JOE CICERO.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

Newark, N. J., June 7.—In your paper for June 4 is a picture saying that Lord Nelson was the Paul Jones of the English navy.

Paul was the ignorant son of a laborer-gardener, wharf rat, coal yard worker, roustabout, sailor before the mast, third class mate.

1. River thief and pirate. His experience as a member of a crew of armed robbers attacking unarmed merchantmen was useful to him when he got command of the Ranger.

2. Slaver. He made two voyages to Africa with other slavers to steal Negro men, women, and children and sell them into bondage.

3. Adventurer. He came to America from Scotland to see his brother and make his fortune.

4. He was distrusted by the patriots of the revolution and could not get command of a ship worth while.

5. So he left this country for France, and there he hounded Ambassador Benjamin Franklin until the latter obtained for him an old vessel from the French navy.

6. In that vessel he ravaged the coast of his own country [Scotland] and England; and he continued his pirate practice of seizing merchant ships—the Mayflower, the Fortuno, etc.

7. He wrote, on April 23, 1778, to the countess of Selkirk, whose home his sailors had broken into and whose silver plate they had stolen: . . . "I am not in arms altogether as an American. . . . I profess myself a citizen of the world totally unfettered by the little mean distinctions of climate or country. . . ."

8. He could get no more employment from the American congress, so he jumped at the offer of a place in the navy of Russia, the then most brutally autocratic government in the world.

9. He did not last long in Russia. He was dismissed from the Russian navy by the Tsarina Catherine on the charge of feloniously assaulting a young girl. He left St. Petersburg in the autumn of 1789.

10. He arrived in Paris in June, 1790, having gone by way of Warsaw, Vienna, Amsterdam, The Hague, and London. There is ground for belief that he sought a commission in the Swedish navy to fight Russia, and also in the forces of Austria. Reports of these negotiations, writes F. A. Golder in his book, "John Paul Jones in Russia," reached St. Petersburg and the effect of them "was to give the tsarina the impression that Jones was a man without principles, ready to sell himself to the highest bidder."

11. He did not marry a wife, but he was entangled with a number of women. Among these were Aimee de Telison [to whom he gave a house in Paris and on whom he settled an annuity], Mme. d'Arbergne, and Princess Kourakina.

ROBERT ALLEN SHERWOOD.

LEAKING FAUCETS.

Chicago, June 6.—Thousands of gallons of water are wasted daily due to leaking faucets in public buildings and in public places. The writer's work has taken him into many schools. I have never failed to see one or more leaking drinking fountains and water closets. It would certainly ease the strain on the pumping stations if leaks were stopped and water shut off when the building is closed. DAVID I. BERNSTEIN.

Federal Police Chief Put in Charge of Vienna.

VIENNA, June 13.—(AP)—Maintenance of public safety in Vienna was taken out of the hands of its Socialist burgomaster today and turned over to Federal Police Chief Eugene Seydel as the city continued in an uproar with bombings and other disturbances.

The shift was made by the federal government which also appointed commissars for Austria's nine states. Police Chief Seydel will be responsible solely to the government.

Guns Guard Chancellery.

Machine guns and helmeted state police were stationed about the chancellery and the former Hapsburg palace.

These steps came hard on the heels of a protest lodged by Alfred Frauenfeld, leader of the Austrian Nazis, against government accusations that Nazis have been resorting to terrorism. The protest was made to President Miklas.

Adolf Hitler's homeland became increasingly unsafe for his followers as police arrested hundreds in raids on Nazi party headquarters not already raided and closed yesterday. Scores of German citizens were among those taken. The house where Hitler was born was raided and padlocked at Braunau, because Nazis make the house their headquarters and all such Nazi centers are being shut by the authorities.

One of the arrested men was Theodore Habicht, member of the German reichstag, who has been active in advising the party here. Frauenfeld, in his protest, demanded cessation of all anti-Nazi raids and release of leaders arrested.

Boy Scout Hut Wrecked.

In two new bombings today a fixed price store was wrecked and a Boy Scout hut headquarters in a suburb demolished. Police sought the perpetrators.

The governor of Salzburg, Franz Rehrl, resigned tonight in protest to the appointment of federal commissars for the states.

War Minister Vaugoin, in a speech in Vienna, said: "There won't be any revolution, but if one should be attempted we know what to do—there is such a thing as martial law."

Meanwhile the German minister formally protested against the arrest of Habicht, reminding the Austrian foreign office that he is a press attaché at the German legation. At the Austrian mining college at Looben students rioted and hoisted a Nazi flag.

Bombings yesterday and over the week-end resulted in death to two persons and injury to at least five others.

Chancellor Dollfuss' government, which attributed the explosions and other acts of violence to "the brown terror," today issued a decree forbidding government employés from joining the Nazi party. The decree, however, did not dissolve the party.

Frauenfeld's protest set forth that the Nazis deplored the disturbances as much as any one.

IONIA (MICH.) MARKS 100 YEAR HISTORY BY TWO DAY FETE

Ionia, Mich., June 13.—[Special.]—Its business area decorated with flags and bunting, this city will recall with a parade tomorrow its Century of Progress. It was founded in 1833 by Samuel Dexter, one time New York assemblyman, and 62 colonists.

Gov. William A. Comstock will review the parade and later speak at Riverside park, near the spot where Dexter first settled.

Lansing, Grand Rapids, and other neighboring towns will have floats in the parade, in which there will be seven bands.

Miss Ethelynne Scully, 21, and dark haired, will be crowned queen of the centennial during the afternoon. Lieut. Gov. Allen E. Stebbins will place the crown on her head.

Thursday afternoon Congresman M. J. Hart of Saginaw, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald, and Dr. Paul F. Voelker, new state superintendent of public instruction, will speak.

BOARD TO PLAN REINSURANCE OF ILLINOIS LIFE

Three attorneys, experienced in insurance affairs, were appointed yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson as an advisory board to study proposed plans for the reinsurance of 70,000 policy holders in the Illinois Life Insurance company, which is now in receivership. The attorneys are William H. Thompson of Indianapolis, Thomas L. Marshall of Chicago, and Samuel T. Swansen of Milwaukee. Mr. Swansen is counsel for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company.

The board is empowered to examine and report to Judge Wilkerson on a revised plan for reinsurance to be submitted by June 16 by the Associated Mutuals of Boston. The court order also directed the attorneys to examine other plans or to devise a plan of their own in case the revised plan of the Boston concern does not meet the court's approval.

Judge Wilkerson pointed out that at the previous court hearings it had appeared that Associated Mutuals could not proceed without a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The court order empowered the newly created advisory board to negotiate with the R. F. C. concerning the Associated Mutuals plan or in regard to any new plan favored.

"Any undue delay may result in depreciation of assets of the receivership and may result in gradual losses to the investors and business of the Illinois Life Insurance company," the court order said. "The conservation of assets and of business requires prompt action."

The Associated Mutuals plan of reinsurance was submitted to the court by James S. Kemper & Co., insurance engineers.

Dissenters in previous court hearings attacked the proposed plan to borrow $3,000,000 or more from the R. F. C., the creation of a separate liquidating company for Illinois Life, and the clause permitting a maximum salary fund of $92,000 yearly for officers of the new company.

STATE REJECTS "L" HIGHWAY AS U. S. AID PROJECT

Will Use Federal Funds on Rural Roads.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—State Highway Engineer Lieberman today threw cold water on the proposal of civic leaders in Chicago and other northern Illinois cities to include a west side superhighway in President Roosevelt's $3,300,000,000 work relief program. Harry Wheeler, chairman of Gov. Horner's committee preparing recommendations for Illinois projects under the federal program, has said the road projects will be handled by the state highway department.

"I can't see any hope for an elevated highway under the President's program," said Mr. Lieberman.

"In the first place Illinois is going to get only about $18,800,000 for road work under this program. An elevated highway will cost more than that.

Says Plans Are Incomplete.

"Furthermore, President Roosevelt's main idea is to create as many jobs for unemployment relief as promptly as possible. There is still much preliminary work to be done before actual construction can start on a west side superhighway. There is still much disagreement as to specific routing and general type of design.

"Under the Roosevelt plan, I understand, preference will be given to secondary road building, then to the elimination of existing hazards, and then to city belt lines and street work. There will be little money left for this third item after the first two have been provided for.

"Secondary road work is given priority in an unemployment relief program because it provides a maximum of jobs for a minimum expenditure of money. There is no big investment in rights of way nor for equipment. Furthermore, with secondary work, employment can be well distributed throughout the state."

Short on Secondary Roads.

Illinois is weak as compared with neighboring states in its mileage of secondary roads. Past administrations, under the state bond issue acts, laid expensive concrete roads on little traveled roads, where a cheap bituminous macadam would have sufficed. Thus all available funds were exhausted on a comparatively few miles of improved road, leaving many miles of mud.

The state's highway advisory commission rated the construction of economical rural roads as ranking second in importance only to the need for urban thoroughfares.

"In addition to this country road work," Mr. Lieberman continued, "we have also surveyed the state's needs for railroad grade separations and new river bridges where existing grade crossings and spans are hazardous. When these are recommended for federal funds there won't be much money left from the $18,800,000 we expect to get from the government for road work, certainly not enough for a west side elevated highway even if we were ready to start construction promptly."

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, has pointed out that the major unemployment problem in Illinois lies in Chicago. The Chicago plan commission, which with other agencies has made thorough preliminary studies for a west side elevated highway during the last four years, contends that construction could be started promptly.

BIND AND ROB WOMAN.

NEW SALES TAX BILL WINS TEST VOTE IN SENATE

Backers See Passage of Measure Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—Sufficient strength was shown by the new 2 per cent retail sales tax bill in the senate this evening to lead its backers to predict its passage by that chamber tomorrow afternoon.

The test came on an amendment presented by Senator Charles H. Thompson [Rep., Harrisburg], at the request, he said, of officers of the Illinois Agricultural association, which Senator Francis J. Loughran [Dem., Chicago] the administration leader in this fight, charged constituted another exemption for farm products sufficient to lead the state Supreme court to kill this measure as it did its 3 per cent predecessor.

More Votes in Sight.

Loughran moved to table the Thompson amendment and his motion was carried by a vote of 25 to 19. There were several senators known to be favorable to the bill who were absent. Also some of those who, as an evidence of kindly thoughts toward the farmers, voted against the Loughran motion but who are expected to vote for the bill in its present form.

The Thompson amendment would have exempted from the sales subject to the tax all "sales of tangible personal property by the producer or manufacturer thereof engaged primarily in the business of producing or manufacturing such tangible personal property to the extent that such sales are incident to such business."

Designed to Exempt Farmer.

Loughran said, and Thompson confirmed the statement, that the amendment was designed to take from under the tax the products a farmer might sell "to his neighbor" in the way of feed for live stock. It was considered extremely indefinite in its wording.

Senator James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville] withdrew his amendment to reduce the tax to 1 per cent and the bill was advanced to third or final reading.

"Red" Forsythe, Former Capone Aid, Arrested

James [Red] Forsythe, 30 years old, 7402 South Union avenue, was taken into custody yesterday by a detective bureau squad and was charged with disorderly conduct. Forsythe, also known as Fawcett, is a survivor from the old Capone régime and an associate of Sam Hunt and Murray Humphries, the latter now the leader of the Capone gang remnants. A request for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in his behalf less than 30 minutes after the arrest.

CONSOLIDATED ELECTIONS GAIN DEMOCRATS' AID

Horner and Nash to Back Miss Perry's Bill.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—Expressing regret at the failure of such action by the present general assembly, Democratic leaders today planned to put the full strength of the party behind consolidation of local elections as a way to save taxpayers' money.

The decision was reached at a conference between Gov. Horner and Pat Nash, the Chicago national committeeman and Cook county central committee chairman, with other leaders in the governor's office. They agreed to support a bill introduced by Miss Josephine Perry [Republican] of Chicago aimed at codification of election laws if she will amend it so as to lay greater emphasis on the consolidation factor. Miss Perry said she had that election reform in mind when she drafted her measure calling for a special commission to draft new legislation.

Will Call Back Bill.

The bill is now on third reading in the house and she will call it back to second reading tomorrow and seek to amend it in a way to provide that a number of elections be held on the same dates, at the same polling places and with the same judges and clerks.

Committeeman Nash told that there had been criticism of the Democratic party and state administration because the consolidation proposal had not met with success at this session, denied that the party could be charged with the responsibility, and later Gov. Horner said the same on behalf of the administration.

"Our county organization indorsed the proposal," said Mr. Nash, "but we did so on nonpartisan grounds and did not seek to make it a party issue. To have done so would have been a mistake. I am told, also, that the legal obstacles to working out the plan were so complex and numerous that the task could not be accomplished at this session."

"Too Many Labels."

Gov. Horner said that he had had to avoid placing the label of "administration bill" on all the vast number of bill appearing during the first session in many years of a Democratic assembly. Of necessity he had espoused a limited number of causes that he thought were of the greatest immediate importance. "I regret," he said, "that the legislators have not been able to solve this one, but neither they nor the Democratic party should be censured for that. The party has gone a long ways toward fulfilling its promises. The administration also has aided materially in meeting other problems."

Judge FitzHenry Arrives Today for Court Session

Federal Judge Louis FitzHenry of Springfield, whose appointment as a judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has been confirmed by the senate, will arrive today to sit as a judge in the District court for the remainder of the week. Federal officials here said that Judge FitzHenry probably would be sworn in as an Appellate judge during his stay in Chicago.

NASH RALLIES CAUCUS BEHIND HORNER PROGRAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—As the immediate result of a Democratic caucus earlier in the day, addressed by P. A. Nash of Chicago, national committeeman, several of the series of Horner administration bills moved forward this afternoon.

Long delayed action on the bills to allow the tax commission to assess the capital stock of corporations was taken from the revenue committee and the bills sent to the floor by a vote of 11 to 8.

To Push Redistricting Plan.

There also was a decision to push the Democratic plan for congressional reapportionment, the sales tax, the utility regulation bill, the park consolidation plan now in the senate, the racing commission bills, and the west park refinancing plan presented to the senate today by R. V. Graham [Dem., Chicago].

Congresional reapportionment received a setback several weeks ago when Republicans and Democrats alike leaped on the plan presented and kept it in committee. Today, however, during the caucus minor differences were adjusted and the majority is expected to stand behind the bill.

West Park Bills Up.

The West park series of bills would authorize bond issues totaling $9,850,000 to pay back salaries and indebtedness. One of the bills repeals the act passed last year permitting the board to issue bonds for maintenance and improvement of the parks. Since no bonds were issued, the present board now seeks to repeal the law.

Action in the house elections committee, while not linked with the caucus in any way, amended the bill for four year terms for ward committeemen by prohibiting extensions of present terms, but providing that in 1936 the committeemen shall be elected for four year terms.

This was not taken as evidence that the bill will pass. Gov. Horner has stood against it, and the committee action was more in the way of a compromise with its sponsor, Frank E. Foster [Rep., Harvey]. A fight is predicted when the bill reaches the floor.

CHEMICAL ENGINEERS WILL OPEN MEETING IN CHICAGO TODAY

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers will hold its silver anniversary meeting in Chicago, beginning this morning and lasting until Friday. More than 300 members are expected to attend these sessions, which will be held at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. Research men, consulting engineers, authorities on fine and heavy chemicals, pulp and paper and petroleum, educators and technical editors, will aid in the review of progress made in this science during the last 25 years.

Dr. Willard E. Hotchkiss, president of Armour Institute of Technology, will open the meeting this morning with an address. Henry W. Easterwood of the Victor Chemical Works of Chicago will speak on "Manufacture of Phosphoric Acid by the Blast Furnace Method." D. B. Keyes of the University of Illinois will read a paper on coöperative research in chemical engineering at the university. David E. Pierce of Philadelphia will outline the rôle of the semi-commercial scale demonstration plants in a paper entitled "The Half-Way House."

In the afternoon trips will be made to the Corn Products company, the sanitary district, the stockyards and to the Universal Oil Products plants.

MEAT DEALERS ADOPT CODE TO FIT NEW U. S. ACT

Rules Await O. K. by Government.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Acting under provisions of the new federal agricultural adjustment act adopted last month, the organized retail meat dealers of the nation yesterday adopted a code of fair trade practices, which, upon approval by the federal administration, will become mandatory upon all distributors of meat products.

The code was approved by the National Association of Retail Meat dealers at the close of nearly two days of discussion by delegates at the 48th annual convention in the Congress hotel. Officers of the association sent a telegram yesterday to George N. Peek, administrator of the farm act under Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, advising him of the adoption of the code.

Washington Commends Action.

Mr. Peek replied that the administration in Washington was gratified at the voluntary action of the meat retailers. John A. Kotel, secretary of the association, said early hearings would be arranged by the federal authorities to allow members of the meat dealers' associations, and nonmembers as well, to express their attitude toward the code.

The new code classes as unfair such practices as falsifying the grade, quality, quantity, or condition of any meat offered for sale. It also outlaws misleading or false advertising, secret rebates, obscuring prices of meats, selling similar goods at less than cost, selling meats at less than cost, selling similar goods at lower prices to some purchasers than to others, or offering premiums as inducements to buy.

Purchasers of meats under the new code also would be entitled to know from what portion of the animal carcass the roasts, chops, or other retail cuts are taken, and when they purchase a ham they will know it comes from a pig's hindquarters instead of a shoulder.

Expect Voluntary Compliance.

It was anticipated here yesterday that the new standards would be accepted voluntarily by the meat trade, as much as possible, but that the secretary of agriculture might license all meat dealers and fine or penalize those not complying with the code. The meat merchants gave much consideration to the question of regulating prices, and steps are being taken to enable a dealer to set prices on each cut of meat he sells in proportion to its value and allowing a fair profit.

Knox County Fixes $25 Fee for Beer Licenses

Galesburg, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—Knox county supervisors today voted a flat $25 fee for beer license in the county. After accepting 16 applications they recessed until June 27, when a special meeting will be held to act on further requests for licenses. An effort was made to notify all retailers that application must be made today, but when this failed the special meeting was called so that no injustices would be wrought.

DIE IN AUTO WRECK.

Moline, Ill., June 13.—(AP)—John Otis Hanna, 58, of Geneseo, was killed and his brother, Bud Hanna, also of Geneseo, was severely injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck near Silvis.

WOMAN IS SHOT AS HER ESCORT FIGHTS GUNMEN

Mrs. William Wakefield, 45 years old, 6600 Kenwood avenue, wife of a night watchman, was shot in the chest early this morning by one of two gunmen when her companion, H. C. Symmes, 45 years old, 1540 East 65th place, resisted their apparent attempt at robbery. She is expected to recover.

The shooting took place at 67th street and Dorchester avenue while Mrs. Wakefield and Symmes were walking to her home. A car containing three men drew up to them. Two of the men jumped out and drew revolvers. Symmes, who was carrying a heavy cane, struck the nearest bandit on the head with his cane. The second man fired and Mrs. Wakefield fell wounded.

Both gunmen jumped aboard their car, but Symmes followed, swinging the stick. He smashed in the side and rear windows. The hoodlums, fearing to drive away in a car with broken windows which might attract police notice, fled on foot. Miss Sarah Robinson, 6704 Blackstone avenue, a passing motorist, took Mrs. Wakefield to the Woodlawn hospital. Police seized the abandoned car. It had not been reported stolen and detectives expect to trace the gunmen through it.

Suit Tests Rights of Auto Driver and His Girl Guests

Los Angeles, Cal., June 13.—[Special.]—Three girls, Geneva Royal, Josephine Murphy, and Margaret Barth, combined their individual damage suits seeking $25,000 each and went to court to demand $75,000 from Irwin Meyer, a "petulant escort," today. Meyer was driving the girls in his automobile, but became indignant at their "coolness," the girls stated, and drove into a phone pole, injuring all three of them. Meyer's legal reply was that the girls were "negligent in riding with a driver they knew to be ill-humored."

ANTI-SEDITION MEASURE VOTED DOWN BY HOUSE

Horner Sends Message on Canal Bond Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—One hour's discussion in the house of representatives today was sufficient to kill the anti-sedition teaching bills, sent over from the senate. The action taken was concurrence in a report from the revenue committee recommending the two measures do not pass. There was no record vote but the "ayes" overwhelmed the "nays" in a viva voce register.

Not in any sense committing itself to seditious or communistic utterances in colleges of the state by expunging the bills from the calendar, the house felt that failure to define the term "seditious matter" was sufficient cause for refusal to send them farther along in the legislative process. Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center], who fostered the bills in the senate lobbied openly for them.

Has Way to Suppress Reds.

Minority Leader Schnackenberg of Chicago was inclined to treat the entire matter lightly. "The way to suppress communism is to let the communists talk themselves out as they do in London," he said. "They talk themselves black in the face on the street corners and when they have finished, no one knows about it nor cares."

Amended to limit the amount to 100 millions, the sanitary district bond issue bill was held on second reading after Gov. Horner had sent a special message to the house urging that "it is necessary to take immediate steps to enable the sanitary district to discharge on its own account the obligations placed upon it by the decree of the United States Supreme court." The court ordered the district to build sewage disposal plants which will cost about $139,000,000.

Issue Own Bonds.

"I recommend," read another section of the message, "that further authorization by appropriate act of the general assembly be given the sanitary district to issue its own bonds without referendum in the amount required to carry out and complete its program for the construction of sewage treatment works and appurtenances thereto.

"Although these bonds may not be immediately saleable, yet if they are not saleable, on the open market, it is believed and hoped that they may be available as collateral as loans to the sanitary district from federal agencies now in existence or expected to be authorized."

4 College Students, 2 Girls and 2 Men, Hurt in Crash

RULES SHIPPERS MUST PROVE 3.2 BEER IS NOT INTOXICATING

Atlanta, Ga., June 13.—(AP)—Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood today placed upon haulers and shippers of beer in interstate commerce the burden of proving in any civil action that 3.2 beverage is not intoxicating.

He did this in denying an injunction sought by R. R. Richmire to restrain Sheriff E. M. Legg of Cobb county from seizing shipments consigned to another state.

The judge held that the federal beer law does not authorize transportation of liquors "intoxicating in fact" in a state which prohibits such transportation.

"Finding further," he adds, "that the laws of Georgia forbid the possession and transportation of beer of the character involved in this suit, and that the plaintiff who has come into the court of equity asking for permanent relief has not shown that the said beer is not intoxicating, injunction is denied."

ESTRANGED WIFE OF RAY FABIANI FOUND POISONED

Dispatches from Philadelphia last night reported that Mrs. Mercedes Fabriani, estranged wife of Aurelio [Ray] Fabiani, who was once first violinist for the Chicago Civic Opera company, had been found dead in her apartment there. Apparently she had committed suicide by drinking poison.

Mrs. Fabiani, since her separation from her husband, had been receiving $1,500 a month from him. Fabiani in recent years has deserted his musical career and has been identified with sports promotions in Philadelphia. He is known as one of the most successful wrestling bout promoters in the country.

Shortly before the war Fabiani was married in Chicago to Miss Douschka Di Vernon Hill. At that time it was reported that he was a marquis from Italy. In 1923 he sued Clarke A. Shaw, business manager of the Civic Opera company, for $100,000, alleging slander, but the case was not tried.

YEAR OF HIGHWAY WORK BLOCKED BY CEMENT ROW

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—The controversy between Gov. Horner and cement manufacturers has blocked any extensive highway construction program for this year, and he said today that hopes for a settlement were vague, if not remote.

As for the future of Illinois road building—the elimination of wasteful and inequitable practices that have typified the past—bills to bring about these reforms are pending. The governor today gave his support to these measures, and their prospects of passage are considered good.

Take Out Red Tape.

On the future road program, drafted by an advisory commission created by the 1931 legislature, bills enabling cities to get their dues from the gasoline tax were advanced to second reading in the senate today after passing the house last week.

"There are a few things about them that I don't care about, but it's the best possible program we could get through the legislature," Gov. Horner said of the measures in the senate.

Ask for Useless Bids.

Notwithstanding the stalemate in the cement controversy, the highway department today advertised for bids on more paving contracts that cannot be executed without this building material. Metropolitan area projects are:

Sunday School Teacher and Boy Drown in Indiana

Wabash, Ind., June 13.—[Special.]—Delbert Weaver, 29, a Sunday school teacher at Kokomo, and Floyd Wilson, 14, of Kokomo, drowned this afternoon in Mississinewa river, eight miles south of here. Weaver had taken his class on an outing. The boys were warned not to go in bathing until the teacher could accompany them. Young Wilson waded into water beyond his depth and when the teacher went to his rescue both were carried into the swift current. Weaver is survived by the widow and several children.

BOY 7, KILLED BY FALL.

Looks 10 Years Younger Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. With an ordinary small brush you just tint those streaks or patches of gray back to your natural shade,—whether blonde, brown or black. It is so easy to do—at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years success. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Defies detection. No tell-tale, "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and luster, your money back. Only 50c.

"Do as Europeans do when they drink their own fine old wines"— that was the idea we worked on . . . and behold! now you can enjoy the same delightful drink that connoisseurs sip with pleasure every night in the famous boulevard cafes of Europe.

FOR years America has been in possession of a vast but apparently unusable treasure. Millions of gallons of fine old wine lay in bond. Year by year they steadily improved as age and Nature worked their mysterious, mellowing effect.

What was to be done with all this precious treasure? Suddenly, with the legalization of 4% beverages, there came an inspiration! A perfect natural!

America could drink this wine! More than that, America could drink it exactly the way the most sophisticated wine lovers of Europe would drink it.

How Europeans drink

Rarely do Europeans drink their wine "straight." Most wines are too heavy. Only small quantities could be imbibed that way. So they add seltzer. This not only reduces the heaviness of the wine, but actually heightens its cheering, stimulating effect. It is a fact that any given amount of wine is more exhilarating when drunk with seltzer than without.

Add bubbles—get 4%

Why not, then, we thought, do this very thing? Do at a bottling plant exactly what the European does at his table—add just enough of these wonder working bubbles to the wine to bring the total alcoholic content down to the legal 4%—and give this beverage to Americans ready to drink.

It was not quite so easy as it sounds. The problem was to produce this wine beverage so that the two elements would remain stable. How Mission Dry solved it, after thousands of experiments, is our secret. But solve it we did!

Today we present California Burgundy Wine Beverage, made with fully-matured, mellow California Burgundy. Tonight, in your own home, you can enjoy a fine old wine as it would be enjoyed by the connoisseurs of Europe.

Only 30 cents a bottle

Try a bottle or two for a complete surprise. Get it from your druggist or grocer, at hotels, supper clubs, or wherever you dine. In the large black bottle with the gold label for only 30 cents.

ORDER DAUGHTER HELD TO JURY IN MOTHER'S DEATH

Woman Driver Blamed in Fatal Crash.

A coroner's jury recommended that Mrs. Mae Rasmussen, 39 years old, 1519 West Huron street, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter at the inquest yesterday into the death of her mother, Mrs. Bessie Burkett, 60 years old, in an automobile collision on May 28.

The police testified that Mrs. Rasmussen admitted having drunk several glasses of beer before the accident. This was confirmed by an affidavit of a physician. Mrs. Rasmussen is confined to her home from injuries suffered in the accident. Mrs. Rasmussen's car crashed against an automobile driven by James Carey, 537 West 44th street, at Mannheim and St. Charles roads in Bellwood. Mrs. Burkett was pinned between the two automobiles.

Two Deaths During Day.

Two deaths here yesterday swelled the 1933 Cook county motor toll to 430. The victims:

Charles Stratford, 67 years old, 2220 Granville avenue. Died in the Martha Washington hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Diversey boulevard and North Western avenue yesterday after stepping from a safety island. Samuel Borden, 3227 Touhy avenue, driver of the car, was held.

Henry Lewis, 34 years old, colored, 3645 South La Salle street. Died at the Provident hospital of injuries incurred in an automobile collision at South Dearborn and West 45th street early yesterday. The driver of the other automobile was sought by the police.

Indiana Harbor Crash Victim Dead.

Mrs. Anna Leder, 65 years old, 3214 North Whipple street. Died at her home yesterday of injuries suffered June 9 in an automobile collision at 138th street and Grand boulevard, Indiana Harbor. Mrs. Leder was first treated at St. Catherine's hospital in Indiana Harbor, and was taken to her home when it was believed she was not seriously injured.

RENEW CHARGES AGAINST HEAD OF VETERAN RELIEF

A report made by the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university, alleging that William A. Schlupp, supervisor of county relief to war veterans, forged the signature of Edward Nelson, carpenter, on two relief orders for groceries, was given to the county board by Commissioner Amelia Sears yesterday. A copy of the report was also dispatched to the veterans' organizations which defended Schlupp recently when charges were made that he had misused relief funds.

The relief orders and several slips of paper upon which Schlupp had written Nelson's name at the request of the county board during one of the hearings of the charges, were studied by handwriting experts at the laboratory. The laboratory report said that "the two questioned signatures are forgeries and are the work of the suspect who wrote the two exhibits." The county board deferred action on the report.

Miss Sears also reported that, of 36 instances in which relief orders were sent to addresses where no one on the relief rolls was living, only 5 had been explained by Schlupp.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Just in Case

Collings Suspect Is Cleared of Crime.

Westport, Conn., June 13.—(AP)—Another chapter in the two year old mystery of who killed Benjamin P. Collings, Stamford yachtsman and engineer, was closed tonight after his widow said Frank Dreger, confessed burglar, was not one of his slayers.

Dreger's name came into the case yesterday when Mrs. Collings said his profile resembled that of the elder of the two men who boarded her husband's yacht Penguin in September, 1931, bound and beat her husband to death, tossed his body into the sound and abducted her.

Voice Test Clears Him.

No trace of the slayers has ever been found although Mrs. Collings on first viewing Dreger, said he looked more like one of the two men than any one she had seen since the tragedy on Long Island sound.

Today state police brought Dreger here so Mrs. Collings could hear his voice. After being closeted with Dreger, Fred Munder, assistant state's attorney from Suffolk county, New York, and her attorney, Matthew E. Hanna, and police for a half-hour Mrs. Collings said she was "positive" Dreger was not one of the slayers.

Munder announced immediately that as far as he was concerned, the Dreger angle of the case was closed. He said he would return at once to Suffolk county.

Faces Burglary Charges.

The positive statement from Mrs. Collings came after a Norwalk oysterman, whose identity was not disclosed, had appeared at the Bridgeport jail and announced Dreger resembled a man he had towed near the Penguin before the 20th century piracy had occurred.

Dreger was returned to Bridgeport after the interview where he faces charges of burglary in connection with a series of robberies of estates in southeastern Connecticut for which he was under arrest as Mrs. Collings saw him the first time.

Takes Name Off Relief Rolls; Wife Sues Him

Because he took his name from the relief rolls after he began to make enough money from his barbering to support his family, his wife, Carmelinda, filed suit for separate maintenance against him, Michele Reo, 4444 Madison street, told Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday. Reo was appearing with his attorney, Norman Becker, to seek a reduction in the $15 a week temporary alimony granted his wife for the support of her four children. Judge Finnegan reduced the alimony to $10 a week.

To users of SALTS:

Never take salts that are claimed to be "like" the salts of the historic springs in Carlsbad, Czechoslovakia. Insist on getting the genuine CARLSBAD SPRUDEL SALT and enjoy the true benefits of the famous Carlsbad cure.

Nature's laboratory is still beyond imitation by man and the natural product of Carlsbad Springs positively cannot be duplicated by manufactured salts.

Concentrated and effective in small doses, CARLSBAD SPRUDEL SALT is the most economical after all. 600 years of medical experience are behind its use in correcting constipation and eliminating body poisons from bowels, kidneys and blood stream in the treatment of stomach, kidney and liver complaints, rheumatism, obesity, and associated headaches, colds and skin troubles. It is non-habit forming and thoroughly reliable. Refuse manufactured salts. Ask your druggist for the genuine.

WATCHES CLEWS TO IDENTITY OF 2 PLANE VICTIMS

Two watches, blackened by fire, one a wrist watch and the other a pocket watch, were found yesterday in the wreckage of the Sikorsky amphibian plane which crashed near Glenview Sunday evening killing its nine occupants. Both watches were manufactured by the Waltham watch company. Under a magnifying glass the following numbers were discovered: pocket watch, 21176881, size 18; wrist watch, 26-178027. The initials "W. F. F." were engraved in the pocket watch.

The two watches were found by Chief of Police J. V. Miller of Glenview. It is believed they may aid in determining the names of the two victims whose bodies are unidentified. The only other clew found thus far was a partially burned bus ticket to Buffalo, N. Y., taken from the clothing of one of the victims.

The bodies of the seven victims who have been identified were sent to their homes yesterday.

Meanwhile O. W. Young and L. J. Holoubek, department of commerce aviation inspectors, are making a survey of flying concessions and conditions at the World's Fair grounds with the view of eliminating any hazards, if they exist. Their investigation includes the two blimps, the captive balloon, and the amphibian planes operating at the Fair. The inquiry was asked by Fair officials as a precautionary measure.

George Vest, supervising inspector for the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce here, said yesterday it was the opinion of several veteran flyers that Carl Vickery, pilot of the wrecked plane, mistook the sound of a breaking pontoon for a break in the hull of the amphibian. Fearing the plane would sink if it landed on water, he sought to land at an airport, according to the pilots.

CAPT. BERNHARDT, COUSIN OF 'DIVINE SARAH,' DIES AT 102

Capt. Maurice Bernhardt, cousin of the "Divine Sarah" and himself an adventurer, sailor, and soldier, died at the refuge of the Little Sisters of the Poor, 1255 West Harrison street, yesterday. He was 102 years old.

For many years Capt. Bernhardt had been a resident of Chicago, employed during the last decade as a model at the Art institute. It was through friends among the art students that his history was recalled.

During the civil war Capt. Bernhardt served with the Union navy. He was credited with delivering the challenge issued by the captain of the Union ship Kearsarge to the confederate ship Alabama in the harbor of Cherbourg, which led to the famous naval battle. For his services with the Union he was presented with a sword by President Lincoln. During the Franco-Prussian war Bernhardt served with a regiment from his native city, Paris, where he was born on April 15, 1831.

Later Capt. Bernhardt returned to sea and became commander of a trans-Atlantic passenger ship. During the world war he was active as a speaker in the Liberty loan drives.

Capt. Bernhardt came to the United States when he was 23 years old. He had graduated from Charlemagne college in Paris and had studied at the University of Liege, Belgium. Funeral plans will be announced later.

Severe Quake Is Felt in Alaska; City Shaken

SEWARD, Alaska, June 13.—(AP)—An earthquake of moderate severity was felt here at 12:20 p. m. today, followed by a series of undulations. Previous lesser shocks had been felt occasionally since early yesterday. This region was visited by a severe earthquake six weeks ago.

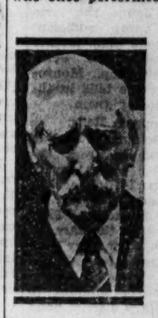
Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—[Special.]—An extension of ten days to Jan. 25 was given today by the Rev. E. Reginald Williams, rector of St. Mark's Espiscopal church, to file an answer to his wife's suit for divorce.

UNION SPY WHO STOLE GEN. LEE'S BATTLE PLANS DEAD

Jason H. Edgerly, civil war veteran who once performed the perilous feat of stealing the battle plans of the southern general, Robert E. Lee, died last evening in his home at 12419 South Maple avenue, Blue Island. He was 94 years old.



JASON H. EDGERLY.

Mr. Edgerly joined the Union forces in Boston in 1861. He was one of a detachment sent with supplies to Fort Sumter. The ship on which he sailed was unable to land. Later he enlisted in the 3d Massachusetts artillery regiment. In 1862, masquerading as a lieutenant of a Louisiana regiment, he penetrated to Richmond and obtained valuable information about the army of the south and the fortifications.

His reports, it was said, were sent to President Lincoln personally. Mr. Edgerly had met Lincoln in 1860 when he was campaigning in Massachusetts. The Willow Creek battle plans were those the volunteer was credited with stealing.

In 1888 Mr. Edgerly came to the Chicago region. He lived for a time in Chicago and later moved to Blue Island. He is survived by a daughter and two sons.

BURGLAR FLEES AS OCCUPANT OF HOME ARRIVES

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13.—[Special.]—A bandit who broke into two west side houses tonight while the occupants were away was surprised while ransacking them.

Mr. and Mrs. August C. Orthmann returned to their home at 1913 North 48th street and found a pane of glass in the front door broken. They suspected burglary. As they entered the house, a man ran from the back door. The house had been ransacked. Orthmann, who is president of the Orthmann Laboratories, Inc., told police jewelry was missing.

A burglar, believed to be the same man, was surprised by William J. Koehring in the rear hallway of his home at 2371 North Sherman boulevard. The man had forced the rear door with a screw driver. Koehring is president of the Koehring company, manufacturers of machinery. Nothing is missing from the house.

2,000 IDLE SCOTS SIT IN STREETS OF EDINBURGH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 13.—Princes street, the proudest thoroughfare in all Scotland, presented a startling spectacle today when the city awoke and discovered that 2,000 idle men and women had marched in during the night and camped on the sidewalks.

Bankers and business men going to their offices found the multitude sprawling and squatting on the pavements, where they had spent the night. They had gathered from all parts of Scotland to protest against the treatment of the idle under the present dole system.

Plan Extended "Occupation."

The site chosen for the camp is opposite the classic war memorial presented to Scotland by Americans of Scottish descent. It is beneath the crags on which historic Edinburgh castle stands.

While the town went about its business the demonstrators leisurely arose and performed their morning ablutions in nearby fountains. Breakfast had been prepared at makeshift field kitchens which were supplied with vats filled with tea and coffee.

The same procedure was repeated at noon and Edinburgh's show street was soon littered with scraps of paper and broken crockery.

Police made no attempt to interfere with the demonstrators, who spent the day playing cards on the sidewalk and lounging around the heart of the business district.

Early tonight the marchers made a protest before the city chamber. Refused accommodations, the demonstrators left peacefully. Late tonight churches and philanthropic organizations were trying to arrange shelter for the idle campers. The latter refused to accept the hospitality of scattered shelters throughout the city.

Police Guard Area.

Heavy police guards were thrown around the rear, while troops were held in readiness at the Redford cavalry barracks, four miles away.

The night was bitterly cold, with a raw wind blowing in from the sea, and the demonstrators appeared to be in for a hard time.

Brazil's Chief Studies Plan to Let Exiles Return Home

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 13.—(AP)—Authoritative sources disclosed today that President Getulio Vargas is studying arrangements to permit nearly all exiles involved in the 1932 Sao Paulo revolution to return to Brazil. During the last several weeks the government has been giving permission to a few individuals to return. Two arrived today and seven others were reported sailing from Lisbon, Portugal.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralising gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralises burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

4 New Novels Interpret Life of the South

One Is First Historical Tale of American Jew.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The south of our own country has recently had a fictional revival, especially in its historical phases. Four novels from four experienced and gifted pens have within the last few months been offered in interpretation of a section which from the peak of national culture and charm suffered bitter tragedy which threatened to destroy it, but from which there has emerged a new spirit.

VIRGINIA HERSCH.

JOSEPHINE HERBST.

"Storm Beach" is a story of Charleston, S. C., in the days of an earlier war before the civil war rubbed a quick eraser over its glories. It opens first before the news of the cessation of hostilities in the war of 1812—news which took two months to reach Charleston. One of its most spectacular scenes is that of the celebration of that news.

But it is not as a costume piece that "Storm Beach" will be remembered by its readers. It is rather a novel of race than of a period. It is said to be the first American-Jewish historical novel by no less an authority than Ludwig Lewisohn, who, incidentally, grew up in a little town, St. Michaels, S. C., and was educated at the College of Charleston. It seems impossible that no one before Miss Hersch has written a racial novel of America's past in relation to its Jewry, but Mr. Lewisohn ought to know.

MARY JOHNSTON.

The Carvalhos, relic of the Santa Domingo Spanish Jews, most aristocratic of their race, settled in Charleston after a flight from the island in the insurrection of the slaves, are as proud, as entrenched in their social traditions as only those can be who are driven by fate from a heritage which they know is theirs by right of lineage and intellect. Against the pitiless stone wall of those traditions Judith Carvalho is dashed. Her love for a scion of an old Charleston family [Gentile] and his for her is of less stern stuff than the pride of race which has kept the Carvalho clan together in adversity. The young man cannot do what another Gentile did to become the wife of his beloved's brother—become an orthodox Jew. The girl cannot face ostracism on the part of her family. They part, and Judith becomes even more intensely a poet and achieves an ecstasy of racial fulfillment which she believes compensates her for the sacrifice of her emotional life.

GERALD W. JOHNSON.

Against the background of Charleston in its growing, glowing days the racial drama is worked out with a meagerness of fictional panoply which gives the book a sparseness which, it seems to me, it should not have. The rich tapestry of the highly sensitized lives of the characters could have been embroidered to its last brilliant thread, and the book would have been a better book for the embroidery.

Utterly different is Mary Johnston's "Miss Delicia Allen." Almost in a monotone is told the tale of a lovely southern girl and a lovely southern plantation, both broken by fate, but of both one might quote Moore: "You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will, but the scent of the roses will hang 'round it still."

Quite unlike Miss Johnston's earlier vigorous tales, "To Have and to Hold" and "The Long Roll," for instance, "Miss Delicia Allen" is as much an experiment in a delicate mood as a picture of a period. Although it chronicles the lazy, lovely days of a pre-civil war plantation and the charm of a young person well named Delicia, who grows up, goes to London, is presented at court, and falls deeply in love with a man whom she cannot marry, from which devastating emotional experience she returns to four years of physical adjustment to a new emotional horror, the civil war, "Miss Delicia Allen" retains throughout its pages the scent of roses "hanging 'round" the tragedy.

Quite another south is that celebrated in Josephine Herbst's vigorous "Pity Is Not Enough." With the carpet baggers of the seventies, who swarmed like locusts through the already devastated south, there went Joe Trexler, handsome and unscrupulous, to gather gold and power. He was a lesser part of the great railroad scandal and, being the little man, he suffered squashing as the locusts were finally fought. He sought another quick fortune in the Bad Lands, but unsuccessfully, and he died insane, but not without having made of himself a legend for all time to his family—to his mother, who had sewn uniforms during the war to keep her family alive, and to whom his largesse seemed a divine gift, to his sisters, to whom his godlike qualities masked a nature which they never knew. "Pity Is Not Enough" is at the same time the record of a strange character and the record of the unique time and place in which such a character could have developed.

Gerald W. Johnson's "No. 36" brings the southern saga up to the present. Mr. Johnson, a Baltimore journalist, 43 years old, who since the publication of "Andrew Jackson" is considered one of the outstanding biographers of our day, has heretofore devoted himself to the period of the civil war in his literary work. "No. 36" is a novel of Mr. Jackson's own lifetime. His hero is a small boy watching "No. 36," the crack train to Washington, go through a sleepy North Carolina town as the book opens. As it closes he is the owner of the town newspaper, the most important figure in the community, which has become violently progressive.

In the passage of the years Don has been to college and to the great war, and has voluntarily returned to watch his little home town come phœnixlike out of its coma, and to take his place as the first rouser in that ceremonial awakening.

No one of the four books is the great classic of the south. But neither is any one of the four a book of which the new and vigorous intellectual south cannot be proud.

says Fanny Butcher of the new novel by the author of Seed. . . "A book which will be discussed . . widely and passionately. . . "

George Gershwin to Be Soloist for Concert Tonight

BY EDWARD MOORE.

George Gershwin, undoubtedly the best known of all American composers, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Auditorium tonight in the fine series of concerts held under the auspices of the Friends of Music. He will play his own Concerto in F and Rhapsody in Blue, and between the numbers William Daly will conduct the orchestra in the Gershwin suite, "An American in Paris."

The program tonight takes the title of American night. In the first half Mr. Stock will conduct Henry Hadley's overture, "In Bohemia," and Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass," both the compositions of other eminent American composers.

The Southern Iowa Farm Bureau band fairly well filled the eastern section of the court of the Hall of States at A Century of Progress last night. Well it might, for it has a membership of something like 500. This means that almost any instrument one cares to name, clarinet, trumpet, trombone, what not, has fully enough players to make up a complete band of ordinary dimensions.

Players of all ages followed the baton of Director Mayo Williams. The youngest member of the band is 10 years old, the oldest 67. In part, membership would seem to follow family tradition, for one of the clarinet players, a practicing physician when not engaged in music, has both a son and a grandson who are likewise in the band.

It played merrily and with altogether commendable exactness. A smaller group, though with complete instrumentation, sat at the front and was assigned the duties of accompaniments for the soloists, of which there were several, a trumpeter, a whistler, and others. Music for the full band was mostly of popular character, marches, waltzes, well known melodies, played energetically and with good tone. It will be heard for the second and final time this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Chicago high schools contributed a full share to the Exposition music in the afternoon and evening. Two organizations from Lindblom, the girls' glee club directed by Esther Goetz, and the a cappella chorus directed by David Nyvall Jr., provided a concert of first rate quality in the afternoon. The Tuley orchestra under the direction of Irving Leichinger appeared in a brief program in the evening, playing such numbers as the final movement of the Italian symphony by Mendelssohn, the prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin," and selections of "My Maryland," in easy and well trained fashion. Both concerts were in the court of the Hall of Science.

Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Saint Paul," will be dramatized by the St. Elizabeth mixed choir at Fullerton hall, Art institute, tonight, under the direction of the Rev. G. B. Schmuelling, the organization's choirmaster.

Two No. Shore Girls Become Brides Today

They're Catharine Carton and Gertrude Owen.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Two north shore girls, Miss Catharine Carton of Lake Forest and Miss Gertrude L. Owen of Evanston, will become the brides of New Englanders today.

Miss Carton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton of Lake Forest is to be wed to Paul Plummer Swett Jr. of Hartford, Conn., at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Lake Forest Presbyterian church. Dressed in the ivory satin wedding gown of her mother, with a quaint bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies in her right hand, Miss Carton will move down the aisle on the arm of her father. Preceding her will be five of her best friends, all of them gowned alike in old fashioned dresses and picture hats.

Miss Eugenia Whyte Carton, a cousin of the bride and the daughter of the Laurence R. Cartons of Baltimore, is to be the maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Jane Crary and Miss Jeanne Stanley of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Margaret McLennan, and Miss Elizabeth Byron Smith of Lake Forest.

Standing at the altar as best man with Mr. Swett will be his father, Dr. Paul Plummer Swett of Hartford. Two more Hartford men, Josiah Swett, a brother of the groom, and Noyes Crary will help to usher the relatives and friends of the bride and groom to their pews.

The other ushers will be John Grandin Jr. of Boston, Eustace Dearborn of Sandwich, Mass.; John D. Appel III. of Scarsdale, N. Y.; Alfred Bell Jr. of San Francisco, Dudley Brown of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; Herbert Holbrook of Milwaukee, and Laurence Carton, a brother of the bride.

After Dr. George Roberts, pastor of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church, has read the service, Mr. Swett and his bride will receive their friends in the lovely gardens of the Carton home on Laurel avenue in Lake Forest. Small tables are to be spread about the sweeping lawns, from which a light supper will be served.

After a motor trip through Canada Mr. Swett and the new Mrs. Swett will make their home in Hartford.

Miss Owen, daughter of Mrs. Thomas H. Owen of Evanston, will be married to Frederic Low Chase Jr. of Providence, R. I. Because of the recent death of Miss Owen's father the ceremony is to be quiet and simple, solemnized by Dr. Paul Wolfe of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, at 8:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church, also in Evanston.

Mrs. James W. Reichert of Cleveland, a classmate of the bride at Smith college, is to be her only attendant. Kent Matteson of Providence will serve Mr. Chase as best man and ushering will be William Huntoon and Jack Washburne of East Greenwich, R. I.; James W. Reichert of Cleveland, and Sheldon Vanzwoll.

Out of town guests here for the ceremony include the groom's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic L. Chase, and Miss Helen Chase, an aunt of the groom, all of Providence, and Charles Allen of Worcester, Mass. Mrs. Hovey Freeman of Providence, who, with her three daughters—Bertha Beth, Peggy, and Nancy—is in Chicago for A Century of Progress, will also be among the guests.

Today Miss Helen Jones of Evanston, who is to become a bride herself on June 21, is entertaining at luncheon for Miss Owen. Last night Mrs. Owen gave the bridal dinner at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. Chase and his bride are to reside in Providence, where they have purchased and already furnished a little white colonial house.

Herma Clark's Book, "Dear Julia," Comes Off Press This Week

Chicagoans, especially veteran Chicagoans, will be delighted to learn that Herma Clark's book, "Dear Julia," which consists of excerpts from her column in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE "When Chicago Was Young," is to be off the press this week. On Saturday morning, in celebration of its appearance, Miss Clark is talking on early social life in this city at Field's.

Martha Esmond, the fictional writer of the quaint letters in the column, knew all of the Chicagoans of note in the Victorian days; so many social registerites will be turning the pages to see if their mothers and grandmothers were on Martha's visiting list.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Genevieve Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Wright of Wayne, Neb., and Alfred Conrad Lexow, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Edward Schwind of Evanston, will be solemnized at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston. Dr. Ernest Freemont Tittle, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Esther Mae Ingham of Wayne is to attend Miss Wright as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Robert Dilworth, a sister of the groom, and Miss Elsie Rice of Lincoln, Neb. Philip Rapp is to serve Mr. Lexow as best man. The ushers will be Stuart Ayars and Milford J. Wright. Jean Carlisle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Carlisle, is to be the flower girl.

Miss Mary Lucille Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blake B. Bell of Harvard and Lake Geneva, was married to Wilbur Higgins Jr. of Pasadena, Cal., last Saturday at the Harvard home of her parents, 307 Church boulevard.

The Rev. Edward E. Voigt of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Mrs. Herbert B. Megran, a sister of the groom. Nathan Hunt, a cousin of the bride whose home is in Pasadena, was best man for Mr. Bell. After July 15 the newly married couple is to be at home at 555 Jackson street, Pasadena.

De Lee Assails False Figures on Baby Deaths

Asserts U. S. Ranks as High as Any Country.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Social workers and the medical profession who claim a high infant mortality rate in the United States as compared with other countries were scored yesterday by Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, noted obstetrician and medical director of the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Dr. Lee addressed a group of welfare leaders in the second of a series of Tuesday lectures at A Century of Progress under the sponsorship of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies.

"It is high time that such criticism against obstetrics in this country be stopped," Dr. Lee declared. "The infant mortality rate in this country is no worse than that in other countries, and better than in a good many.

"As a matter of fact, statistics cannot be compared internationally. Supporters of the Sheppard-Towner bill some time ago rated this country as the 16th on the list of civilized countries in infant mortality rates. Such comparison cannot be made fairly. The league of nations has published a chart which gives sixteen reasons why international statistics are impossible. No two countries gather statistics in the same manner. For instance, many countries prepare statistics most carefully for military reasons while in our own country thousands of births are not recorded."

Dr. De Lee advocated home delivery where it is known that a hospital is not "a perfect maternity hospital." He declared the midwife to be a necessary adjunct in times of economic stress, but added that with the improvement of conditions midwifery should be dropped.

Private hospitals in Chicago spent approximately $4,000,000 on free bed patients the past year, an amount equivalent to that expended by the Cook County hospital, Paul Fesler, former president of the American Hospital association, informed the meeting. He estimated that one million patients are ill in 6,000 hospitals in the country daily. The number of free patients has almost doubled since 1929, he said, when 25 per cent of the hospital cases were free.

Miss Marian Rottman, principal of the school of nursing at Bellevue hospital, New York City, pointed out that the complexities of modern medicine have placed a greater responsibility than ever before upon the schools of nursing.

"It is not enough for the nurse to know that diseases exist and how they are treated and prevented through medical measures," she said. "They should know why these diseases exist, what they cost, who pays the cost and how it is paid. It is essential that the nurse be able to aid in finding the causes of diseases and aid in their eradication."

OPEN NURSING CONVENTION

Reduction in the high cost of nursing and in the use of undergraduate nurses in hospitals was urged by Dr. C. Rufus Rorem, associate director of the medical services, Julius Rosenwald fund, in a talk which struck the keynote of yesterday afternoon's session of the thirty-ninth annual convention of the National League of Nursing Education convention at the Drake hotel.

Dr. Rorem pointed out that the average special nursing fee exceeds that for surgery or hospital care.

"There are approximately 240,000 registered nurses in the United States, which is more than the number of doctors," he said. "Yet more than nine times as many families consult physicians as purchase nursing care."

Dr. Rorem said the continued use of undergraduate nurses as employes interferes with hospital financing and serves to make the ranks of unemployed graduate nurses larger.

Visitors here for the meetings are to be guests of the Central Council for Nursing Education at a dinner at 6:30 this evening in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel. Mrs. Frederic W. Upham as the general chairman will be the hostess.

Pink Dominant Color for New Feminine Togs

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Everything new in the way of clothes, hats and costume accessories will "strike you pink" . . . all kinds of new pale pink handbags, envelopes, squared pouches, bags with straps, bags with half clasp, of silver or white, clever things of that newest delectable shade of shell pink that is hustling white almost out of the fashion parade.

Until you have seen navy blue contrasted with shell pink, you have merely been blue. This frightfully fascinating pink shade does grand things for simple navy blue street frocks. Wear pink as a lining to a broad brimmed blue hat. Wear it with white. It is knockout with seafoam green and beyond description paired with black.

Pale pink costume jewelry looks good enough to eat. Combined with white it is the coolest stuff you can wear. Some rather old fashioned coral strands and bracelets, twin finger rings, and carrings of this rosy pink coral are most modestly priced and twice as effective with summer clothes as any other color.

Some new evening jackets of pale pink organdy made with a semi-fitted silhouette and short sleeves that are nothing but rows and rows of net ruffles are garments to make conquests when you go out of nights.

Shell pink evening gowns made of cool fluted cotton net are about the freshest, most flattering dresses any jaded dancer ever used to revive her drooping spirits, and Chanel, that wizard of femininity, has sent a stunning shell pink chiffon evening gown that will make you lose your mind until it is safely hung in your own wardrobe. The skirt is long and pleated in a sunburst, the angel sleeves are also pleated and the square neckline is accented with two glittering clips to match the rhinestone belt buckle. A separate jacket with flowing, pleated sleeves and a snug waistline tie sash complete the almost unbelievable loveliness of this superflattering new evening creation.

President General and National Board Attend D. A. R. Dinner

Seventy-five members of the Daughters of the American Revolution attended a banquet last evening at the Palmer house at which Mrs. Russell William Magna of Holyoke, Mass., president general of the society, and the members of the national board of management were special guests.

Illinois D. A. R. day will be observed today at A Century of Progress with a program which will be started with a breakfast in the Blue Ribbon Casino at which 500 members will be present.

Afterward they will march to the United States building, where Dr. Allen D. Albert, representing the Exposition, and Mrs. Magna will speak at a flag raising ceremony. Later the group will move to the north hall in the Hall of States and will be entertained with a musical program.

Eli Bates Sale to Be Friday at Mrs. Kersey C. Reed's Home

Fashionable Saleswomen Inviting Luncheon Guests for Event; Lovely Articles to Be Offered.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. WILLIAM M'CORMICK BLAIR and the other women who manage the Eli Bates shop consider themselves very fortunate in having secured Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed's house in Lake Forest as the place in which to hold one of their summer sales, for the house is new and unusually beautiful and they anticipate that many who do not consider themselves potential buyers will come to see the house and will be so intrigued by the lovely things displayed that they will not be able to leave without making a purchase or two.

The sale will be held Friday from 10 to 6 o'clock and it is safe to predict that there will be plenty of customers to keep busy the fashionable saleswomen, who will include Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mrs. T. Philip Swift, Mrs. Robert Hixon, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, and Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins. All these women are inviting luncheon guests for that day, friends who they are sure will want to attend the sale.

A year ago this time the Reeds' lovely English house was just being built and Mrs. Reed and her daughter and son, Mary and John Shedd Reed, were occupying the tennis house except when it was too hot and then they found their apartment at State parkway and North avenue much cooler. The residence was completed last August, however, and in September Mrs. Reed gave a tea as a housewarming, but this is the first time the house has been opened to the public. This is hardly the term that fits the occasion, however, for of course cards have been sent out and the sale really is only a semi-public affair.

Mrs. Reed and Miss Reed, who made her debut last season, already are in Lake Forest for the summer and John is expected to return from school in New Mexico within a week. Mrs. Reed's mother, Mrs. John G. Shedd, still is in town, but she will go to Lake Forest to be with her daughters [Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe is her other one] later in the summer.

Mrs. Schweppe and her daughter, Miss Jean Schweppe, who also was a debutante last season, already have moved out to their Lake Forest residence for the summer.

Misses MacArthur Go to Geneva Today.

The Misses Constance and Marion MacArthur, daughters of Senator Creelman MacArthur of Ottawa and Prince Edward island, Canada, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Royden J. Keith of Lake Shore drive, are going to Geneva today to be guests of Mrs. John R. Mauff and Miss Katrina Mauff. The Mauffs are occupying the Milton J. Blair house in Geneva for the summer. Tomorrow night Miss Alice Bremner is entertaining for the Misses MacArthur. The Joseph N. Fields gave a party for them the day after they arrived, Sunday, and Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Keith gave a beefsteak dinner party. A single steak weighing 38 pounds was served. Numerous other luncheons and dinners and dancing parties are planned for the entertainment of the young vistors.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Crossett, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard, and Mrs. George Bates Harrington are in Bryn Mawr for the graduation of their daughters from Shipley school today. The Crossetts and their daughter, Carolyn, will go on from the school to their summer home at Wianno, on Cape Cod, and will not be back in town until fall. Miss Dorothy Dickinson will spend a few weeks visiting friends in the east before returning to Chicago and then going with her family to their Michigan home.

Her older sister, Miss Alice May Dickinson, who is much interested in the Story Telling Cove on the Enchanted Island at A Century of Progress, declares that today will be a red-letter one for children at the Cove. The Boy Scouts of the seventh grade of Francis Parker school are going to be there at 2 o'clock to celebrate Flag day, among them John Holabird, Arnold Moore, and James Trowbridge, and Miss Georgene Faulkner will entertain the youngsters with some thrilling tales.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. George M. Moffett, with their son, George M. Moffett Jr., and Frank Trudeau of Saranac Lake, will sail on Thursday on the Conte de Savoia for Genoa. The party will board the Moffett auxiliary brigantine, Malaina, for a three months' cruise in the Mediterranean, having with them Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Close of Paris and Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane of Warrenton, Va., who will go abroad in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace will pass the season at Brookville, where they have leased Ashbel H. Barney's country home on Wolver Hollow road. They will take possession on June 20. Mr. Barney probably will go abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. John North Willys are passing the season at their home on Center Island, Oyster Bay, where they have had with them their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. José de Landa, who were married a few weeks ago in Florida. They expect to go abroad later.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. His friend, young Alistair, a subaltern in the guards, is taken over by card sharpers and gives a check he can't meet. Garrick promises to retrieve the check. Maitland, the gambler, is purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, who is unknowingly being used as a decoy. Her presence makes Garrick's task to his liking. Rhoda expects a small inheritance from an uncle who died in Rome.

INSTALLMENT III.

A SCOUNDREL OF A GUARDIAN.

During the day Garrick made his preparations. They were, as usual, of a sweeping nature and they included a visit to the Italian embassy to inquire into the affairs of an eccentric Englishman named Fairclough, who had died in Rome. The information he had picked up from the courteous Italians had made the long golden eyelashes flicker with amazement.

Before midnight he intended to do with two things—recover Alstair's check which would otherwise be presented on the morrow and—take Rhoda there and then away from her scoundrel of a guardian.

But first he would have to prove to Rhoda herself that her guardian was a card sharper.

He gave Richards the evening off and himself drove the car and parked it in the small semicircular drive in front of Maitland's house.

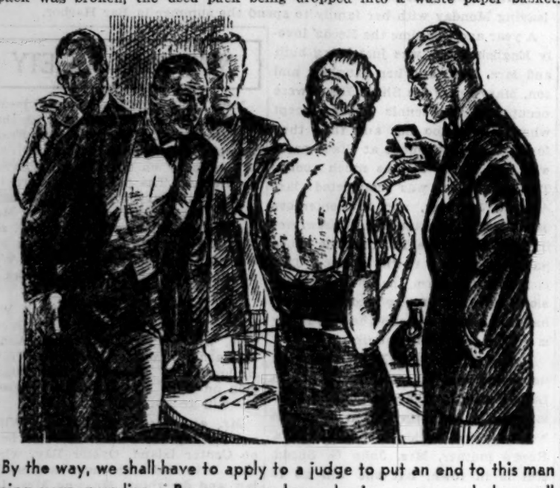
He was pleased to learn from Rhoda that the three men were already present. He was only alone with her for a moment, but he contrived to whisper to her, begging her to stay in the drawing room until he left.

For the first hour, play was uneventful—he lost a little and won a little—so he decided to speed things up. He turned to Rhoda.

"I'm starting for America tomorrow!" he announced. "Always get tired of town about this time! One season is so exactly like another."

That, of course, was to tell the crooks that they must make their profit there and then. And in ten minutes they had started.

Outwardly they were playing to strict club rules. With each deal a new pack was broken, the used pack being dropped into a waste paper basket.



"By the way, we shall have to apply to a judge to put an end to this man being your guardian. Because, you know, he is—a—er card sharper."

Garrick was keeping the score carefully now. Half an hour after his casual remark to Rhoda he was nominally some three hundred pounds to the bad. That was a mere flea bite to the crooks, who knew he was a wealthy man. They would want thousands, not hundreds—and he was going to make them take it quickly.

"Have to make this the last round, if you don't mind," he announced. "Must turn in early tonight. Got to get up at six tomorrow."

That meant that in four more deals the crooks would have to do all the cheating they intended to do—and Garrick was quite determined that they should cheat most in the last round.

By the third round his losses amounted to over sixteen hundred pounds.

"Last round!" he exclaimed. "I seem to have been rather unlucky. Tell you what, fellows!—I'll make you a sporting offer. No betting on the next round. Just play it out—myself against the rest—for double or quits."

"You youngsters!" protested Maitland. "What do you say, boys? Shall we take him on? . . . Right you are! And I must say, Garrick, I'd be glad to lose. You haven't had a look in all the evening."

The situation was very simple. If Garrick were to win the next round the crooks would have profited nothing. If the crooks were to win they would, as they thought, collect over three thousand pounds. If ever they had cheated in their lives they were going to cheat now.

At manqué five cards are dealt to each player and the remainder of the pack is then placed in the middle of the table. Now the cards take their value from the card played by the first player. Consequently no amount of crooked manipulation of the cards in dealing can give any man a winning hand. It is only possible to cheat by introducing new cards after the first card has been played. And this cannot be done from the pack in use—which stands in the middle of the table.

Garrick, of course, had so arranged matters that he himself should be the first player in the last round.

"Come, Garrick—your lead! Let's see what you're going to give us."

"Come and watch this, Miss Fairclough," said Garrick. "It's most frightfully exciting. I've been losing all the evening."

Fortune kept to its tradition of favoring the brave by giving him a strong hand. To win, he must win all five tricks—and four tricks were certain. He played the first four cards mechanically, his eyes apparently on his hand, but through the long lashes he was acutely observing Maitland.

As Garrick led for the fourth round Lawson "accidentally" knocked his glass of whisky from the table. But Garrick had been suspecting some such maneuver. His covert observation of Maitland had not been interrupted for the fraction of a second. And he had seen what he wanted to see.

He played the fourth trick and won and for the last trick led the king of hearts, that could be beaten only by the ace of hearts.

Maitland played the ace.

"O, rough luck, Garrick!" cried Maitland, and the others obediently echoed.

"O, well! What do you fellows make the total?" As if absent mindedly his hand strayed to the middle of the table and picked up the balance of the pack.

"Pretty stiff, I'm afraid!" Maitland was saying. "Sixteen hundred and thirty—call it sixteen hundred—double or quits. Three thousand two hundred points, Garrick."

Garrick, not at all absent mindedly, but still without any apparent hurry, had picked up all the cards on the table and now held them in his right hand.

At this action the three men rose to their feet. Garrick smiled at each of them, then turned to Rhoda.

"Yes, Miss Fairclough—three thousand two hundred pounds," he drawled. "By the way, we shall have to apply to a judge to put an end to this man being your guardian. Because, you know, he is—a—er—card sharper. And these other two men are his accomplices. The three of them are crooks."

Even the three crooks, who were hardened to almost any scene, were struck into silence by Garrick's sudden accusation.

Rhoda looked from one to the other in horrified bewilderment—which decided Garrick to end it quickly.

"You saw Maitland win with an ace of hearts. You may not know anything about cards, but at least you know that there are not two of the same kind in any one pack. I will show you two of the same kind in this pack." With a deft movement he spread the cards fanwise on the table, face upwards. "Here is one ace of hearts—and here's the other. One of them was in Maitland's pocket when we started the last round."

He picked the cards up again. A single glance told him that Rhoda believed him—that she was convinced. But involuntarily she turned to Maitland and asked:

"Is it true? . . . O, I had a kind of suspicion. Mr. Alistair looked so odd that last night he was here. And you play—for thousands of pounds. You told me——"

"Is it true!" Maitland snorted. "Mr. Garrick is not drunk. The most charitable thing we can assume, my dear Rhoda, is that he is under the influence of some drug. I'm sorry to say it, but the truth is he has lost money and doesn't like it."

"Mr. Alistair lost twelve hundred pounds in the same way," said Garrick.

"You are not asked to pay," said Maitland struggling for dignity, "but you are asked to leave the house at once—and not to speak to my ward in future."

Rhoda looked at him and in her eyes he read plainly that she was afraid to be left alone. But he had come fully prepared for this.

"My car is outside, Miss Fairclough," he said formally. "My aunt, Lady Carstairs, will be very glad if you will stay with her until you have made your own arrangements. I saw her this afternoon and told her that you were unknowingly living with a gang of crooks and that I intended to expose them tonight." Before she could say anything he went on:

"Another little thing. Will you tell me—in the presence of Maj. Maitland—how much money you expect to inherit on your twenty-first birthday?"

"O, I don't know!" she wailed, pained and bewildered. "I told you it was very little—about fifty pounds a year."

"Yes—you told me that, Miss Fairclough—and you were wrong. As a matter of fact your property is worth rather more than a hundred times as much. Your uncle made a fortune in speculation. By the time the Italian and the British duties have been paid you will have rather more than a hundred thousand pounds— say five thousand a year."

From Maitland there came a quick intake of the breath. Garrick ignored him and turned again to Rhoda.

"I will wait for you—here—while you put on a coat and get a few things together. I'll have your belongings collected in the morning."

ROSALIE: VINEGAR IS RECOMmended for brunettes to make the hair soft and fluffy. Lemon rinses would be better for your red hair. Or, better yet, you could use a good hair wash to brighten the coppery tints.

BLACKIE: IT'S SAFE TO USE A depilatory or a good wax preparation on the upper lip and chin, even though you have to attend to this every two weeks or so. Let it become a part of your personal upkeep.

Stretch Those Excess Pounds Off the 'Figger'

Strenuous Exercise Is No Longer Needed.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The great advance in recent days among health educators is in the new exercise idea, particularly in the advocating of muscle stretching work. Exercise has become fun to do, really. The stretching may leave you a bit sore at first, but you never feel that awful strain of bone and muscle of former body and heart breaking recommendations. And this early soreness may be eliminated quickly by soaking in hot water a few minutes, then turning on the cool water and rubbing down well.

All good exercise courses today begin with stretching work. You're never asked to start in turning cartwheels or doing something equally strenuous. First, you have to limber up. Stretch the muscles up and down. Get the back in good working order. Get the postural faults corrected with stretching.

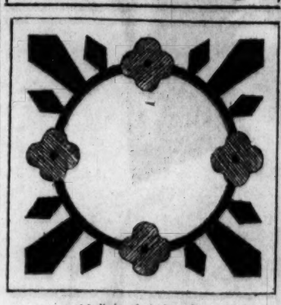
And, believe it or not, you can take off inches with this sort of muscle and tissue pulling. I have under my direct observation at this moment one who has taken an inch and a half off her hips and almost two inches off her lower back on the stretching régime. In one month's time, too, remember: ten minutes in the morning and ten minutes at night. And she just happens to be ambitious enough to stop in the course of her work [at home] for a couple of minutes during the morning and afternoon to stretch.

After you've put in a training period—maybe a week, maybe two—you can then graduate into the more difficult movements. But most of you will find the stretching sufficient to see you through to whatever goal you seek.

Stretch the first thing you get out of bed. Get down on the floor and stretch this way and that. Legs, arms, trunk! Stretch with the hands above the head on the floor. Then, stand up and stretch some more.

Walk around on tiptoes, stretching taller and taller. Do this last a dozen times a day. Now, for a little more "planned" stretching—with weight on the balls of the feet, slightly on the heels, raise the arms forward, upward overhead to the fullest extent, stretching the entire body upward, inhaling as the arms go up, rising on the toes. Lower the arms to the sides forcibly, exhaling as they move down. Get in that breathing work. It's the pep giver and the fat burner. Likewise, the cheat developer.

All Gay Colors Are Utilized in Hollyhock Design

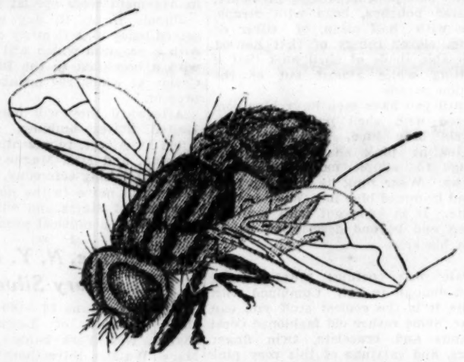


Hollyhock Wreath.

BY NANCY CABOT.

All the gay yellows, pinks, orchids, reds, and purples of the hardy hollyhocks, and their intermediate shades, can be used in piecing the "Hollyhock Wreath"—each wreath a different color. This quilt design, many years old, originated in the south, where the familiar hollyhock is found in every garden.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.



Don't make flies Groggy

YOU DON'T really get rid of flies and mosquitoes by making them sick and uncomfortable . . . they'll be back in no time, hungrier and madder than ever. So don't waste time with a weak insect preparation. Get the right one first—BLACK FLAG. Point your spray gun up toward the ceiling and spray a generous mist into the air. A few dizzy twists and turns and down will come every one of the pests—dead—ready for the sweeper. Black Flag doesn't hurt humans or pets. But it will KILL insects . . . For crawlers like roaches, ants, fleas, bedbugs, Black Flag powder works best because you can shoot it into cracks and leave it where they'll run and hide . . . and die. All grocers, druggists, hardware, and general stores sell Black Flag. It KILLS—yet costs no more than weak preparations which may be offered you.

Girl Greater Altar Gambler than Most Men

Willing to Take Chances on Steady Income.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

When it comes to marriage, woman is the more reckless gambler. She's the one most willing to take a chance. We see this daily in letters from women reporting their willingness to mary in spite of depleted male income, or, perhaps, no male income, at all. Since the depression era set in the story has become a daily repetition of woman's willingness—and man's desire for postponement.

"I've been keeping company with a fine fellow for five years," the latest contribution reads. "At first he was a college student. We planned marriage when he completed his course. Depression and financial difficulties interfered, and for the last two years he has put it off."

Unlike many other couples, the above two have been managing to store up a little nest egg. They worked together in some kind of concession and have been able to put away a little. But it is a seasonal business. The girl is the steady income earner. And the man says he will not marry until he is earning a steady sum per week, if only $15.

"My argument," says the girl, "is that we should get married anyway."

We'd argue that way, too, if it weren't for the nature of woman as it unfolds in a woman-only salaried domestic atmosphere. We like the gambling spirit of the woman in her willingness to try marriage. But we have seen too much of this spirit wither and die under the stress of marriage, to encourage it. It's grand and noble and soul satisfying to feel you're swinging the marriage. But the trouble with the grandeur and nobility of the feeling is that it does not last.

Whatever age-old instinct it is in women that cries out for the protector mate, we don't know. But there's something in the contradictory critter that sets her nerves on edge when the supporting job she took on so willingly becomes an accepted fact. And she turns on the man with all the injured feelings of one who's been lured into matrimony on bright male promises, and found herself cheated.

That's why we think it better to wait until the man is earning his weekly stipend that will maintain him his own respect—and the woman's.

BY MARY MEADE.

Corn . . . the King of the Crops!

It has been estimated that of the whole tremendous crop of corn produced in the United States yearly between 83 and 90 per cent is consumed on the farm. The surplus—the other 10 or 17 bushels out of every 100—is sent to the mills, is exported, or is sent to the refineries. And of the long train of corn rolling into the big markets, 5 out of every 6 cars are switched to the track which leads to the refineries and mills.

The corn products with which the kitchen artist is concerned are:

Cornmeal—The crushed kernel of corn, usually with the hull and germ removed. It is used as a breakfast cereal, in breads, puddings, and in combination with meats and vegetables.

Other cereals—The prepared breakfast cereals manufactured by special processes are also hominy, grits, samp, and pearl hominy.

Corn oil—Practically pure fat expressed from the germ. Unrefined corn oil is used as an ingredient in the manufacture of soaps, dyes, paints, varnishes, etc. Refined, it may be used as a salad oil, a shortening, or a cooking oil.

Cornstarch—Simply the purified starch from the grain. It is used for thickening gravies and puddings.

Corn sugar and corn sirup—Both are made from the cornstarch and both are used satisfactorily in cooked mixtures and with fruit and cereal as a sweetener. Corn sirup is served frequently with griddle cakes and waffles and is one of the essentials in commercial candy making.

SCALDED CORNBREAD.

Add sufficient boiling water to 2 cups of white cornmeal to make a stiff batter. Then add 1 tablespoon lard, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, and 2 eggs [beat the whites and yolks separately]. Blend the mixture until smooth. Drop the batter on a hot, well greased baking sheet and bake in a hot oven until crisp and a delicate brown. Serve the wafers, which should be thin, light, crispy affairs, hot with butter.

Corn sirup is considered so essential in candy making because it prevents hard candies from becoming coarse and brittle and permits soft, creamy bonbons and smooth fudges by eliminating the likelihood of granulation of the sugar. The following fruit divinity recipe will help to demonstrate this.

CHERRY DIVINITY.

1 cup water.
⅔ cup corn sirup.
2 egg whites.
¼ cup green citron or

Put 2/3 cup sugar and 1/3 cup water in saucepan. In another pan put remaining sugar and water and the corn sirup and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook sirup to 240 degrees F. [soft ball in cold water]. Twenty minutes after starting this mixture put the first sauce on the stove and cook to 270 degrees F. [very hard ball in cold water]. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add slowly the sirup which was cooked to soft ball stage and beat constantly until stiff. Then add the other sirup and continue beating as long as possible. Add the fruit and nuts at the last and pour into a buttered pan to cool.

And lastly we have the frivolous member of the cornstarch pudding family:

1 pint milk.
3 egg whites.

Heat the milk, sugar and salt to the boiling point in double boiler, add the cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk. Cook until thick, then add the stiffly beaten egg whites. Blend until smooth and pour into a mold to cool. Serve with the following sauce:

¼ tsp. salt.
3 egg yolks.
1 tsp. vanilla.

Heat the milk, sugar and salt in double boiler to boiling point, then add the beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Cook until the mixture coats a spoon. If cooked too long it will curdle. Cool before serving.

Eli Bates Sale to Be Friday in Lake Forest

All of the graduates are Lake Forest residents who have given liberally of their time and their service since last July at the Great Lakes Naval Training hospital. They include Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson, Mrs. Willard Boyden, Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, Mrs. H. Foster Straw Jr., and Miss Katherine Trowbridge.

In addition to the laboratory hours they have put in at Great Lakes, they have attended lectures which combine to give them the rank of semi-trained volunteers. Now upon receiving the coif of gray ladies they are required to continue to give four hours a month of service.

Mrs. Bruce Borland and Mrs. Donald R. Wegg will be among those entertaining box parties tonight in the Auditorium when the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with George Gershwin as soloist, gives the first of this week's A Century of Progress series of concerts arranged by the Friends of Music.

Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson Gives Art Luncheon.

Eleanor Roberts' Wedding to Be June 24.

Attractive, dark haired Eleanor Roberts has set the date for her marriage to Ralph Bernard Mack for the afternoon of June 24 in the gardens of the Highland Park residence of her father, George Randell Roberts. Miss Roberts will wear her late mother's wedding gown, which is of ivory satin and has insets of rose point lace that was a part of her grandmother's [Mrs. Marshall S. Marsh] wedding attire.

Miss Roberts' cousin, Miss Elizabeth Jones, daughter of the George R. Joneses, will be her only attendant. Mr. Mack's brother-in-law, Charles L. Howard, will attend him as best man. The service will be read by Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson of the Fourth Presbyterian church in the presence of relatives and close friends. Mr. Mack and his bride will be at home in Highland Park after their return from a ten day motor trip to Quebec.

Alexis Thompson, son of Mrs. Victor Beaufort, was to have attended Mr. Mack also, but while cross-country racing at Yale he rebroke the same leg that he injured last winter and is unable to be here.

Mrs. Marsh has closed her town apartment and is staying in Highland Park with her son-in-law and grandchildren, Miss Roberts and George R. Roberts Jr.

A much entertained couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Cherry of Albany, N. Y., who are visiting the Charles Henry Browns in Wilmette. Mrs. Brown, the former Bertha Alling, and Mrs. Cherry, the former Catherine Field of Mount Cedar, Vt., were classmates at Bryn Mawr. Yesterday Mrs. Brown gave a luncheon for her guest at the Cuntury club and tonight her parents, the Van Wagenen Allings, are giving a dinner for the Cherrys at the Onwentsia. Mrs. William K. Meyers, the former Pauline Wolff, is giving a cocktail party for them some time soon and the James M. Hadleys of Glencoe are entertaining the Cherrys at dinner late this week. Mr. and Mrs. Cherry are here for a week and they intend to see every bit of the Fair.

THE STAGE

Two shows vanished from the Chicago stage last Saturday night and may be recorded as heat victims. They were "Hats Off," the collegiate musical comedy that came into the Studebaker theater June 4, and "The Family Upstairs," which had a cut-rate run of twenty-six weeks [the season's record] at the Cort theater. . . . Meanwhile Katharine Cornell's management reports that if the present cool weather continues her patronage at the Harris theater in "Alien Corn" will equal that of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Also the Grand Opera house is preparing a revolving stage for the première of "Dinner at Eight" next Monday night.

Clemence Dane, English playwright and novelist, visited Katharine Cornell yesterday during a break in a journey from Hollywood to New York. Miss Dane's latest play, "Wild December," is a possibility for Miss Cornell's program next season. This work deals with the literary Brontë sisters. Three plays that figured in Miss Cornell's rise to stellar rank came from the pen of Miss Dane. They were "A Bill of Divorcement," "Will Shakespeare," and "The Way Things Happen."

The Drake hotel will celebrate the formal opening of its Summer Garden room tonight. Fowler and Tamara, dancers with four years of European appearances on their record, will be the featured entertainers.

Harry Richman will take a leave of absence from his duties as master of ceremonies and balladist at the Chez Paree toward the end of June. He promises to return after four weeks. Helen Morgan, recently of the "Show Boat" revival, will be guest star of the interregnum. C. C.

Paintings and Sculpture Effectively Arranged.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Chicago Galleries association, 220 North Michigan avenue, opens today one of the most interesting and unusual exhibitions in town. It has secured prize winning paintings and sculpture from over a period of twenty-five years and hung them with a most encouraging effect. There has been some stunning work accomplished during those years.

The earlier prize painting in the show is one by Adam Emory Albright, "A Young Barbarian," a litle boy with a crow perched on his arm, and it was awarded the Grower prize in the Art institute in 1907. The truth must out, it is not one of Mr. Albright's most successful studies of children, but as an indication of a jury's taste in that far off year it is interesting.

In direct contrast is the curious "Long Haired Cactus" by Laura Van Pappelendam, which in 1933 won the Logan prize of $500 at the Art institute. Its merit is nearly as difficult to detect as the merit of the older painting.

Between the two extremes are various kinds of pictures, many of them of great beauty and distinction. One of the finest is the "Geese and Hollyhocks," by Jessie Arms Botke, which should be hanging in the Art institute official contemporary show, so excellent is it.

The "Faculty Club, No. 2," by Guy Brown Wiser, which was a prize winner in the 1931 Hoosier salon, remains a brilliant study of three men intent upon a game of chess. Oskar Gross offers an appreciative portrait in the "Comedian," winner of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors gold medal.

Among the sculpture Albin Polasek shows his charming nude, "Unfettered," that in 1917 was awarded the Logan medal and $1,500. Viola Norman shows "King of the Yards," a stunning study of a horse that in 1927 won the Chicago Galleries association prize. Elizabeth Haseltine is represented with "Baby Pegasus," the adorable colt with tiny wings which was a prize winner in the Chicago galleries in 1930.

The exhibition is far more complete than this sketch hints. It is too good a show for any one to miss. In all probability it will continue through the summer as one of the important unofficial A Century of Progress exhibits.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

A MOLL SQUEALS.

"So," and Inspector Kelley paused. "You were with Mallison when he bumped off Johnson?"

"Yes, I was," retorted May Winters. There was an angry, vicious gleam in her eyes, thought Prof. Fordney, who silently listened to the questioning.

"Why are you squealing on him now . . . he's been in the county jail for over two months!"

"I'll tell you," May shrieked. "I just learned that he was in love with that Salisbury girl all the time he told me I was his sweetheart. I believed him and——"

"Pardon me, Miss Winters," interrupted Fordney quietly. "How can you identify that gun on the inspector's desk? Are you sure it is the one which Mallison buried in the sand near the beach after he shot Johnson?"

"Yeah—what do yuh think I've been talkin' about?" was the reply.

Fordney reached over and picked up the .45 caliber Colt with its wicked looking glistening barrel. Two hours before May Winters had taken Sergt. Reynolds to an isolated spot near the beach where he dug up the gun. There were still three cartridges in the chamber. Johnson had been shot three times.

"Do you mean to tell me," thundered Kelley, "that you stood by while Mallison killed this man? I can hold you as an accessory before the fact. And after, too," he added.

"I don't give a damn what you do. All I care about is putting Mallison in the chair. "I'll do——"

HOW DID FORDNEY KNOW?

[See solution on page 32.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Lack of Sleep Affects Nerves of Little Child

Physical Condition Is Influenced, Too.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

In the last week or so we've gone rather fully in this column into several big subjects that concern mothers of small children. Among these have been: eating habits, toilet habits, and dealing with the very young child who is "into everything."

Today we'll go into the subject of sleeping habits in a general way, for after all, a book could be written on each set of habits if one went into them in detail.

Although I'm inclined to feel that every mother must realize the importance of sleep, the facts of the case show me that this is not so. A few days ago a most distressed letter came from a person who is related to a family in which there is a young child who is kept up until his parents go to bed. She has even heard this little girl beg to be put to bed—but her mother will not take the trouble to leave the talk and sociability, or whatever she is doing, to go up and settle her small daughter for the night. The child's behavior and physical condition are showing the effects of loss of sleep.

This seems like an extreme case, but there are many people who even in these days of enlightenment put children to bed only when they go, or who do not guard their children's sleep as they should.

The young child's behavior reflects his physical condition like a mirror. Many things go toward his bodily well being—his food, his exercise, his play, outdoors and sunshine, and his sleep. As one who has watched little children closely, it has sometimes seemed to me that there is no one thing that affects children's behavior more than sleep—that is favorably when they have plenty of it and unfavorably when they haven't. By which token it is obvious that sleep is a great factor in bodily well being—for growth, for nerves, in every way.

Tomorrow we shall give a few rules for the formation of good sleeping habits.

DON'T TOUCH YOUR SKIN WITH INFERIOR, WORTHLESS OR DANGEROUS COPIES OF Perstik, THE ORIGINAL LIPSTICK DEODORANT

Scientific tests now PROVE what thousands of women have discovered personally...that PERSTIK alone makes ALL odor disappear 100%.

The sensational success of PERSTIK has caused unscrupulous imitations. Some of these imitations have no more deodorizing power than ordinary cold cream. Others may be harmful to the skin.

LOOK FOR THE NAME "Perstik" right on the CAP

Genuine PERSTIK stops under-arm and other body odors, yet cannot irritate the skin. It can be used even after shaving or a depilatory. It is greaseless—contains no lard. You can put on your dress right after using PERSTIK . . . it cannot injure the most delicate fabrics. Genuine PERSTIK in the handsome black-and-white lipstick container, is the smart, simple, sanitary way to keep the body fresh and free from odor.

PERSTIK GUARANTEED EFFECTIVE

Some "deodorants" fail to overcome 28% to 92% of the body's odor

PERSTIK is guaranteed to prevent all body odor, or money back. We believe this is the first guarantee ever made on a deodorant, because PERSTIK is the first deodorant PROVED, by odor-meter tests, to deodorize 100% effectively. Yet PERSTIK is so safe, you could eat it. PERSTIK has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping. It is extensively used by doctors' wives, and is highly recommended by foremost beauty advisors.

All reputable department stores and druggists feature an entire Summer's supply of PERSTIK at 50¢. Many women buy two PERSTIKS—one for the boudoir and one for the traveling bag or swimming kit.

CHURCH LEADER AND BANKER GETS TERM IN PRISON

Leading Batavia Citizen Guilty of Larceny.

Nicholas L. Johnson, 55 years old, dry worker, reformer, and church leader in Batavia for years, pleaded guilty on two indictments of larceny by bailee before Circuit Judge William J. Fulton in the Kane county court at Geneva yesterday. He was sentenced to from one to ten years in the state penitentiary at Joliet, the sentences to run concurrently.

Johnson appeared in court yesterday morning and announced that he wished to change his earlier plea of not guilty, and throw himself upon the mercy of the court. Judge Fulton immediately passed sentence. Johnson will be taken to Joliet on Thursday.

After receiving his sentence Johnson said: "I intended to harm no one and I made no profit for myself. It was simply that I was a poor business man and the trouble grew out of the manner in which I kept track of my affairs. The biggest losers are myself and my family."

Savings Association Secretary.

Until a month before his arrest on March 10 Johnson had been secretary of the Batavia Savings and Building association and vice president of the Batavia National bank. He was seized when investigators learned following an audit of the accounts of the building association that Johnson had taken $17,353 of the association's cash for his own use.

An investigation of the accounts of Johnson's real estate, loan, and insurance business followed and eventually 15 indictments were returned against him. After his sentence yesterday on the two charges the other indictments were quashed.

The Batavia National bank and the Batavia Savings and Building association both announced that depositors and investors will not lose through the peculations of Johnson. Both the bank and the association, officials said, are in sound financial condition.

Kane county officials said that Johnson had been known as "the builder of Batavia," and was the financial adviser of many residents of the community. For 15 years he had been a trustee of Wheaton college.

Awarded Special Medal.

Three weeks before his arrest Johnson was presented with a special medal in appreciation of his activities in the Congregational church. State's Attorney George D. Carbary said yesterday that Johnson had been treasurer of the church and on many occasions had preached sermons in the absence of the regular pastor.

Johnson also had been instrumental in organizing the town of Frankfort, Mich., as a summer resort for members of the church. He has served on the Batavia library board and is one of the officials of the Johnson Manufacturing company, makers of riveting machinery.

Johnson's wife, Faith, and his two sons, Avery, 28 years old, and Wilford, 20, and his daughter, Marjorie, were not present in court yesterday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—[Special.]—New efforts were promised this afternoon by Police Commissioner James S. Bolan to halt the warfare among rival gangs in the city. That conflict, in and near New York, has resulted in a death a day since June 1.

"The police," he declared, "are exercising every vigilance to prevent repetition of these murders. Both the uniformed and detective forces are doing everything in their power to halt gang feuds and killings."

Three more slayings of gangsters were discovered early this morning. Their bodies were found in an apartment on the upper east side.

Identified from their fingerprints as Charles Cabrese, Salvator Tulumello, and Louis Sally, all petty gangsters of the lower east side, the victims had been stabbed to death with an icepick after their executioner sealed their eyes and mouths with tire tape and bound their wrists and ankles with heavy twine.

When found in the dingy room in East 65th street, for which they had paid $6 Saturday in advance rental, they had been dead more than fifty hours. Police are investigating the possibility that their lives were taken in reprisal for a shooting on Memorial day.

JUSTICE PARK'S J. P. RESIGNS IN SPEED TRAP QUIZ

Justice of the Peace Si Lindeman of Justice Park resigned yesterday at the request of Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley during the investigation of the speed trap in the village. Earlier in the day Albert Webster, village constable, and John C. Richards, clerk in Lindeman's court, also had resigned.

Prosecutor Crowley announced that the investigation would be continued and that indictments would be sought if the facts warrant grand jury action.

The inquiry was started on complaint of James Cropp, 50 years old, 4536 South Turner avenue, and his son, Stanley. They were arrested Saturday night for speeding, held without bond, and left in the village jail until the elder Cropp was overcome by the heat.

"The investigation has nipped a situation that might have become intolerable," Prosecutor Crowley said. "The speed trap had been in operation only a month."

After perusing the records of the justice's court, Prosecutor Crowley turned to Lindeman and told him: "You'd better quit."

"I've got six cases Thursday and ten Saturday," Lindeman replied.

"Then you'd better quit Saturday," the prosecutor said. Lindeman agreed.

PAL OF FUGITIVE HOLLAND FLEES IN ROBBERY CASE

Vanishes from Court as He Awaits Trial.

John Stasek, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

As officials of the Criminal court were investigating the strange disappearance from jail of John Holland, 25 years old, while awaiting trial in connection with a $2,500 tobacco robbery, a second defendant in the same case vanished yesterday from the Criminal court of Judge Harry A. Lewis. The new fugitive is Cecil Neal, 22 years old.

He strolled out of the courtroom while awaiting trial on the charge that he, Holland, and a third man, Marion Sieboda, 29 years old, hijacked a tobacco truck on Dec. 23, 1932. Neal, who was at liberty on bond of $8,000, appeared in court yesterday and signed a petition for a change of venue which was presented in court by his attorneys, S. D. Tannenbaum and S. A. Murray. Then it was found that Neal was missing.

Judge Orders Report on Case.

When Judge Lewis discovered that the prisoner was not in court he forfeited the $8,000 bond, issued a warrant for the arrest of Neal, and set a new bond of $15,000. The judge announced that he would order a stenographer to write a full report of proceedings preparatory to a complete investigation of the case and the conduct of the defense attorneys.

Attorney Tannenbaum appeared in court on Monday with his client and obtained a continuance on the representation that Attorney Murray, who knew the details of the case, was busy in another courtroom.

Judge Lewis said that the records showed that Attorney Tannenbaum was the original lawyer in the case. Sieboda, the third defendant, pleaded guilty on Monday and was sentenced to one to 20 years in the penitentiary.

News of Escape Concealed.

The juggling of a remand slip allowed Holland to slip out of jail on May 25. The Chicago crime commission called attention to the case after observing that news of the escape was concealed by Chief Bailiff James Z. Gabriel of the Criminal court.

Holland, who was at liberty on $10,000 bond, was rearrested on May 17 after he had tried to steal the automobile of Lieut. Thomas Mangan of the state's attorney's office. His bondsmen refused to stay on the $10,000 robbery bond and surrendered Holland in the court of Chief Justice John Prystalski.

Investigation by Chief Justice Prystalski showed that deputy bailiffs failed to appear with the remand slip in Holland's case until 24 hours after the prisoner was taken to jail. Meanwhile Holland had posted bond of $2,000 on the automobile theft charge and had disappeared. The remand slip, had it been delivered, would have shown that the $10,000 robbery bond had been withdrawn.

Probe by Immigration Officials.

The fact that Holland and Neal, both aliens, are being investigated by the federal immigration office for possible deportation proceedings was believed to be the reason behind their eagerness to escape. Meanwhile the investigation into the disappearance of Holland apparently had lapsed into inactivity. Chief Justice Prystalski had urged Sheriff Meyering, who is in charge of the bailiffs of the Criminal court, to continue the investigation. Sheriff Meyering, however, has chosen to look upon the matter as "an honest mistake" despite the announcement of Chief Justice Prystalski that he considered the affair as "a prearranged scheme to allow Holland to escape."

After hearing the latest development in the case, State's Attorney Courtney announced that he was "going to get into the investigation with both feet," and assigned Capt. Daniel Gilbert to investigate.

EQUAL PENALTY FOR KIDNAPERS OF GIRL DEMANDED BY STATE

Barnstable, Mass., June 13.—[Special.]—That Kenneth and Cyril Buck were equally guilty of the kidnaping of 10 year old Margaret McMath was the contention of District Attorney William C. Crossley before the jury today.

The brothers from Harwichport went on trial here yesterday for the alleged abduction of the McMath girl, for whose return her father, Neil C. McMath, paid $60,000.

All through his address Crossley stressed the equal culpability of Cyril, the elder brother, a garage proprietor. Cyril has pleaded that he acted merely as the go-between for his brother in ransom negotiations with the McMath family.

As Crossley related the details of the kidnaping and the subsequent arrest of the Buck brothers, Mrs. Bertha Buck, their mother, was escorted from the court room where she had almost fainted.

LANG WILL FACE TRIAL FRIDAY IN NITTI SHOOTING

The trial of Detective Harry Lang, former member of the mayor's hoodlum squad, on charges of perjury and assault to murder is expected to get under way Friday in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort.

Lang is charged with attempting to murder Frank Nitti, business manager of the old Capone syndicate, during a raid last December on Nitti's office in a loop building. The perjury charge grew out of the fact that when Nitti was tried on a charge of trying to kill Lang during the raid Lang changed his grand jury testimony, in which he accused Nitti. As a result Nitti was acquitted and the charge of attempted murder was turned against the detective.

BANK IS ROBBED WHILE PURDUE U. HAS GRADUATION

Girl and Customer Are Kidnaped.

Lafayette, Ind., June 13.—[Special.]—Four armed men held up the Purdue State bank while commencement exercises were in progress a block away at Purdue university in West Lafayette today. They obtained approximately $2,500, forced a young man and woman into their car and escaped.

C. E. Young, an insurance agent, who was in the bank, and Dorothy Arnold, employed in the bank, were released a half mile from Lafayette.

Two bandits remained in the parked automobile during the robbery. Miss Arnold was placed in the front seat with three bandits and Young was forced into the back seat with the others.

One Shot Fired.

One shot was fired inside the bank but this was believed to have been due to an accident. Miss Arnold said one of the men, apparently the leader, inquired angrily as they drove out of town who fired the shot. No bullet mark was found in the bank.

Most of the loot was taken from the counter and money drawer. Some $1 bills were taken from the vault. The bandits were in the bank only a short time.

Miss Arnold and Young were taken by the bandits as shields. Another bank employé was considered by the bandits, but it was decided that there was not enough room in the car. Addressing Miss Arnold, one of the gang said:

"Girlie, I guess we'll have to take you with us, but don't be afraid. Just be quiet and you will not be harmed."

Give Meager Description.

Miss Arnold and Young were able to give only a meager description of the gang. Streets in West Lafayette were almost deserted when the bandits appeared at the bank. Most citizens were attending the commencement exercises.

In November, 1927, Miss Arnold was an employé of the Tippecanoe Loan and Trust company, also of Lafayette, when it was robbed and Capt. Charles Arman of the Lafayette police force was shot and fatally wounded by a bandit.

AUTO THEFTS.

INJURED AS INTERURBAN UPSETS.

Litchfield, Ill., June 13.—[Special.]—J. Matthews of this city, veteran motorman of the Illinois Terminal, is in a hospital seriously injured as the result of an interurban car overturning near Edwardsville this morning.

$5 TOWING BILL AROUSES JUDGE; GARAGE WARNED

Judge Thomas A. Green of the Traffic court yesterday expressed indignation when he learned that the police had sent the taxicab of Frank Minnecci, a chauffeur under arrest, to a garage on the south side. He was unable, Minnecci reported, to get the cab unless he paid a $5 towing and storage bill.

"That's robbery," said the judge. "Unless the garage gives up the car without a payment I'll issue a warrant charging the manager and the police with larceny."

Minnecci, whose home is at 3346 Monroe street, was taken into custody Sunday for picking up passengers near the World's Fair in violation of a south park ordinance.

When he was released he found his cab had been towed to Staver's Auto Service garage, 3993 South Park way.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., June 13.—Donie Bush, the only man who has managed two American and two National league teams, and who has directed teams against every player who will appear in the game of the century at Comiskey park on July 6, ought to know something about the strength and weakness, if any, of the stars who will participate in baseball's greatest contest.

DONIE BUSH.

Bush, who has just rejoined his team, the Cincinnati Reds, after five weeks' illness, spent much of his convalescence in studying the potentialities of the coming battle. Tonight he took pencil in hand and picked the lineups and batting order which he thinks should be used July 6.

| Bartell [R], ss. | West [L], cf. |
| Frisch [L and R], 2b. | Gehringer [L], 2b. |
| Klein [L], lf. | Ruth [L], rf. |
| Terry [L], 1b. | Simmons [R], lf. |
| Traynor [R], 3b. | Gehrig [L], 1b. |
| P. Waner [L], rf. | Cronin [R], ss. |
| Berger [R], cf. | Foxx [R], 3b. |
| Hartnett [R], c. | Dickey [L], c. |
| Warneke [R], p. | Ferrell [R], p. |

It is noted that Bush has listed only two pitchers on each team, in the order he would use them. In addition to these, Donie said, he would have Red Lucas in the bull pen if he were running the National league team and Gomez would be his bull pen artist if he were directing the American league representatatives. Rules of the contest, however, provide for three pitchers to work for each club.

Donie Picks National League.

"I naturally want to see the National league team win," said Donie, "and I think it will because I believe Hubbell and Warneke can slow down the great power the American league lineup presents. It cannot be overlooked that four great sluggers—Ruth, Gehrig, Simmons, and Foxx—have just about decided every world series except one since 1926. And all four of these great bruisers will be on one team July 6, but none except Ruth ever has encountered anything like the stuff Hubbell can throw. Ruth used to try to hit something like Hubbell's best ball when Hub Pruett was in his prime. It is a matter of history that Hub struck out the Babe 13 straight times."

"These four big hitters are accustomed to making a pitcher help supply the momentum for their hits, but everything that Hubbell throws will slow up their power, I believe. This is true if Carl sticks to his screw ball. He likes to throw his curve to left handers and it might be a mistake for him to try it on Ruth and Gehrig.

"I assume that Grove will start for the American leaguers and while he will throw a lot of high balls to several of the National leaguers, there are several men on the team I think can solve him for enough runs to win. The right handers Warneke and Ferrell will finish up, as I figure it. Both are possessed of everything a great righthander needs and neither should get into much trouble.

"If I were running the American league team I would use West as a lead-off man. He may be batting several points over his head this year, but he is a flash as a runner and will have to be watched if he gets on base. He is strictly a fast ball hitter, however, and I figure that neither Hubbell nor Warneke will have any difficulty stopping him.

Hubbell Will Be Tough.

"Gehringer is another speedster. He doesn't bother any good left-hander, but is apt to be tough on a right-hander.

"Lack of familiarity with Hubbell's stuff will have to be counted upon to stop Ruth, Simmons and Gehrig, but I believe both Hubbell and Warneke can worry Cronin and Foxx if they bear in mind that both are strictly high ball hitters. Warneke's sidearm curve should be especially difficult for Foxx and Cronin. Dickey is a dangerous hitter if a pitcher comes in with the ball he likes. But Hubbell and Warneke can keep the ball away from him enough to make him hit to left field. A pitcher who keeps Dickey from hitting to right can upset him."

Donie said he didn't believe the pitchers and catchers would have any difficult getting together. Dickey, through catching Gomez, should be able to handle Grove without difficulty and should have no trouble working with Ferrell. Hartnett, of course, works regularly with Warneke which will balance the strain of catching Hubbell. Hartnett hasn't caught a star left-hander in years, but with Hubbell's great control Gabby should find no difficulty in working with the giant lefty, Donie said.

How They're Voting on National League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

TERRY'S MIRACLE MAN IF GIANTS STAY NEAR TOP

Memphis Bill Develops Contender, Surprises Experts.

[This is the second of a series of sketches of players who will take part in the game of the century between American and National league stars at Comiskey park July 6.]

If Bill Terry, who manages the Giants and plays first base because he likes to be close to his work, isn't careful he's going to be called a Miracle Man. That's one thing big league pilots don't like. They have a hunch that the application of the monicker develops into a jinx.

Terry has put himself in line for the title by doing things that nobody had expected. When John McGraw was given an office job and Terry placed in charge of the Giants last June there wasn't much to work with. During the winter Terry made some deals that didn't look as if they'd help much. So all the experts decided the Giants might as well be consigned to a low rung in the ladder even before the flag scramble started.

Keeps Giants In and Out of Lead.

Now we find Terry bouncing his Giants in and out of first place despite the stiff competition offered by at least three clubs in the league. He's getting good pitching out of fellows who for several years floundered around as if determined to get themselves out of the big show. Of course, Terry is helping some with his hitting and also with his attitude toward his men. He never cared much about the pannings the stern McGraw gave him over bad plays. So he handles his men as he would prefer to be handled, and they seem to thrive under the gentle treatment.

Terry, in a way, is much on the order of Lou Gehrig so far as actual play is concerned. There is nothing fancy about Gehrig and the same goes for Terry. There is nothing inspiring about seeing him run the bases. He fields without any noticeable display of grace. But he seems able to get the

School Boy Beats Ryder Cup Members

White Plains, N. Y., June 13.—(AP)—Capt. Walter Hagen and his Ryder cup forces, already smarting under the setback administered to them by 23 year old Johnny Goodman at Chicago in the open championship, yielded the spotlight to another amateur, a 17 year old high school lad, Willie Turnesa, in a series of charity matches today.

The professional team won four out of five best ball foursomes against a picked team of metropolitan amateurs led by Jess W. Sweetser, but young Turnesa shot the best round of the afternoon, an even par 71 over the 6,800 yard Metropolis club course. Paired with the home club champion, Howard Bergman, he beat Horton Smith of Chicago and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., 2 and 1.

Sarazen, Shute Split Purse.

In .....554 246 244—36—71

The professionals had comparatively little trouble winning the other four matches, although Sarazen, the British open champion, and Olin Dutra, P. G. A. title holder, never had much working margin in defeating George J. Voigt and Eddie Driggs, 2 and 1.

Team Leaves Tonight.

Two former amateur champions, Max Marston and Jess Sweetser, fell before the steady shot making of Hagen and Paul Runyan, 5 and 4. Billy Burke, newly named to the Ryder cup squad, combined with Denny Shute to defeat the Yale pair, Sidney W. Noyes Jr. and John E. Parker Jr., 5 and 4, while Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., and Leo Diegel of Detroit, took the measure of Gene Homans and Leonard Martin, 4 and 3.

George Jacobus, president of the P. G. A., took the occasion to deny there was any basis for reports that Burke's selection, as the tenth man, was questioned on the ground Billy was not a member of the association. "Burke is a member in good standing," said Jacobus. "There is no foundation for such reports. He was named on the basis of previous voting, after the failure of any home bred, not on the team, to win the open. Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, who was runnerup in the open, is not a member of the P. G. A., and therefore not eligible for the team."

WILL CAREY OUT AS GARDEN BOSS? HE WON'T SAY 'NO'

Dempsey Likely to Step In as Fight Director.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—Some sort of news is about to occur in Madison Square Garden, which is what you might call the J. P. Morgans of the prize fight industry, but I am a very punk reporter, always getting the victim's initials and street number wrong, and I never could distinguish between contusions and abrasions. So I will just explain what it all means to you, Mr. Average American Citizen.

Although Will Carey, the president of the big store, who succeeded Tex Rickard as the head man of the prize fight department, declines to say whether he has decided to resign, I take that to mean that he has decided to do so. Otherwise I think Mr. Carey would have said, "Resign? Hell, no! Where did you get that crazy idea?" That is about the way Mr. Carey would put it if he had no intention to quit his job.

So now we have Mr. Carey definitely out of Madison Square Garden after seeing the big store through the worst of the present panic, which may prove to have been only a practice panic for the main event when the time comes to pay for spending the country out of the depression.

Must Be a Good Man.

Without recourse to such words as fiduciary and debentures, it can be explained that any man who could run a big luxury plant, such as the Garden, through four years, scant, of bad times and keep it out of bankruptcy must be a very good man in his business. Mr. Carey has done this, and I hope I do not have to suggest to his loving stockholders that they present him with a permanent pass for self and one to the six day bike races at the Garden, in appreciation of his services.

Unfortunately, Mr. Carey is not a well known or popular figure, which makes things a little difficult. If he were Jack Dempsey, now, I could dramatize the piece by calling him the ol' Black Uhlan. No, that is wrong. It is Max Schmeling who is the ol' Black Uhlan. Dempsey is the ol' Manassa Mauler, and Harry Wills is the ol' Black Panther. And Babe Ruth is the ol' Bambino and Max Baer the ol' Livermore Larruper.

Just an Ol' Contractor.

Mr. Carey is just an ol' construction contractor who found himself owning a big block of stock in the firm when Tex Rickard died abruptly and hustled down to Florida to save the firm's investment in the Sharkey-Stribling bout. Hundreds of sport writers, photographers, and artists know him and have reason never to cease praising his name, because from the moment he arrived in Miami Beach until the special train arrived back in New York after the fight, Mr. Carey was host to the fourth estate and his invitation read, "Come All Yez."

The very best people know him, also, from meeting him in connection with the Garden fights and the quiet social proceedings incidental thereto, but he is not famous in the sense that Rickard was or Dempsey is, and about all this amounts to, to you, Mr. Average American Citizen, is that the

BEST IN AMERICA

Country's Best Milers Face Cunningham in College Meet

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Unless you're one of those followers of track and field who peruse all the small type for accepted, unofficial, and best performances in the annual athletic almanacs, you may not recognize the name of Jules Ladoumegue. We can dispose of Jules by stating that he has run the fastest mile in history, a mark of 4 minutes, 9 2-10 seconds, accomplished at Paris nearly two years ago. All of which leads up to the mile race, the first event on the program of the National Collegiate track meet at Soldiers' field Saturday night.

The collegiate mile is one of the feature events of Saturday night's card. Not only will Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, who holds the N. C. A. A. record of 4:11.1, the fastest mile ever run outdoors in America, be in the field, but according to records, there will be at least eight contestants who have bettered 4:20 this year.

Cunningham Is Best.

Cunningham, of course, leads the field. The Kansan, who won three races in the Big Six outdoor games this spring, hasn't reached his peak form, but then he hasn't needed to run as he ran last year at Stagg field when he beat Henry Brocksmith of Indiana university. Cunningham's best time this spring was 4:17.4 in a triangular meet between Kansas, Kansas State, and Nebraska. His time for the mile in the Big Six was 4:18.4, after which he won the half mile in 1:52.2 [a new record] and loped home for an easy triumph in the two mile run.

Another Indiana star, Charles Hornbostel, coholder of the N. C. A. A. half mile record, may oppose Cunningham in the mile. Hornbostel will have competition from Cunningham in the half, according to an announcement, so he may recipracte and enter the mile, which he didn't do last year. Hornbostel covered the mile in 4:15.1 in the Indiana-Purdue-Illinois meet, but slowed down to 4:21.5 to win the Western conference title.

Bill Howell of Michigan [4:18.3 against Ohio State], Dean Woolsey of Illinois, Western conference indoor mile champion [4:15.2 and an outdoor time of 4:17.2], and Charles Popejoy of Purdue [4:19.6 in the Indiana state meet], are other Big Ten runners.

Sears Has a Chance.

Ray Sears, Butler's great miler, who won the Central Intercollegiate meet at Milwaukee this year in 4:14.1, must be considered a possible winner. In fact, his time is the best of any college man this year and only Cunningham's mark in 1932 gives him the advantage in prediction. In all probability Sears, Cunningham and Hornbostal will make the mile race a three man race coming into the stretch.

The half mile race is akin to the mile in that many ambitious stars, such as Cunningham and Hornbostel, may run in both. However, the outstanding name will be that of Ben Eastman, Stanford athlete who holds the world record of 1:51.3. Eastman has been handicapped by injuries this year, but he finished fourth in the 800 meters in the Intercollegiates two weeks ago and is expected to be ready for his best race of the season at Soldiers' field.

Robinson [Fresno State], 1:54.
O'Neal [Louisiana State], 1:54.
Brown [Kansas State Teachers], 1:54.1.
Labertow [Iowa State], 1:54.7.
Guse [Iowa State], 1:54.8.

Occidental college of Los Angeles will be represented by a one man team, Joe Forbes, who arrived yesterday to prepare for competition in the shot put and discus throw. Forbes recently set a world mark with the 8 pound shot of 69 feet 4¼ inches.

REDS SINK CUBS EIGHTH TIME IN TEN GAMES, 2 TO 1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., June 13.—Lon Warneke this afternoon took his fourth licking of the year from the Cincinnati Reds and his fifth from all opposition. The score was Reds 2, Cubs 1. Both of the Reds runs were scored by Johnny Moore, Cub castoff, after he had got on base through inexcusable errors by Bill Herman.

The Cubs, now so glassy eyed that they perhaps have lost all count of everything, when they come out of their coma will realize that the Reds have whipped them and whipped them pretty well in eight out of ten games played this season. One of the victories salvaged was the result of four Cincinnati errors in the second game last Sunday, so on their return to consciousness the lads will feel that this is a rather unfriendly town.

The tragic result this afternoon dropped the champions into the second division, their place in the upper half having been taken over by the Reds by less than one percentage point.

Derringer Baffles Cubs.

Warneke's setback today was his second in five days decided by a 2 to 1 score and the third against Cincinnati decided by a margin of one run. The last time the Reds beat him here they did it by one earned run, 1 to 0. On the earned run basis, the score today should have been a 1 to 0 verdict for instead of against Lon.

As usual, Warneke got hooked up with the best pitching talent the enemy could dig up. Paul Derringer pitched a swell game. In the first six innings he allowed only one single and faced only 19 batsmen. Two of the six hits the Cubs made were infield scratches, and the Cubs' only run was advanced from second to home on two infield forceouts.

Considering the miserable character of his support, Warneke was lucky to hold the Reds to one run in the first inning. With one down, Moore rolled the ball between Bill Herman's heels, after which Bottomley singled to right, sending Moore to third. Hafey popped a fly back of second and it fell for a single when Demaree chased Jurges and Bill Herman away and then misjudged the ball. Demaree might have forced Bottomley at second, but for some unknown reason he threw the ball to third. The fiasco enabled Moore to score.

Demaree Gets First Cub Hit.

Demaree got the first hit off Derringer with one out in the second inning, but Grimm lined to Hafey and Hartnett popped to Morrissey. In the Reds' half of the second Hemsley doubled with one down, but Derringer and Adams fanned.

At the start of the third Moore for the second time landed on an error by Bill Herman and went to second while Warneke was throwing out Bottomley. Hafey then doubled to left, scoring Moore. Rice walked. Grantham fanned and Morrissey grounded to Bill Herman, who picked up the ball and threw him out.

When Moore came up to start the fifth he tried his best to knock another grounder to Bill Herman, but pulled the ball a little, and as a result bounced out to Grimm. Bottomley followed with a single to center. Hafey lined to Demaree. Rice was safe on Grimm's fumble, but Warneke knocked down Grantham's hot grounder and threw him out.

Second Cub Reaches Base.

Jurges became the second Cub to reach first when he walked to start the sixth. Warneke hit into a double play, Adams to Grantham to Bottomley. English was called out on strikes.

Bill Herman opened the seventh with the second hit off Derringer, a Texas leaguer to center. Babe Herman beat out a high bouncer to Derringer. Stephenson forced Babe Herman and Demaree forced Stephenson, enabling Bill Herman to score. Grimm lined to Rice.

The Cubs revealed their dazed condition in the latter half of the seventh, but cleared up in time to avert Red scoring. Moore, apparently feeling he no longer could count on Bill Herman's fumbling, singled to right center. Bot-

GULLIC SINGLES IN NINTH AFTER 2 MEN ARE OUT

Walks Give Browns Their Run.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

John Whitlow Wyatt, former Georgia Tech football and baseball notable, was just about to enter the no hit hall of fame yesterday when the door was slammed in his face. The tall right hander, obtained recently from the Detroit Tigers in trade for Vic Frasier, had two out in the ninth when Ted Gullic punched a single straight into center field for the only hit produced by the meek Browns in a contest that turned definitely against them and into the hands of the White Sox as early as the third inning. The score was 6 to 1.

WHITLOW WYATT.

Until Gullic, after taking one strike and one ball, assumed the rôle of villain in the ninth, there hadn't been anything resembling a hit. The drives that were solid were right at some eager infielder. Those not so solid were just soft grounders or lazy fly balls. There was only one thing in which the one time varsity fullback wasn't proficient. That was his control. He walked six men, three of them in one inning. That is how the Brownies managed to score a run without a hit.

Sox Reassure Wyatt.

Wyatt's bid for a no-hit game was the first made by a Sox pitcher since back in August of 1926 when Ted Lyons placed his name among the immortals by blinding the Boston Red Sox for nine innings. Shortly before that Lyons had gone through the same experience that befell Wyatt yesterday. He had pitched eight and two-thirds innings against Washington when Bob Veach, a pinch hitter, pulled a looping single over first base to blast his hopes. The same thing has happened twice, once last season and again this spring, to Tommy Bridges, the Detroit star.

The Sox made things doubly safe for Wyatt by hopping all over old Sam Gray in the third inning when the score was deadlocked at one run apiece. Hank McDonald, former Mackman, started but retired when he complained of pains caused by stopping an Al Simmons drive with his chest last week at St. Louis. As soon as Gray appeared, Hayes, Haas, Appling, Kress, and Dykes formed a reception committee which produced four runs. After that Gray managed the job fairly well.

Simmons Loses One Point.

Al Simmons made the 7,500 women guests wait a long time before giving them an exhibition of what is keeping him well in front of the American league batters. Al made three futile appearances. His fourth and last chance came in the seventh inning and he singled. The one hit in four trips pulled his average down one point to .382.

The Sox became serious in the second inning and produced a run. Appling doubled over short and scored when Grube singled with two out. This slim lead lasted only momentarily. Wyatt walked Shea and Ruel, who batted for the ailing McDonald, in the third. A sacrifice bunt and an infield out moved Shea around with the tying run.

Gray didn't have to wait long to discover he couldn't manhandle the Sox as he did a year ago. Hayes, first man up, doubled to right center. Haas singled to right and Hayes stopped at third. Swanson popped out but Simmons produced a healthy fly on which Hayes scored. Appling singled to right to put Haas on third. Appling scored behind Haas when Kress tripled to right center. Dykes doubled down the left field line, Kress scoring, and continued to third when Garms fumbled the ball. Grube's fly to left ended the fun.

BARONI DEVELOPS MAD WIND INTO A WINNING HORSE

Enters Plater in Right Class and Makes Coup.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The race going folks at Lincoln Fields had to take their hats off again to A. A. Baroni, the far western horseman and taxicab magnate of Reno, Nevada, yesterday afternoon.

For it was Mr. Baroni's hoss Mad Wind which made suckers out of seven other high grade distance runners, outgalloped the mfrom flag fall to finish, and won the Victoria claiming purse.

At the end, amid Mr. Baroni's frantic nervous shouts of "Bring that hawse on, boy," Mad Wind went sailing past the winning post a neck in front of Abraham Bartelstein's Yonkel. C. V. Whitney's Habanero was charging forward and reached third position but was beaten two lengths by the two leaders.

Paid $3,000 For Mad Wind.

On May 29 he claimed Mad Wind from the Lemar stock farm stable for $3,000. He ran the horse in his own white and blue jacket a few days later and Mad Wind finished third.

Not long afterwards he matched Mad Wind up with some of the stars of the western turf, including Late Date, which whizzed off a mile in 1:36 1-5. Mad Wind finished last that day,day, beaten by 18 lengths. But whoecer suspected that Mad Wind could keep pace at such a dizzy clip?

In the Victorian yesterday Mr. Baroni paraded Mad Wind out with some $3,200 selling platers. A few of the wise handicappers realized the horse was running in much cheaper company. Mr. Baroni of course was well aware of it.

Mad Wind Takes Lead.

The starter sent them away with their noses all on an even line. Then right away Mad Wind leaped to the front. He led by one length, by two lengths and by three lengths. One after another of the trailers tried to get up to challenge him. Yet the situation was hardly dangerous at any stage, although Jockey Westrope had Yonkel running like the wind in the last sixteenth of a mile. Yonkel was gaining ground, but Mad Wind was too good for him at the mile and a sixteenth distance.

Mad Wind ran it in 1:45, fast time for this kind of a horse. Mr. Baroni and his cronies who had confidence in Mad Wind milled their way up toward the payoff windows and cashed in at the rate of $15.78 to win, $8.20 to place, and $5.50 to show. Yonkel paid $13.92 to place and $8.14 to show, while Habanero was at $6.10 to show.

It was more evidence that Mr. Baroni knows a good horse when he casts a longing glance at him. He has become an important factor in American racing by taking home other fellows' horses. Then he teaches the steeds how to win.

Bright Shadow Wins.

Mad Wind is a son of Wildair-Mabel McCane. There is no telling how good he might be. But you can bet your last dollar Mr. Baroni knows what horses he can beat and the others that he can't trim.

Bright Shadow, a highly bred daughter of Bright Knight out of Fair Phantom, raced to the first victory of her career when she won the Grand Crossing purse from a band of maidens. Indian Blood, the early pace setter, was second and Lessing third.

PHILADELPHIANS DEFEAT SWEDES IN SOCCER, 3 TO 0

The German club of Philadelphia, national amateur soccer champions, defeated the Swedes, Chicago amateur champions, 3 to 0, at Soldiers' field in an exhibition game yesterday.

The Swedes were unable to penetrate the Philadelphia defense and it was only the work of Goalie Granquist which prevented a larger score.

Nickol and Davies scored in the latter part of the first period and Nickol made the third goal in the early stages of the second half. The lineup:

BILLY BURKE IS RULED ELIGIBLE FOR BRITISH OPEN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 13.—(AP)—Billy Burke, named to the American Ryder cup team last Sunday, today was declared eligible to compete in the British open golf championship by the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrews.

In making the announcement the club said Burke's entry, although filed after the closing date, was made automatic with his nomination for the international team competition.

MacDonald Smith, who also cabled his entry last week, was declared ineligible, however, as was Mark Seymour, English holder of the Scottish professional title, whose entry was received late. Smith is not a member of the Ryder cup team.

Roy Guy Wins Sheep Buyers' Golf Tourney

Roy Guy, head sheep buyer for Swift & Co., won the annual sheephouse golf tournament at Cog-Hill yesterday. He had a 76 for 18 holes. Par is 72. Edward Oliver was second with 78 and Clark Estes third with 87.

Steve Lucas to Captain Crane College Golf Team

Steve Lucas, 7916 Saginaw avenue, was elected captain of the 1934 Crane college golf team last night at Antlers Country club, near Wheaton, following a post-season match between the varsity and faculty teams. The varsity won, 16 to 8.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 1-5, 1:12 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Burgoo, $12.88 straight, $5.88 place, $3.36 show; Uncle Henry, $4.70 place, $2.60 show; Black Comet, $2.90 show. Winner trained by J. Manale. Went to post at 3:20. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

BURGOO, away fast and under strong urging throughout, was brought to outside when entering stretch and, holding on well, was up in final stride. UNCLE HENRY, also under energetic riding from the start, was much used racing BLACK COMET into submission and weakened, but barely missed. BLACK COMET had speed, but faltered after five-eighths.

Winner trained by J. F. Patterson. Went to post at 4:26. At post 4 minutes. Start bad from gate. Won driving; second and third driving.

BRIGHT SHADOW, away fast, followed the early pacemaker under light restraint, came with a rush after straightening up in stretch, and won easily. INDIAN BLOOD had good speed from the start, saved ground throughout, and gave way slowly. LESSING also saved ground and showed an even effort. RESISTING suffered interference at start and made up ground in stretch.

MADWIND bore over sharply, causing much crowding in the run to the first turn, was cleverly rated in the pace making and, holding on gamely after reaching final half-mile. Latter missed the early crowding, moved up gradually after reaching final half-mile, and withstood the drive gamely but could not get up. HABANERO, in close quarters early, saved much ground and held on fairly well.

BEAVER followed close to the early pace maker under strong restraint, took a short lead easily after reaching final half-mile, gamely withstood TOTEM'S threat, and held KIBITZER safe. Latter, saved for three-quarters, was under final effort when clear. TOTEM, where he attempted to get through on inside, and closed strong when clear. TOTEM, on outside throughout, made a game bid under strong urging and weakened in last sixteenth.

Church Talks on Terms of Match Race

Norman W. Church, owner of Gallant Sir, in Chicago yesterday said he was perfectly willing that it take place at Lincoln Fields or any other track.

"But if Mr. Whitney and myself are to each put up $10,000 and the race track another $10,000 the winner to donate the purse of $30,000 to charity I think it should be made a charity day in its entirety and the race track donate its proceeds to the same cause," Mr. Church said in discussing the race.

"I feel that such an event as a race track commercial proposition should be worth a purse of $25,000. We are willing to run Gallant Sir against Equipoise either in a charity event or in a horse against horse sporting proposition. It is my thought, however, that the race track should first offer a purse and stipulate conditions and then let the owners of the two horses arrange whatever side wager they might want to make between themselves."

The Lincoln Fields stewards fined Jockey G. South $25 yesterday for whipping his mount, Hoosiers' Pride, without cause while at the post. Jockey Charley Corbett was suspended for three days for disobedience at the post, but the suspension later was lifted when Corbett explained he could not control the bad behavior of his mount, Little Joyce, in the second race.

Merits of several 2 year old fillies eligible for the Debutante stakes which will feature the program at Lincoln Fields Saturday, continues to be the chief gossip of the track side. Of course, Miss Patience, unbeaten in five starts, and Mati Hari, unbeaten in three starts, are the public choices for this event. There are other fillies which have shown much fleetness under colors of late which claim numerous followers. Such fast misses as Dustina, Paper Profits, Baby Stare, Sun Stream, My Kind, and Risky Miss are quite sure to get a play in the Debutante.

The Chicago Business Men's Racing association yesterday announced the full list of stakes for its annual meeting at Hawthorne, which opens July 31 and runs continuously, excepting Sundays, to Saturday, Sept. 2, inclusive. The stakes are as follows:

The Hawthorne Gold cup, weight for age, for 3 year olds and upward, $25,000 added, and a solid gold cup, one mile and a quarter.

The Hawthorne handicap, for 3 year olds and upward, $5,000 added, one mile and a furlong.

The Illinois handicap for 3 year olds and upward, the property of bona fide residents of the state of Illinois, $7,500 added, and a sterling silver cup, one mile and a sixteenth.

In addition to the above, two stakes of $2,500 added money each will be run during the meeting and will close a few days before the race. One of those will be run as a memorial to President John C. Schank, who died recently.

The announcement was made that the minimum purse at Hawthorne this year will be $800.

Trapshooters of 3 States in Fair Meet Today

Trapshooters from three states—Arizona, Arkansas, and Connecticut—will compete today in the third series of A Century of Progress state open tournaments at Lincoln Park Gun club. A total of 104 tournament shooters, exclusive of women, in these three states have been invited. Special events and prizes for women are held in conjunction with all the state meets.

GIANTS MAKE 7 ERRORS, BUT WIN OVER BRAVES, 6-3

Three Run Rally in Eighth Brings Victory.

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Johnny Vergez atoned for making three errors of the seven charged to the Giants today by hitting a double in the eighth inning to drive in two runs and give New York a 6 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves. He scored the third run of the winning rally on Gus Mancuso's third hit of the game after driving in Mel Ott and Bill Terry. Score:

OMAHA PLANS BIG RECEPTION FOR GOODMAN

Omaha, Neb., June 13.—(AP)—"Howdy, Champ." That will be Omaha's greeting tomorrow in honor of Johnny Goodman, national open golf champion. Omaha plans to make it a day that will live long in his memory.

Goodman will step off the train into a round of festivities. A brief reception will be held at the Union station and a parade through the downtown streets will follow. The parade will end at the city auditorium, where Goodman will hold open court.

At noon he will be tendered a luncheon at the chamber of commerce. Heading the list of speakers will be Mayor Roy N. Towl and H. B. Porterfield, who will represent Gov. Charles W. Bryan and the state.

AUSTRALIAN CUP TEAM CONQUERS SOUTH AFRICANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, England, June 13.—Jack Crawford's victory over C. J. J. Robbins of South Africa's squad sent Australia into the semi-final round of the European zone Davis cup competition today. The scores were 6-4, 6-1, 6-0. It was Australia's third triumph in the five matches.

Before the Crawford-Robbins match V. G. Kirby, South Africa, defeated Vivian McGrath, Australia, 6-8, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2. Kirby's victory squared the series. Australia now will meet Japan in the semi-finals.

HELEN MOODY, MISS RYAN WIN ENGLISH MATCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BECKENHAM, England, June 13.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan today entered the third round of the Kent women's doubles tournament. They defeated the English combination of Mrs. Cayley and Mrs. M. J. Rodgers, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Moody, after her victory, said she would enter the London championship tournament at the Queen's club next week to obtain further practice for the Wimbledon meet.

SENATORS, 10; ATHLETICS, 6.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—(AP)—Heavy hitting by a trio of Senators against two Philadelphia pitchers today gave Washington its second straight victory over the Athletics, 10 to 6. Lefty Grove came in as a third Philadelphia pitcher in a relief rôle, limiting the Senators to one hit in the inning he worked, but by that time the game was lost. Heinie Manush, Goose Goslin, and Manager Joe Cronin led the Washington offensive. Manush enjoyed a perfect day, with five hits in as many attempts, two of his hits being doubles. Goslin hit a homer and two doubles in four tries, while Cronin had a double and a single. Score:

Gregory to Hurl Brown Final for White Sox Today

Paul Gregory will conduct the White Sox pitching today in the final of the three game series with the Browns. Irving Bump Hadley pitched a tough ten inning game and lost, 1 to 0, at Cleveland last Sunday, but he'll probably have to make another start for the Browns despite lack of rest. If Gregory can win the season's score between the two teams will be eleven victories for the Sox and two for the Browns.

Bucky Harris, the aloof manager of the Detroit Tigers, probably will be slightly embarrassed when he reads of Wyatt's success yesterday. Harris didn't think much of the ex-collegian and didn't start him all season. When the Sox were in St. Louis last week Rogers Hornsby told some of the boys he considered Wyatt a real prospect. Hornsby got his opinion from hitting against the lad when the Cubs and Tigers played an exhibition series on the west coast a few years ago.

Jack Hayes almost knocked himself out yesterday. His own batted ball thumped down on the plate and bounced straight up to catch him flush on the forehead.

RYDER CUP CHOICES.

IN the inevitable criticism of Ryder and Walker cup selections for international golf competition suggestion is frequently advanced that players earn their places on those squads either in a special qualifying tourney or through their showings in the national tourneys.

Capt. Walter Hagen of the current Ryder cup team of home-born pros which plays in Britain the latter part of this month is one of those who take a stand against such choice. It came up in discussion during the recent national open before Billy Burke had been named as the tenth member of the American team. We did not see Hagen after Burke had been chosen over Ralph Gudahl, who finished second to Amateur Johnny Goodman.

Hagen's comment, in substance, was: "It would be unfair to base choice on one tournament in which some player might make an unusually good showing. Those chosen have made records in a number of events, built up a reputation, often at considerable expense and time. That effort and proved consistency, so far as golf is consistent, should not be sacrificed because of an off day or an off round."

Leaving tenth place on the team open until after the national open made a place for any exceptional performer who might be thought worthy of selection. Perhaps two or more open places would prove better, but The Wake isn't going to try to tell those with golf experience anything about golf.

Capt. Walter Hagen and Craig Wood tied for third, 5 strokes behind the winner; Olin Dutra was seventh; Leo Diegel seventeenth; Denny Shute twenty-second; Horton Smith, twenty-fifth; Ed Dudley, thirty-third; Paul Runyan, disqualified for a scoring error not his fault when with a chance to finish tenth or better; Billy Burke failed to qualify among the first thirty for two rounds, so dropped out.

Allowing for ineligible foreign born pros and amateurs in the ranking, that's a good showing with a majority of them seasoned performers. Whether a better squad could be chosen is a question of opinion. We'd like to see Gudahl among the bunch.

To her who on this day in June
Hath passed the three-fourths century mark,
These lines I'd pen, unworthy though they be,
But lines of love to one whose whole life's work
Is as a shining light to all her friends;
Whose kindness, love and courage we adore,
And whose forbearance when we're in the wrong
As we grow older in the march of time,
More like her is the wish that we might be,
And from her may we ever take the good
That she bestows on us so lovingly.

Too Honest for Fight Business?

As to his reason for quitting, I was going to say that he is too honest and credulous to deal on equal terms with the business men of the prize fight profession, but that is an old complaint and he has succeeded in spite of his hampering virtues. It seems that he confused these business men, who naturally figured that he was lying and cheating, according to old traditions, when he wasn't doing anything of the kind. It was like fighting a left hander, and Will, by the novelty of his unorthodox ethics, managed to win a little for the firm right along.

And now, here is a strange thing in the press copy coming out of the two prize fight camps which the Garden firm is maintaining for Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, respectively, who are due to fight for the heavyweight championship in Long Island City on June 29. Ordinarily the press copy sent out for one firm does not mention a rival firm, but the Garden's publicity on the Sharkey-Carnera fight is full of kind allusions to Jack Dempsey, the ol' Manassa Mauler, who ran the fight between Baer and Schmeling last week.

Friendship May Ripen.

Up to this time Mr. Dempsey is very mobile and footloose, for his prize fight club which produced the fight between Baer and Schmeling exists solely in his hat, having no real estate holdings or permanent stadium. He opposed the Garden firm in that one deal but wound up with a profit of nothing, net, and it just looks as though the Garden firm were about to invite him in. Thus Dempsey might make some money, and he would no longer be in a position to prevent the Garden's making some.

Mr. Carey says Dempsey is kindly helping the Garden to exploit the impending fight merely because Mr. Dempsey is good and kind that way. The Garden publicity extols him back in gratitude, and it looks as though friendship might ripen into love.

They seem to have been made for each other, at that, because Dempsey has that charm with the customers which the Garden needs, and if Dempsey couldn't make a dollar on a $250,000 fight there is no sense of his going further alone. If he should happen to run a $500,000 fight he might make only half as much.

things thrown at him and that's what counts. He's made it count enough to lift him to the rank of outstanding first basemen in the National league.

Serving His Eleventh Season with Giants.

Terry now is serving his eleventh season with the Giants and has been the regular first base guardian most of that time. In 1926 an effort was made to convert him into an outfielder, but in time he was back at the old job. However, he was thinking of going into the outfield again this season. While he was out of the game with a broken hand his understudy, Sam Leslie, did an excellent piece of work around first base and at bat. Terry for a time figured that by going to the outfield he could keep Leslie in action and get some benefit of the latter's hitting. But Leslie slowed down a bit and Terry abandoned the idea.

Since 1926, when he turned in an average of .289, the enemy pitchers haven't been able to hold "Memphis Bill" under the .300 mark. His choicest average was .401, which he compiled in 1930. Terry got to the Giants just in time to get in one of the numerous world series between that team and the Yanks. That was in the fall of 1924, and he spanked American league pitching for .429 in five games.

tomley bunted to English, who started to throw to first but discovered Grimm and Bill Herman chatting with each other some four feet from the bag. So Woody had no place to throw the ball as he watched Moore reach second and Bottomley first.

Catch Moore at Plate.

The runners advanced while Bill Herman was throwing out Hafey. Rice sent a grounder to Bill Herman and Moore was run down, Bill Herman to Hartnett, Bottomley taking third and Rice reaching second. Grantham was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Then Morrissey forced Rice at third, English unassisted.

Hayes singled to left and Haas walked. Fly balls disposed of Swanson and Simmons. Another good opening appeared in the sixth, but it faded before any runs were made. Grube led off with a single to left and Wyatt sacrificed. Hayes scratched a single past Burns, putting Grube on third. Then Haas disappointed the ladies day guests by poking into a double play.

Another double play interceded in the Browns' behalf in the seventh, but it didn't occur soon enough to keep one run from scoring. Simmons singled to center and went to third on Appling's single past Burns. Kress lifted a high fly to short center and it rolled off the tip of West's glove for a hit. West picked it up and instead of throwing to second, where there was an easy force play on Appling, threw to the plate to nip Simmons. The throw was late. Then Dykes lined to Scharein and Kress was doubled off first.

New York, June 13.—Bond prices on the stock exchange showed considerable irregularity today, with advances and declines in domestic corporation issues for the day coming very close to being a standoff. Railroad bonds were a shade higher and industrial and utility issues slightly lower in somewhat more active trading than on Monday. Many sections of the foreign list, notably German loans, pointed higher.

United States government bonds developed a much firmer tone than for several trading days past, finishing up 1-32d to 6-32ds point. The major gain for the day went to the treasury 3¾s. In the outside market, prices were very firm on the short term obligations of the treasury.

Transit Issues Active.

One feature of the day in utility issues was the activity and general strength in obligations of the Interborough Rapid Transit, reflecting the belief held in some quarters that another drive may be made for higher rapid transit fares if the present new revenue plans of the city fall through. Brooklyn-Manhattan railway bonds, however, closed unchanged.

Most of the bonds of the German group which were at all active yesterday closed higher, although the government's bonds were not much improved. Although heavily dealt in, United Kingdom 5½s due 1937 finished unchanged. Most of the Latin-American loans moved higher, Republic of Uruguay 6s due 1960 and 1964 both advancing 2 points to new highs for the year.

Curb Bonds Stronger.

Curb bonds, as a rule, showed better average strength than did the issues listed on the big board. Associated Gas and Electric issues were actively traded, closing unchanged to up 1⅛.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank, the Northern Trust company, and others are offering $1,148,000 of 4½ per cent Wichita, Kas., board of education funding bonds.

Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me an up to date report of Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance company? I would appreciate this courtesy very much.—Mrs. H. B. M.

Answer: Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance company, Philadelphia, was established 55 years ago. It is purely mutual.

In 1932 income was $935,000 more than disbursements, and in 1931, $4,837,000.

Legal reserve against policies outstanding at the close of 1932 amounted to $30,757,000. Other liabilities, including a $500,000 reserve set up for contingencies, totaled $12,287,000.

Assets to cover such liabilities totaled $98,754,000. Real estate was $7,340,000; mortgages, $35,090,000; bonds, $28,543,000; stocks, $1,126,000; cash, $812,000, and policy loans, $21,872,000.

On Dec. 31, 1932, 7.8 per cent of invested assets was in real estate; 37.2 per cent in mortgages; 23.2 per cent in policy loans; 3.3 per cent in United States and municipal bonds; 12.8 per cent in railroad bonds; 11.9 per cent in utility bonds and 2.4 per cent in miscellaneous bonds and stocks.

Using June 30, 1931, market prices for stocks and amortized values for bonds [convention valuation], surplus above all liabilities at the close of 1932 amounted to $5,710,000.

Insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1932, totaled $402,677,000, against $423,345,000 the year before. This drop, 4.96 per cent, corresponds to the general experience of life insurance companies during the year.

The company earned a return of 4.44 per cent on its assets in 1932, against 5 per cent in 1931, and 5.3 per cent in 1930 and 1929.

In 1932 actual mortality was 61.4 per cent of expected mortality, against 54.8 per cent in 1931 and 68.9 per cent in 1930.

C., B. & Q. Dividend.

Investors' Guide: Please give me the dividend paid yearly from 1914 to 1922 by Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. Thanks in advance.—R. R.

Answer: The capital stock of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company paid dividends of $8 a share per year from 1908 through 1916. In 1917 it paid $18. From 1918 through 1920 annual dividends totaled $8 a share. Dividends in 1921 totaled $27 a share, and in 1922, $19 a share.

RAILROADS WILL ASK 22½% CUT IN BASIC WAGES

To Notify Unions of Proposal Friday.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Railroad labor will be presented with a request for a 22½ per cent reduction in its basic wage scale on Friday, according to reports in official railroad circles yesterday. This represents a compromise with an earlier decision on the part of the rail executives to demand a 25 per cent reduction. The Association of Railway Executives will meet in Chicago Thursday.

DANIEL WILLARD.

Members of the twenty-one standard railroad unions have been receiving pay checks with 10 per cent deducted from them since Feb. 1, 1932. This deduction was agreed on at a meeting here early in 1932 in which the railroad executives, headed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, were pitted against the union forces under the leadership of David B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives association.

Pact Extends to Oct. 31.

The Willard agreement, by which the original settlement is known, was effective for one year. At a meeting held here last December the wage deduction was extended for nine months, or until the coming Oct. 31. At the conclusion of this period the union wages would automatically be restored to the established scale unless changed by intervening action.

The agreement signed last December provided "that neither party prior to June 15, 1933, will serve notice of a desire to change or extend this agreement, or of an intended change in basic rates of pay."

Thus the railroads are allowing no time to elapse in demanding a reduction under the terms of the agreement.

It was stated yesterday that the railroad managers' committee of nine have been empowered to negotiate with the unions to a conclusion. The managers, representing the railroads as a whole, will deal directly with the unions and there will be no individual negotiations between single roads and the unions.

No Near Threat of Strike.

Should the forthcoming negotiations fail, there would still be a long period before a strike call. Under the terms of the railway labor act, if direct negotiations fail, the federal mediation board would offer the services of a conciliator who might spend several months in bringing the parties together. Then if both parties persisted in disagreement, the way would be open to arbitration.

Arbitration would likely extend over a long period. Should this fail, the law provides for the declaration of a state of emergency, under which the President of the United States appoints a fact find commission, which must study the issues involved and report within thirty days.

In the previous conferences the railroads have contended that it was vital to them that wages be reduced. They asserted that this item constituted the largest part of their operating expenses. Revenues have been reduced to such an extent, they declared, that they have been unable to meet fixed charges, much less make a profit.

Unions Ignore Capital Plea.

The unions, on the other hand, have asserted it was much more important to protect the well being of human beings than to safeguard capital.

There are now in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 union railroad workers, the number formerly employed having been greatly reduced by the effects of th depression. There are 210 class I railroads operating about 260,000 miles of line involved in the wage question.

Last December it was estimated that had the basic wage scale been restored, it would have meant that the roads would have added about $16,000,000 to their pay rolls.

Recent reports from New York state that eastern executives are determined to attack the basic rates of pay rather than to continue pay deductions. The unions have stated in the past that they will resist such action.

Federal Taxes on Widow 46 Times Higher

BY SCRUTATOR.

The increased tax burdens imposed on widows and orphans under the federal estate tax act as amended in 1932 were pictured yesterday by a Chicago financial institution trust officer.

Under certain conditions, he points out, the newly amended act increases the estate tax load as much as 4,600 per cent. Take an extreme case:

A man dies leaving an estate of $150,000. This is not a large estate. After taxes and probate expenses are deducted the remainder of the principal could be soundly invested in such a manner as to yield the man's widow and children something between $5,500 and $6,500 per year.

Under the 1928 estate tax law, after the state had levied its inheritance tax, the federal government would have taken a net tax of just $100 from the family of the deceased.

Tax 46 Times Former One.

Under the newly amended estate tax act the federal government takes just 46 times as much—$4,600. This is pretty close to one year's income from the estate. In addition, there must be deducted from the estate enough to cover state inheritance taxes and probate expenses.

The 1928 act provided that the first $100,000 should be exempt from estate taxes and that the gross tax on the remainder of the estate should be one per cent. Then a rebate of 80 per cent of the gross tax was allowed to offset the state inheritance tax.

Thus the gross tax on an estate of $150,000 was 1 per cent of $50,000, or $500, and the net tax was $100.

The 1932 act provides also for a $100,000 exemption, but the rates rise steeply from there on. The first $10,000 above the exemption is taxed at 1 per cent; the second $10,000 at 2 per cent; the third $10,000 at 3 per cent; the fourth $10,000 at 4 per cent; the fifth $10,00 at 5 per cent; and the next $50,000 at 7 per cent.

Rebate Remains Same.

The gross federal estate tax on $150,000, therefore, amounts to $5,000. Deducting a credit of $400, the net tax is $4,600.

Heavier tax inroads have caused many people to inquire into the various legal means of arranging their financial affairs in order to lighten the tax penalty for passing their property on to their families at death.

Under present laws an estate of $250,000 merely passed on by will from husband to widow and, later, left by the mother to her children shrinks approximately 24 per cent. An estimated $15,000 must be deducted for probate expense, $10,610 for federal estate tax and $8,263.40 for Illinois inheritance tax.

How Taxes Can Be Eased.

If, however, by means of a single will the husband arranges for his widow to receive only the income from the estate during her life, the property to be shared by the children at her death, the shrinkage in the estate is cut to 11.93 per cent. Total estimate transfer costs would be $23,819.

A third plan entails the immediate creation of a revocable trust for the wife's benefit out of part of the estate. If an immediate trust of $100,000 is set up out of the $250,000 estate the shrinkage can be reduced to 8.56 per cent. Total estimated transfer costs would be $21,405.

By creating an irrevocable trust of $100,000 the shrinkage may be brought down to 6.22 per cent of the $250,000 estate, the total estimated transfer costs dropping to $15,560.

ROADS AGAIN REPORT GAINS IN CAR LOADINGS

Milwaukee Rise 9% Over 1932.

Loading statements issued by railroads tend to confirm earlier indications that traffic last week showed a sharp upturn in the aggregate that placed loadings for the period substantially above 1932 levels.

Rebounding from the holiday influence which curtailed loadings in the week ended June 3 by less than normal proportions, all carriers which have reported for the seven day period ended last Saturday have shown a distinct improvement in the amount of freight handled. These include the Santa Fe, C. & O., Milwaukee, North Western, Wabash and the Pere Marquette.

Such important industrial roads as the New York Central and the Pennsylvania will issue their loading statements for last week some time today, and in each instance a favorable report is indicated.

Milwaukee Loadings Up.

Freight loadings of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific last week were about 9 per cent over those of the like 1932 period, amounting to 23,292 cars, against 21,501 in the preceding week, and 20,444 in the corresponding period of 1932.

The Illinois Central system in the week ended June 10 handled 23,941 revenue freight cars, compared with 22,677 in the like 1932 period, an increase of 5.5 per cent. In the preceding week, when 22,668 cars were handled, the gain over 1932 amounted to 4.1 per cent.

Loadings of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy in the week ended last Saturday totaled 19,768 cars, against 18,021 in the preceding week and 17,517 in the like 1932 period.

Increase by Rock Island.

Revenue freight cars handled by the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific last week totaled 20,544, compared with 19,897 in the preceding week and 20,342 in the like 1932 period.

Loadings of the Wabash in the week ended last Saturday aggregated 11,744 cars, compared with 10,717 in the preceding week and 11,158 in the corresponding period of last year.

In the case of the Pere Marquette, loadings gained to 4,748 cars last week, against 4,243 in the previous week and 4,362 in the corresponding 1932 period. In comparison with last year, the total for the week showed an increase of 8.8 per cent.

Southern Gross Advances.

For the fifth consecutive week—a record without equal to date since the depression began—the Southern Railway's gross in the first week of June exceeded that of the like 1932 period. Gross revenue amounted to $1,964,820, a gain of $362,380 over that a year ago.

The sharp upturn in traffic throughout May will find full reflection in the earning reports for that period by individual carriers. Reports are current that the statement of New York Central will be particularly favorable and that a deficit of only about $500,000 after all charges and taxes will be shown for the month, compared with a loss of $4,000,000 in the like 1932 period.

Rail Employes' Passes Help Auto Dealers

Truck transportation has many peculiarities. In one instance we find railway employés competing with railways. Automobiles are moved from manufacturing points in Michigan in freight cars, on truckaways, and on their own wheels.

In the last mentioned classification we find railway train crews, who check off at automobile manufacturing centers, utilizing their spare time to drive new cars to Chicago.

The employé picks up a car the morning after finishing his run, drives it to Chicago, and returns on his railway pass, having had a very enjoyable and remunerative trip at the expense of his employer.

A wealthy Detroit woman visitor to the World's Fair yesterday noticed the active registration booths for realtors attending the 26th convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in one of the Stevens hotel lobbies.

"I'm leaving for Europe in a few days," she explained to an attendant, "and I'd appreciate it if you could recommend some one in my home town to look after my property interests while I'm gone. This realty convention recalled that I'd overlooked this important point."

Leonard P. Reaum, former president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, who lives in Detroit, was suggested. The Detroit woman knew of him. He was paged and ten minutes later a contract was signed for him to look after a large number of Detroit properties for her.

Detroit, Mich., June 13.—Sales of the General Motors corporation during June will make an even better comparison with those in June last year than the sales in May made with 1932, it was learned today. The sales total in May was 85,969, against 63,500 a year before, an increase of approximately 35 per cent.

Sales in June, 1932, totaled 56,987 cars. If the rate of gain in May should apply to June the total sales for this month would be in the neighborhood of 77,000 cars. The fact which impresses the automobile trade is that the old theory that April is the peak month has been exploded this year at least. The usual seasonal decline in sales has not materialized so far this spring.

On the strength of the large sales this spring it is anticipated that earnings available for the common stock will be materially larger than they were in the first quarter, when they reached an average of approximately 11 cents a share. Wall street has heard rumors that the net on the common stock for the second quarter may run as high as 60 cents a share.

GIANNINI BANK PAYS DIVIDEND, RAISES SALARIES

San Francisco, Cal., June 13.—(AP)—The Bank of America returned to a dividend basis today, when directors approved a disbursement of $750,000 and approved a policy of restoring salaries to former levels.

Approval of the dividend action proposed by A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board, puts into effect the first part of his announced program of "getting back to normal business as rapidly as possible." The dividend is 37½ cents a share, payable June 30 on stock held June 20.

Virtually all of the payment will go to Transamerica corporation, which owns a fraction more than 99 per cent of the 2,000,000 shares of stock. The last dividend paid was 75 cents a share, on Oct. 1, 1931. The policy of revising salaries upward, it was said, would "immediately affect 2,200 employés."

Pound Rallies Eight Cents Against Dollar

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—A sudden sharp rally in the dollar today mystified the foreign exchange market and contributed toward depressing prices in the securities and commodities markets. Bankers here knew of no better reasons for today's rise of the dollar than for Monday's fall to a record low. European delegates to the London economic conference, however, were making insistent demand the dollar be pegged during the sessions.

There were persistent foreign reports of official intervention in the exchanges, but no indications here of operations by either the treasury or the federal reserve banks. The opinion of foreign exchange experts was that either the British nor the United States was attempting to influence the course of exchange.

Rally Probably Technical.

The rally seemed to come from technical causes, following the steady cheapening of the dollar late last week and on Monday. Opening quotations of the foreign exchanges were generally lower. Sterling "came in" about 5 cents under Monday's closing quotation of $4.18. Later however, it rallied to $4.15¼ and held slightly below that level until early afternoon.

At about 2 o'clock the recovery of the dollar began to gain speed and from then until the close of business sterling, francs and other foreign currencies weakened. The pound fell to $4.09¾ and closed at $4.10, off 8 cents net. Francs reached a low mark of 4.74 cents and closed down 9 points at 4.77 cents.

Other Currencies Rise.

Dutch guilders declined to 48.50 cents and closed at 48.5 cents, off 110 points; belgas ended at the day's low of 16.90 cents, down 30 points, and Swiss francs after having sold at 23.35 cents closed at 23.40 cents off 35 points. German marks lost 38 points net to close at 28.60 cents and Italian lire were off 12 points at 6.31 cents.

Accompanying the appreciation in the dollar, prices weakened in all speculative markets.

Chrysler Sales Greatly Exceed Those of Last Year

Detroit, Mich., June 13.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation announced today sales of automobiles to distributors and dealers during the first five months of 1933 totaled 151,220 units, as against 119,195 for the same period last year.

STOCKS ZIGZAG BUT DECLINES EXCEED GAINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 13.—Today's stock market price trend was highly discordant, with a kaleidoscopic mixture of individual speculative issues scoring small net gains against losses ranging up to more than 4 points among the standard leaders. Trading continued at a fast pace for a turnover of 6,300,000 shares.

The market opened on a sour note as selling came out on the advance of the dollar in the foreign exchange market. The bulls were not disheartened by the early heaviness, however, and when the influence of the dollar had been thrown off a fair-sized rally was engineered. The comeback, however, did not benefit market leaders greatly, but rather the more obscure issues.

Watch Washington and London.

It was apparent that for market purposes the street is dividing its attention between Washington and London, hoping that congress will keep its promise of an early adjournment and that the international economic conference will furnish good news.

Rails gave about the best group performance when the rally got under way, but with the exception of Union Pacific all leading carrier issues took moderate losses on the day.

American Telephone, after yesterday's sensational climb, closed down more than 4 points. Standard Gas found enough buying to make a small gain, but losses were posted by Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Commonwealth and Southern, North American and other leaders.

Air Stocks Active.

Aviation stocks had one of their frequent bursts of activity, with Aviation corporation and North American Aviation appreciating fractionally on the day.

United States Steel closed down well over a point, General Motors dipped a larged fraction, while recessions of 3 and 4 points were suffered by such other industrials as Allied Chemical, American Can, Case, Du Pont and National Distillers.

Taken by groups, foods, tobaccos, coppers, motors, and oils were steady.

AN EVENT THAT GREW INTO A POLICY

The management arranged for the sale of the gas plant in Santa Rosa for the sum of $48,000, this being considered a satisfactory price and the property being disadvantageously located 500 miles distant from the Company's other properties in Southern California.

{A Transaction in 1902}

WHEN Pacific Lighting disposed of a gas plant in Northern California because it was too far from Los Angeles, a policy was established which finally shaped the compact map of the present system.

The business of Pacific Lighting is still confined to natural gas service in Los Angeles and in 250 other Southern California communities, and to gas-steam generated electric service in Los Angeles. More than 11,600 miles of pipe lines and mains are completely interconnected to provide the most dependable service.

Concentration of the business in one region eliminates many of the costs and difficulties of operation and management. These economies eventually translate themselves into lowered rates to customers, who now number nearly one million.

In 1902 not all of this was foreseen, but the decision made then and followed ever since is one of several basic policies which have waited many years to have their worth proven by economic stress.

EXPORT ORDERS INCREASE DUE TO CHANGE IN MONEY

Foreign Currency Rise Brings Advance.

The greatest export activity in many months has resulted from the recent rise of the principal foreign currencies, which has improved the competitive position of American exporters, according to James P. Collins, chairman of the foreign commerce committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"The number of trade inquiries received in our foreign commerce department has doubled in the last few weeks," Mr. Collins said, "while the commercial invoices, certificates of origin, and other shipping documents requiring certification by us have also shown a marked increase. The average size of the orders is also noticeably larger."

Others Confirm Increase.

Other leaders in exporting circles confirmed Mr. Collins' views. Charles E. Herrick, president of the Brennan Packing company, stated that his business in the last week with one European country alone has been larger than the monthly business with the same nation for some time past. Mr. Herrick, however, warned against over-optimism. "While the outlook for exports is brighter," he said, "we still have many grave obstacles to overcome before we can hope to regain our former important volume of exports.

"Exchange restrictions constitute one of our greatest problems. Unquestionably, our government will make a determined effort at the world economic conference to bring about a stabilization of exchanges and the removal of drastic exchange regulations, but a more militant attitude on the part of the United States government is needed to lessen the exchange restriction handicap under which exporters are now struggling."

Electric Inquiries Rise.

W. N. Curtis, vice president of the Automatic Electric Sales company, Ltd., is inclined to view the future with optimism. Mr. Curtis stated: "There is more activity in our office than we have seen for many months. We are receiving a flood of inquiries, many of them by cable, calling for quotations. Our business requires the submission of estimates before sales can be effected, and our daily requests for estimates are now exceeding those of many previous months. Just as soon as currency stabilization becomes an actuality a very favorable volume of new business should result.

"Our company has branch factories abroad, and in connection with a number of projects on which we were basing our estimates on production in those foreign branches, due to the depreciation in the dollar, we have abandoned such plans and are now figuring on production from our plant in Chicago."

COTTON DECLINES 75c, THEN RECOVERS SHARPLY

Cotton trade was not so heavy as the volume on Monday, but remained heavy. There was good scattered buying at times, with several sharp upturns, but bulges ran into selling and the finish was at a few points above the inside figures of the day.

Net losses on futures in Chicago were 7 to 15 points, and in other markets 9 to 13 points. Spots were off 5 points at New York to 9.40c, with New Orleans off 10 points to 9.25c; Houston, 9.15c, and Galveston, 9.10c. Liverpool closed 4 to 5 points net higher.

CHEMICAL TRADE GAINS STEADILY, SURVEY SHOWS

Better Sales Reported by Industry's Leaders.

The chemical industry is showing a substantial improvement in business along with other lines of activity, according to a report compiled by Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, the journal of the American Chemical society. This periodical has summarized the results reported by a number of chemical companies, including the following:

"May sales of Mathieson Alkali Works were in excess of May, 1932, and May, 1931. This is due to the greater demand for soda ash for glass and caustic soda for rayon, while gains in the paper trade have increased the orders for chlorine.

Other Firms' Sales Better.

"There has been a sharp upturn in the business of the General Chemical company, a subsidiary of the Allied Chemical and Dye corporation, making acids and a general range of industrial chemicals. The Solvay division, making caustic soda, soda ash and by-products, has had a similar gain. The National Aniline and Dye corporation has been doing a substantially increased business in dyes for textiles.

Both the American Commercial Alcohol company and the United States Industrial Alcohol company are reported as having better business as a result of demands from rayon producers. The Westvaco Chlorine Products company is reported as enjoying a larger demand for carbon disulfid and other products used by the rayon industry. An increased demand for products of Union Carbide's chemical division has been reported as well as in its ferro-alloy division, which supplies alloys to the steel trade.

The survey also reports that paints, lacquers, and pigments have also felt the upturn and this in turn has helped the demand for naval stores, such as rosin and turpentine.

Steel Output Advances.

Reports from the Youngstown district state that steel operations there have passed 50 per cent of capacity, with indications that the peak has not yet been passed. Orders for tin plate received in the Pittsburgh district last week aggregated in volume the largest amount in any one week in three years.

Ore shipments on the great lakes totaled 900,584 tons in May, an increase of 789,708 tons over the like period of last year. During the first six weeks of this season 828,845 more tons of ore were carried on the great lakes than in the corresponding period of 1932.

Air Lines Traffic Rises.

The country's air lines carried 34,442 passengers in April, compared with 31,778 in March and 28,513 in February, according to Thomas A. Morgan, president of the Aeronautical chamber of commerce.

L. B. Manning, chairman of the board of American Airways, said that air traffic in the first seven days of June showed an increase of 76.6 per cent over the first week of May—the record month of 1933. The line carried 2,853 passengers in the first week of June, compared with 1,672 in the like period in May.

GRAIN PRICES EASE AS BUYING DEMAND SLIPS

Wheat Declines About 1/2 a Cent a Bushel.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There was not the snap to the buying of wheat and other grains yesterday so noticeable on Monday, and the markets as a whole presented a tired appearance. While there was another flood of unfavorable crop comments on the outlook for the winter wheat crop, they failed to stimulate aggressive buying.

Efforts to advance the nearby futures of wheat to a new high for the season were without avail, although the December sold up fractionally to 82½ cents, a new top. The selling pressure was persistent and the close was with net losses of ⅝ to ½ cent. July was 77¼ to 77¾ cents at the last; September, 79¼ to 79⅝ cents, and December, 81⅝ to 81¾ cents.

Strong Rally from Low.

Buying against bids and on resting orders and by houses with eastern connections caused a strong rally from the inside figures, but the buying was not sufficiently large to send the September above 80 cents, or the outside figure of Monday.

With harvest under way in the advanced sections of Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas hedging sales against the new grain have become a factor in the market. Houses with southwestern connections were fairly persistent sellers of the December, presumably for cash handlers.

Lowest freight rates ever known are reported as prevailing on wheat from Fort William to Montreal, a charter being made Monday at 3 cents per bushel. However, this failed to result in any export business of consequence, and only 400,000 bushels of Manitobas were claimed to have been sold yesterday.

Winnipeg closed off ⅝ to ¼ cent in Canadian funds. Liverpool finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower in American funds.

Corn Futures Lower.

Bull news fell flat as a market influence in corn. An advance of as much as 5 cents per bushel in cash grain in the sample market failed to bring in aggressive buying, and press reports claiming frost had occurred at several points in Minnesota and North Dakota were also ignored.

July corn was sold and September bought at 3 cents' premium for the latter by traders who were changing over from the nearby into the deferred delivery. Closing trades were at net losses of ⅜ to ½ cent.

Reports Damage to Oats.

Oats are being pastured or plowed under owing to damage from the intense heat and dry weather in parts of central Illinois, according to the Thomson & McKinnon crop expert. Numerous unfavorable crop comments were also received from other states. Profit taking by longs, however, proved too heavy to be readily absorbed, and the close was ⅛ to ⅝ cents lower, with July finishing at 28¾ cents; September, 30¼ cents, and December, 32 cents.

The South Dakota rye crop has been badly damaged by intense heat, according to reports received by the trade yesterday, and it was claimed a large part of the acreage in the eastern part was being cut for hay. Futures showed a firm undertone and closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. All deliveries sold at a new high for the season early in the day. Barley was ⅝ cent lower.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., June 13.—An added note of stability entered the wool market today when it was learned that the marketing of Region's Agricultural Credit corporation's wool on which federal loans had been made is to be regulated to assure full protection to the growers.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—Textile markets continue hesitant pending the enactment of the industrial recovery act. Prices are tending upward in the belief that shorter hours will restrict production. Sheets and pillow cases continued in steady demand with some discounts being shortened. Wool goods for men's wear are again being advanced in some quarters. Rayon is firmer with the trade expecting a sharp advance if anticipated legislation passes. Silk goods are much firmer due to the advance in raw material. Burlaps are firm.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed easy; sales, 2,710 bales; July, $2.07; October, $2.08; December, $2.08. Open market quotations [sixty day basis]: Shanghai steam filature, 78 per cent seriplane 20-22s, $1.90; Canton double extra double extra, 81 per cent seriplane 13-15s, $2.32.

BETTER GRADES OF HOGS DEVELOP PRICE WEAKNESS

Cattle Ease as Supplies Exceed Expectations.

Weakness in better grades of hogs yesterday, which supplanted the earlier strength forced lard type swine into the limelight again. The latter continued the rally that began with Monday's abrupt letup in supplies, recovering fully 10 to 15 cents more of last week's loss in packing sows. Activity in better grades of hogs subsided after the opening and buyers soon had prices headed lower. However, the loss was very slight, with sellers resisting efforts to pare quotations.

Top sales remained unchanged at $4.85, which was paid for 269 pound butchers, while the general average for the day moved down 5 cents to $4.55. Selected 190 to 250 pound hogs sold at $4.80 and prime 300 to 350 pounders at $4.50 to $4.75. Smooth 300 to 400 pound packing sows cashed within a range of $4.15 to $4.35, while 500 to 600 pound averages were sold at $3.85 to $4.10.

Ahead of Last Year.

A year ago yesterday the latter weights sold at $2.50 to $2.75, while top hogs at $3.75 averaged only 220 pounds. The relatively better position of the market for big type hogs is due to the fact that lard has advanced more than meat since a year ago.

Cattle exhibited an unexpected show of weakness when supplies overran the estimates and reports from other places indicated a larger movement for today. It is expected that before today's close Monday's big decrease in receipts will have been made up.

The increase consisted largely of medium grades of steers that sank 15 to 25 cents in value, and closed sluggish at the low point of the day. Near the finish there was evidence that a fair sized carryover was probable. A scattering of choice yearlings and light steers attracted some action at almost steady prices, but the bulk of selling was on a 10 to 15 cents lower basis, with poorest action in heavy steers.

Cattle Top Reaches $7.40.

Choice 934 pound yearling steers to Swift at $7.40 established the top for the day, which was exactly the same as the top on the corresponding day in 1932. A few heifers that were fed with these cattle averaged 970 pounds and sold at $6.50.

Considering the poor quality of lambs and yearlings, prices in the sheep house were mostly steady yesterday. City butchers closely sorted a few new crop native lambs at $8.50, while packers obtained the bulk at $8.00 and under. Most yearlings sold at $6.25 to $6.50.

825 DEGREES AND CERTIFICATES ARE AWARDED AT UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO'S 172D CONVOCATION. Interior of chapel at University of Chicago where 172d convocation was held yesterday. There were 825 degrees and certificates awarded. Picture shows the graduates marching down the center aisle to receive their degrees. In the audience were a number of notables who formerly were students at the university. (Story on page 3.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

THOUSANDS SEE GIANT NAVY AIRSHIP MACON RETURN TO CHICAGO FOR CRUISE OVER WORLD'S FAIR. The navy's new airship Macon as it appeared early last evening on its second flight of the day over Chicago. The Macon visited the city early in the morning and then spent the day making radio tests over northern Lake Michigan, returning just before sundown. The Macon is 785 feet long and is the successor to the ill-fated Akron. (Story on page 1.)

BACHELOR OF ARTS. Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, wife of banker, honored at University of Chicago.

U. OF C. LAW ALUMNI HEAR JUSTICE CARDOZO. Justice Benjamin Cardozo of U. S. Supreme court; President Hutchins, and Willard King, alumni official, at banquet of U. of C. law school alumni at Congress hotel last night.

[Acme Photo.]

SHANGHAI BEAUTY TO TRY MOVIES IN U. S. Nina Barsanova, Russian born beauty, defeated a princess, two countesses, and a number of society girls in Shanghai beauty contest, and has just arrived in America to try movies.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

WEST PARK PROPERTY WHICH JAMES ADMINISTRATION PERMITTED TO BE USED AS A DUMP GROUND. Unsightly dump at 31st boulevard, between California and Western avenues, on park property. The James park board administration permitted dumping of all kinds of rubbish, stones and old automobile bodies here, a report to Gov. Horner shows. The report charges waste, graft, pay roll padding, looting, and general mismanagement of the park property. (Story on page 11.)
